I t'll NEVER BE LIKE THIS AGAIN

*It will never be like this again in our lives.
How amazingly fast the bird of time flies.
Looking back we can laugh and cry,
Reflecting upon the days gone by. . .
In the garden of opportunity.
Womb of responsibility.*

*As we wade through the placid streams of the past.
We realize the end that came too fast.*

*We remember shuffling languidly down the hall
Laughing and babbling, and having a ball.
We remember being dazed and confused
The messy lockers and books we've abused.
We can never forget the echo of the bell we knew.
And the crowded halls we all plowed through.*

*Still, sad we may be, regretting a bit.
Cherishing the flames that here were lit.
So we make no mistake, no need to cry,
But smile as we think of Bay Shore High.*

SHOWING A LOT OF... SPIRIT

Spirit Week

Spirit Week celebrations have been waning for the past few years. With the plans for Homecoming announced, Spirit Week '93 got off to a slow start in the High School. Most students had very little idea what the purpose of the celebration was since there has been none for the past two years. Others were not even aware that it had begun, while many chose not to get involved. By the end of the week more and more students were participating. To boost student participation, a class picnic in June was promised to the winning class.

Confusion reigned during the beginning of the week. Because the themes of the various days were chosen and sponsored by individual classes, many upperclassmen thought that if they participated on the "Freshman Day", the freshman class would receive all points awarded on that day. Most students seemed to enjoy Hat Day as a chance to wear their hats in classes where they had been previously banned. Many of the teachers even joined in the spirit of the celebration by donning crazy hats and tie-dyed shirts. The class that accumulated the most points was the freshmen class which led by a landslide. Other activities were being planned to increase student spirit, involvement, and pride in their school. One suggestion was to hold another Spirit Week and Pep Rally in the spring.

(middle)No name is needed on the hat to see where Senor Alfonso Perez got his spirit.

Mrs. J. Bienkowski made sure that her voice didn't match her hat as she answered the phone in the main office.

CELEBRATING OUR... HOMECOMING

With a flash of smoke and the parting of the black curtain on the stage, the NEW Marauder appeared for the first time to the hundreds of cheerleaders, band members, students, and athletes present for the annual Pep Rally commencing the Homecoming Weekend festivities. As the representatives from each team were announced, the crowd responded wildly to show its pride. Following the rally, the celebration continued in the large cafeteria for the dance and traditional crowning of the Homecoming king and queen, Tony Figueroa and Christie Driscoll.

The New Marauder appeared again the next day leading the parade down Main Street on a crisp, clear fall morning. Banners from each class blew in the gentle breezes as classmates joined again in the Homecoming spirit. Organizations, such as S.A.D.D., F.B.L.A., and BSOSS, proudly strutted down the streets on their way back to the High School. Fans cheered on the marchers on their arrival onto the field.

Although the game ended in disappointment, the crowd roared through to the last play of the battle against Huntington. Marauder spirit was present throughout the weekend and especially in the Marching Band and Color Guard's spectacular halftime show's tribute to Walt Disney. Everyone agreed that Bay Shore had yet another great Homecoming!

LEARNING TO...

REFUSE

Laura Mirabella and Alison Mills took a lunch break from the hectic Refuse Cruise activities.

Melissa Montemarle ended up in the middle of the human knot and struggled to find a way out.

Everyone enjoyed the people pass as away of learning to trust one another.

What in the world is a Refuse Cruise? "I thought it was a trip on a boat ride or something of that nature," said Carter Hester. Designed by Mr. J. McGowan, Mr. M. Mahoney, Mrs. R. Bonanno, and Mr. R. Damore, the purpose of the Refuse Cruise was to orient ninth graders to different situations that they might face while in the High School. The cruise gave the freshmen a chance to meet the upperclassmen and learn to trust one another. By participating in an assortment of games including blob tag, lap sit, name game, and wheel within a wheel, freshmen learned how to rely on their peers for support and guidance. One of the more unique activities in learning trust was a game called the people pass. The entire group learned the importance of team work and camaraderie. LaKisha Banks replied, "The refuse cruise made me understand the school a whole lot better. I also made some new friends." Robert Luckert answered, "I think it was great and I think that it will be a success next year." Michelle Pairan stated, "I had fun and it made me think of the future and who I really look up to in life."

Mr. Consigli thought it was very positive and many kids got a lot out of it. Mr. Mahoney stated that the whole day impressed him but especially the student leaders.

QUITE. . .

It's LIKE STARTING OVER AGAIN

You had all your friends. You knew all of the teachers, or at least most of them. You didn't worry about finding a classroom. It was easy, for you'd been in the same school for the past three years. Then you graduated from the Middle School and moved to the High School. It was like starting all over again. You had to memorize a new bus schedule, decipher the three-story floor plan, and crack the mystery of the new wing. There were odd and even days, an auditorium in the middle of the building, and an entire new teaching staff to learn. The feelings of insecurity were alleviated to some extent by the Refuse Cruise, but for many it would take an entire year before they felt comfortable in the building and knew their way around. Starting over again brought new responsibilities and challenges.

HELPING TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Freshmen Got Involved

Class Advisor, Ms. B. Thomas, found the freshmen officers productive and hard working: Secretary, Lea Franco; President, Melissa Carerro, Vice-President, David Bunge, and Treasurer, Lucy Montalvo.

Upon their arrival in the high school, the Freshmen made their presence known!

During Spirit Week, the Class of 1997 earned the most points, surpassing all of the other grades and the faculty! The success of the freshman student council was surprising considering the difficult transition from the middle to the high school. Among their achievements, the council boasted a Holiday Fair at the 5th Avenue School. Santa Claus was there to hand out presents and candy to all those that attended. Toys were collected to donate to those children who had to spend their holiday in the pediatrics wing at Southside Hospital.

The selflessness and caring displayed by the freshman council made all of the members proud to hold an office.

(left) Brainstorming at a class meeting, representatives from the freshmen class worked on the Holiday Fair and considered other functions to keep the class on the move.

IT'S MUSIC TO OUR EARS!

Our Tastes Vary as Much as We Do

Whether waking up to the latest hits emanating from a clock radio, jogging with headphones to stay fit, sitting in a dentist's chair, shopping at the mall, or even watching the opening credits of a television show, music is now, more than ever, an integral part of our lives. With the intervention of mass media via MTV, concerts, radio, compact discs and cassettes, there is no escaping the music surrounding our everyday lives. Some of the more popular groups, or performers of today were; Snoop Doggy Dogg, Billy Joel, Pearl Jam, R.E.M., Mariah Carey, and Aerosmith, to name a few. With all of these options available, there was bound to be something to satisfy everyone's musical appetite.

The yearbook staff thought that it would be interesting to take a poll to determine approximately which types of music were the most popular among the student body. To do this, students around the building were randomly selected and asked about their musical preferences. As indicated by the graph, the largest percentage of students polled favored rap and rock and roll genres. If you weren't involved in the poll, what would your choice be? The way the music scene keeps changing, one thing is certain- it will never be like this again.

"MY DOG ATE MY HOMEWORK."

The Fine Art of Creating Excuses.

The alarm rudely awakens you and suddenly you realize it's 7:45 A.M. Now what do you do? You could ask mom to write you a note for being late or you could write one yourself and forget mom's signature. . .

Arriving late, your first period math teacher asks to see your homework. You tell her that you left your notebook at home with your assignment in it. Unfortunately, your teacher doesn't buy it, so she assigns you detention.

During fourth period your dean comes to see you about why you weren't in your second period biology class. You tell her that there was a substitute who must have mistakenly marked you absent because she didn't know your name.

In fifth period Social Studies you finally remember that you haven't studied for the English test that is being given during seventh period on the book that you haven't quite finished reading yet because you left it in your friend's car. You pause for a moment to come up with a good strategy and decide to use one that has worked numerous times in the past. You get a pass from your fifth period teacher to go to the nurse because you're not feeling well and that you're having trouble focusing your eyes. You'll have to go home because you won't be able to read the questions on the English test with this blurry vision. That excuse gets you out of the rest of the day, and you go back to bed.

Creating clever, original excuses was a full time occupation for many students.

THE ADVERSARY MOVES, TIME RUNS OUT, AND THE TENSION MOUNTS.

Yet They Stand Victorious in a Single Check Mate.

Intensity is just one of the many key elements that is involved in a good chess match. Anyone, who has ever been in a match or has ever seen one, knows that this is an accurate description. Chess is a continuous series of mind games in which the player has to be quick in order to last any amount of time while in play.

Bay Shore High School's team was advised by Mr. R. Lukaschek who taught them to fight fiercely against their oponents, which would make a better match as well as an even better victory. "It was a great way to use your mind," commented Vipul Sawhney, a top player on Bay Shore's team. Players sharpened their skills by playing practice matches and pre-game contests with other members of the club in an effort to develop confidence and skill.

Finally, after numerous practices after school and at home the team was ready to match their skills with players in local tournaments.

We WORKED HARD TO MAKE THE GRADES

Exams, research projects, great works of literature, the periodic table, and geometric proofs were just a few of the many elements that contributed to the challenging academic schedules of many Bay Shore students. The serious scholar, in the hopes of an increased Grade Point Average and a higher class ranking, could often be found consulting a teacher for some extra assistance in a classroom or racing to the library to review his notes for a big chemistry exam. With assistance from our dedicated teaching staff we all worked hard to make the grades.

A Rebirth of Education

High schools across the nation are faced with student apathy, low morale, and a dearth of motivation. In an effort to stem the tide of this movement, a new program has been created. The Renaissance program is a national organization whose mission is to assist every school across the country to promote and achieve academic excellence. This is accomplished by non-traditional means, or a "rebirth" of how to applaud and encourage academic achievement.

The athletic achievement of students is awarded with trophies and Varsity letters, so why not acknowledge and reward students for the real reason that schools exist- to LEARN!!!

The aims of this organization are accomplished by giving recognition and material awards to students who display academic and/or scholastic excellence. For example, at the spur of the moment, a student's name could be announced by Mr. Consigli, who says that that student has won a prize for perfect attendance. Things like this are aimed at various problems which entail increases in; attendance, GPA's, SAT's, participation and school spirit, school image, good citizenship, and leadership. A decrease in the failure rate, enrollment in PM school, and poor attitudes toward learning are also goals.

The program was introduced to Bay Shore by foreign language teacher, Mrs. Susan Warshay. Mrs. Warshay believes that the Renaissance program is exactly what this school needs in order to reinstate the importance of academics and to restore Bay Shore's brilliance. The program was in its early planning stages this year; however, next year it is hoped that Bay Shore will find itself in the midst of a full academic RENAISSANCE!!!

Under the Sea

Hello sophomores! Students looking for a non-traditional approach to biology were given a second choice this year. Rather than studying topics such as the respiratory system, animal and plant cells, and the sexual reproduction of humans, students in marine biology learned about the deep sea and ocean animals. This class studied the environment that surrounds the marine waters such as beaches, marshes, seas, and oceans. They also studied marine animals such as whales, dolphins, fish, and other underwater creatures. Not only did they learn from Mr. R. McAlpine, the marine biology teacher, they also went on several field trips. The classes went on a trip to Southold to walk through the salt marshes and find specimen for the fish tanks which they set up in class. They also went to the New York Aquarium to get professional opinions on how to maintain a stable marine environment and how the class can take better care of their aquariums.

With an official syllabus from the State Education Office, this class provided students with a strong battery of information and hands-on activities.

Out on a Limb

There have been many changes in this school starting this year. New teachers, new rules, and new courses have been introduced. One of the most revolutionary programs is a new physical education class called Project Adventure. The semester long course, which was made possible by a grant from New York State, stressed trust and communication among students by having students train together. Class members learned how to tie a surgeon's knot and a box knot which are essential to ensure safety while walking along a single cable attached to two trees. Students were also trained on the use of the Studebaker seat which caught students when they fell. These safety lessons plus games were not only entertaining but also educational as they aimed at instilling bonds of trust and devotion among classmates.

After weeks of training and practice, class members were put to the final test, the knee-knocking cable walk. The cable walk is about thirty feet high and the only safety mechanisms are the studebaker seat and a confident partner below. "It's a complete adrenaline rush to be up there, especially to be that high and in the total support of your partner and classmates," stated senior Alison Roth.

The reaction to this innovative class has been overwhelmingly positive. Senior Megan Mahoney said, "Gym used to be so boring, and I never wanted to go. We always did the same thing for weeks, but Project Adventure is different. You do all sorts of activities and games to improve your skills." Freshman Stacey Nornes added, "I like the fact that I don't have to change my clothes for gym."

For whatever the reason students enjoyed Project Adventure and hoped that the class could expand into more challenging activities. Anyone for bungee jumping?

*This grand old building is the one you've called home
Life's lessons have been taught to all you've known.
Touching hearts and sharing your wisdom through the years
Have earned you the respect of your students and peers.
You've serviced your students and enlightened their minds,
And taught your great lessons of varying kinds.
You've reached out and made so many good friends,
And now you move on as this stage of life ends.
For it's a brand new life, a new beginning,
Another game, another inning.*

*Mr. Nash, you're a teacher who really has cared,
And for thirty-three years wisdom and laughter you've shared.
As classroom teacher, Teacher of the Year, and newspaper advisor,
You've made so many lives richer and wiser.*

*Mr. Ford, you've loved your students and helped them to read
You've pushed them, pushed them always to succeed.
As teacher and golf coach for thirty-six years,
Seeing you leave brings smiles and tears.*

*Students and colleagues will fondly reminisce,
Your energy, devotion, and stories we'll miss.
We hope you'll remember special moments that are gone,
And never forget that in our hearts your memory lives on.*

The Year in Pictures

During the course of the 1993-1994 school year, a variety of events took place that were sure to keep people talking for many years to come.

Long Island itself was home to a few incidents that granted it front page status across the country. For example, the massacre that took place on the 5:33pm Long Island Railroad train sent chills up the spines of all who heard the name of the murderer, Colin Ferguson. Here in Bay Shore, we literally felt chills, due to the brutal winter which produced temperatures that broke a late 1800's record of negative two degrees! Nearly four full school days were lost due to snow and treacherous ice storms that plagued our area for almost the entire month of January, into the beginning of February.

California and Miami also made headlines during the year. California ended 1993 with raging fire storms, and the new year commenced with the "Great Quake of '94." In Miami, a rash of tourist murders horrified the entire nation.

President Bill Clinton proposed his Clinton Health Plan, which if passed could revolutionize the whole system. Also on the health care front, the number of reported AIDS cases and related fatalities continued to rise without any cure possibilities on the horizon.

Celebrities, Michael Jackson and Nancy Kerrigan made headlines as well. Conversations could be heard all over school that focused on whether Jackson was guilty of the child abuse allegations made against him by a thirteen year old boy, or if Olympic skater Tonya Harding played a role in the attack on her rival Nancy Kerrigan. MTV cartoon teenagers, Beavis and Butthead gained immense popularity among students, however, they were cited as the motivation for a 5 year old boy to set his house ablaze, which resulted in the death of his infant sister. The nation was also shocked to learn of the death of the young movie actor, River Phoenix, who was yet another victim of drug abuse.

With all of these "negatives" that aren't even close to getting balanced out by "positives", one can only hope that there will never be another year like this again!

Understanding Our Differences

No matter who visits our school the guest is always impressed with Bay Shore's cultural diversity. Interaction between people of different races, ethnicities, religion, and socio-economic backgrounds is so commonplace that few realize how lucky we are to learn in this diverse environment. This year, the orchestra room was transformed into a forum for invited seniors to participate in an ethnic sharing program. Mrs. P. Ponzi, Social Studies teacher, has been successfully running these discussions since 1989 after she attended a workshop which introduced the concept. Mrs. Ponzi consented to being the chairperson of the Ethnic Sharing Committee because "Bay Shore is a perfect microcosm of the American society, and I want us to be proud of that. In fact, we should celebrate that." One of the main activities of the session was a discussion of stereotypes of people in society. After a list of phrases was compiled by the collective group, a member of that particular ethnic group would target those statements that he found to be offensive and untrue and would explain why. From this activity, several other discussions were spawned which mainly focused on how we, as the next generation in power, could possibly eliminate stereotypes and all forms of prejudice and racism.

The sharing lasted for three periods, and the majority of participants felt that there wasn't enough time to say all that needed to be said.

Based upon the productivity of the first group, a second session was held with freshmen. We can only hope that after more activities like this one that maybe our children might grow up in a world in which stereotypes and racism are a thing of the past.

OUR EYES

ARE ON THE FUTURE

Every grade level has its own special meaning. Freshmen are the ones "adjusting to the new building and starting over," juniors are facing their "toughest academic year," and seniors are busy choosing colleges and getting prepared for their graduation. Where do the sophomores fit in? It seems that they are caught right in the middle, searching for their own identity and their own position in the scheme of things.

As sophomores, tenth graders realized that they were no longer able to look up to the older students in the building as they did while they were freshmen, but rather, they themselves had to assume a role model position for the current ninth graders. It was an important formative year which kept everyone busy and looking forward to the next two years of high school.

FEMALE LEADERSHIP TAKES OVER THE SOPHOMORE CLASS!

Let's get everyone involved!

Under the all-female leadership of the student council officers and tenth grade advisor, Miss K. Picco, the sophomore class kicked off the year full of ambition, energy, and high expectations.

These hard working students and their advisor made their presence known at every major event of the school year as they sought to bring out more and more of their classmates to school functions and activities. They were visible decorating for the Homecoming Dance, adopting a family at Christmas, and placing second in the Spirit Week competition. They ran a ski trip, a penny sale, and a Valentine's Day candy sale. They raised money for their class and had fun, too. Class president Erica Sadler was proud of this year's sophomore class's accomplishments and anxiously awaited the events of junior year.

IT WAS AMAZING TO SEE HOW MUCH MONEY STUDENTS SPENT!

Where Did It All Go?

During and after school and on weekends, students in all grade levels did their best to boost the declining economy. They felt that it was their duty to patronize as many local business establishments as possible. These included various fast-food eateries, movie theaters, clothing stores, and arcades. During lunch periods, people could always be spotted making a "Run for the Border" or ordering a hero from Leggio's landmark deli.

However, these "necessities" were not cheap. Many students needed a part-time job to cover their expenses. The following is a list of approximate costs of different items purchased frequently during the course of the year. When we look back at these prices in about ten years, we will probably get a good laugh because these prices will never be like this again!!!

Joe's Pizzeria: one slice of pizza: $1.00.

Coyle's Ice Cream: small ice cream cone: $1.25.

McDonalds: large fries, medium soda & chicken sandwich: $4.98.

Taco Bell: 6 pack of tacos: $5.00.

Bagel Boss: one buttered bagel: $.80.

Leggio's Deli: turkey hero: $5.00.

Mr. J. D'Antoni/T.O.R./Ms. E. Eckman: one candy bar: $.60.

Snapple/Arizona Iced tea: $1.25.

Gasoline/per gallon/full serve: $1.20.

Movie Theater: one ticket: $7.00.

Gap: Jeans: $40.00.

Nike Sneakers: $50.00 and up.

Newsday Daily Newspaper: $.40.

CD: Pearl Jam: $13.99

LOOK AT ALL WE HAVE DONE

As the headline states, for many of the students the school day doesn't end at 1:45. This was actually the time that many students came alive with energy and attended various sports and clubs. Students could be seen rushing up and down the stairs in all directions as they ran to Interact, yearbook meetings, or to student council meetings. From 1:45 to 4:00 or 5:00 in the evening, voices could be heard of performers from the musical or BSOSS dancers rehearsing for a special holiday tribute.

For those who were involved, school became a dynamic and stimulating place to be after hours. Friendships were made with other students, and they had a chance to enjoy their teachers' diverse talents. When we look back on these days, these memories will be filled with joy and nostalgia, for we know that these days will never be like this again.

ACTIVITY FILE

Despite rain and other mishaps, the marching band always KEPT THE BEAT!

For Drum Major, Kristine Swenson, nothing could ever duplicate the events of this year's season. Being able to march up Fifth Avenue without being run over by a speeding taxi was thrill enough, but when the Marching Band placed second out of twenty-three bands, she was filled with joy and pride. An added thrill came when Steven Tyler, the lead vocalist from Aerosmith, was spotted applauding the band along the parade route.

Kristine echoed the entire band's frustration when the annual marching band festival at Hofstra was cancelled three weeks in a row due to rain. When the band finally did return to perform, the clouds followed and the performance was delayed for an hour until the shower passed.

On November 13th Kristine and the band boarded buses to get an early start to head up to West Point to perform with approximately 2,800 other high school musicians in the Academy's halftime show. For this prestigious event, band members had to learn an additional five pieces of music and depart from the High School at 4:30 in the morning.

Kristine spoke for the entire band when she said, "We'll never have a season like this again!"

Seniors Matt LaPenta, Jenn Doran, and Jaime Forlano enjoyed every minute of their last competition as part of the Marching Band.

The horn section performed in front of the high school during the Homecoming festivities.

Kerri Berka couldn't wait to prove that the Bay Shore High School Marching Band can't be beat!

Jillian Murray smiles proudly after performing the marching bands exciting routine.

The drum section kept the beat and rhythm alive as the band performs at the exclusive Hofstra invitational.

(below)Colorguard Captains, Diane French, Sharon Coates and Megan Mahoney, led the constituents down Fifth Avenue in Manhattan on Columbus Day. (right)Phaeryn Phillips, Jocelynn O'Brien and Erin Beyer strutted proudly to the beat of the music.

As the head drum major said "1..2..3..4," the Dance Line and Color Guard burst into an action-packed routine filled with high kicks and twirling flags. This winning combination added sparkle to the 1993 marching band show.

Senior Megan Mahoney joined Dance Line to get one last chance to work with choreographer Mrs. Jean Sorbera on the football field rather than the stage where Mrs. Sorbera had choreographed the dance routines for many of the recent musicals. Megan found her dance experience to be challenging and rewarding. She loves to dance and is thrilled that in her senior year she had one last chance to be a member of "Legs and Company".

Color Guard is not just another activity for Sharon Coates who considered the group an extension of her regular family. Getting the group together in ten short weeks was difficult at times, but taking charge by being a leader has helped her to grow as a person. As each football game approached or the next parade rolled around, this captain wondered and worried if the girls would remember the routine that she had taught. "Color guard has given me my own sense of accomplishment," stated Sharon. "I can say with pride that I helped the girls to do their best."

Both of these spirited groups were a big asset to the Marching Band program and contributed to the band's winning second place in the Columbus Day Parade in New York City.

Standing proudly, the Color Guard stood at attention as they awaited the beginning of the awards ceremony at Hofstra University.

Struggling to win the baseball game, Peanuts characters

BREAK A TRADITION!

(top) Tim Hurt as Charlie Brown wished he could get his kite into the air.

As the lights came up on the stage, the audience heard the tinkling of a music box as a giant comic strip came into view. One-by-one, the characters of the Peanuts comic strip came to life and took turns commenting on their friend Charlie Brown and his many problems. Tim Hurt had the challenge of portraying a character who always got the short end of the stick and managed to strike out at every important point in his life.

Tim's journey began with auditions when he had to sing, read a monologue, and say, "Good grief!" until he was blue in the face. Defeating the competition, Tim, the treasurer of Thespian Troupe 2963, was selected to play the lead of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Perhaps the most difficult job that Tim and the rest of the cast had was to learn how to portray children convincingly without appearing silly or fake.

The backstage crew's task was equally challenging as it constructed oversized furniture and children's blocks in an attempt to give a cartoon flavor to the set. Set designer, Mrs. C. Jones and her crew made the stage look like a page out of the funny papers. Senior crew member, Laurie Stack, loved watching the scramble as the performers searched for hats and robes.

The Thespian Troupe went out on a limb by breaking tradition and performing a musical in the fall. Judging from the applause as the last notes of "Happiness" faded away, it was a risk definitely worth taking.

FRIEND IN NEED!

When faced with the pressures of school work, car accidents, and future plans, where do students go for help. According to Ray Fifield, they reached out for help and support from the friendly staff of the Peer Support Help organization. Always there to lend a hand, the Peer Support Help members were "Friends who helped us through a crisis," said Ray. "Their advice was solid and their intentions were of the most noble kind." Ray was just one of many students who not only has turned to the Peer Support Help program for help but was also a member of the staff. "We're just caring people helping each other out." Mr. J. McGowan was there for us, to guide us, and to handle the really tough problems. He, along with his staff, were devoted to their jobs and to making life more bearable for students who are finding it difficult to cope with life's problems. "If it weren't for the Peer Support Help program," said Ray, "many students would be left to struggle through their problems alone. It's one of the best service organizations in the building."

(right) Mr. McGowan helped Judy Bonilla with a problem she was having in school.

The Peer Support Program has continued to grow in size, year after year.

To the members of the S.A.D.D. organization even a single death is a TRAGEDY!

Through the eyes of president Dana Rappaport, S.A.D.D. is no ordinary after-school activity. "My goal in S.A.D.D. was to alert members of my school and community about the dangers of driving drunk. I also wanted to increase awareness and knowledge of statistics, which must be a part of every growing person's life, in order to abate the growing number of fatalities every year." She had an experience where she knew three people who had died because someone had a few drinks at a social gathering. "This reason alone has made me want to educate all the ignorant people in this world who say that the lethal mix of drinking and driving can never happen to them because they have total control." Dana felt that S.A.D.D. was growing and people were beginning to take her message more seriously. Many students joined because they decided to be a part of the solution and not part of the problem. As quoted from their Bay Shore shirts, "A SINGLE DEATH IS A TRAGEDY, BUT A MILLION DEATHS ARE A STATISTIC".

Out of the chaos and confusion there can be heard the SOUNDS OF HARMONY!

What sound! What tone! What harmony! Bay Shore High School Choir excelled in everything it did. Making sweet sounds for all musical functions, beginning with Christmas Carols and ending with graduation, was among the choir's main goals this year.

Under the direction of Dr. C. Morrow, the choir has really grown in size, power, and tone. There existed this year a crescendoing alto section, a glass-shattering soprano section, and a thundering male section.

One of the longest standing members was Jonathan Navratil who has been working on developing his voice over the past four years. He stated, "I feel that I contributed to the choir and made it sound a little better. I'm no Bing Crosby or anything, but I did my share. The choir and Dr. C. Morrow have enabled me to refine my voice and improve its quality."

For Jonathan Navratil the choir is just one of the many things that will never be the same for him in the future.

Dr. C. Morrow conducted a "hands on" session.

Jumping out at you with an explosive array of harmonies the Madrigals and the Men's Chorus did their best to tantalize their audiences' eardrums. The Madrigals and Men's Chorus had the dedication and motivation to sound their best by blending beautiful harmonies from popular Broadway shows and classical favorites.

For Tasha Morales, Madrigals was a way of breaking away from the mainstream choir and exploring her true singing capabilities. This was true for the rest of the Madrigals. As for the type of music that they sing, Tasha said, "We all loved the different types of music Dr. Morrow chose for us. It was always kind of charming and never really boring".

Another vocal group was the Men's Chorus. For Jason Berrios this group gave him an opportunity to show off his talent in four spectacular solos and allowed him and the other members to learn to produce perfect vocal harmony.

Madrigals and Men's Chorus helped to make the year truly worthwhile and enjoyable for these vocal students.

(top left)The Madrigals' harmony was so smooth that it was hard to tell where one voice ended and another began.

*As the lights dimmed, the director bellowed,
"Lights, camera, ACTION!"*

Would you believe that by 1995 the students of Bay Shore High School could be listening to their very own school radio station and watching their own television station? Both of these projects are currently being investigated by the brand new audio-visual club, Sights and Sounds.

Under the supervision of Mr. R. O'Neill, club members sent letters to various electronics suppliers requesting donations of equipment so that it would be possible for them to learn how to start a radio station and make professional-looking films.

Sights and Sounds president, Kari Wireman, felt that the club provided her with the challenge of overseeing the production of a video retrospective of life in the High School. The goal of the group was to capture small moments in the lives of the student population in an attempt to weave them into a film which represented the true spirit of the student body. To ensure that this formidable task saw its way to a successful completion, Kari's presence was required nearly every day after school in order to supervise the decisions of the members as to which film clips would be included in the final video. Stay tuned for further developments!

Kari Wireman and Rich Barcia watched intently as Rob Luckert and Ron Schmidt made adjustments on a piece of equipment.

Policy changes, late breaking news stories, and theater reviews kept the newspaper staff ON ITS TOES!

The school paper, the Maroon Echo, was responsible for communicating with the entire staff and student body. This goal required the strenuous task of covering all of the important school events, along with the latest issues in the news, and viewpoints and opinions of students themselves. However, the publication wasn't strictly news; creative works, horoscopes, cartoons, sports, and entertainment reviews were also included.

This year's staff was especially enthusiastic, dedicated, and successful in producing a paper in which every student could find something exciting and relevant to read. Junior Gina Calia was eager to take on the job of Editor-in-Chief of the Maroon Echo because she felt that this was a golden opportunity to be able to make a difference in an important school publication. While she was learning more about journalism, she also found herself growing closer to more of the student body. Gina's goals for this year included increasing staff involvement in the construction of the paper, the creation of press cards which would grant staff special privileges, and the overall increase of interest and enthusiasm towards the school paper.

Staff member Vicki Perez commented, "Gina has done a great job. I don't know what we would have done without her!"

(top) Kim Bruno, Phaeryn Phillips, Dawn Zuchtman, Kim Macey, Deana Perrone, Gina Calia, Vicki Perez, Elizabeth Germano, and Jen Rajkowski, and Advisor Mr. C. Litwin took great pride in their publication.

PICASSO and DAVINCI!

A thousand rubber bands, lots of dye, and a couple of Fruit of the Loom tee shirts, were what began this year's art club's venture.

Fifteen students who shared an interest in art evoked visions of life in the sixties with colorful tie dyes. For two sessions they were twisting rubber bands around their once ivory tees. After dipping different sections with various colors, the shirts lit up the room with amazing tie dyed designs that would put the Grateful Dead to shame. "It was a great idea to start the year off like this," said Jason Ramos. "Not only did we learn how to make these shirts, but we used the money for other projects such as making promotional buttons and painting the mural."

Everyone agreed that this project was tremendous fun. The ideas of the club's new advisor, Ms. S. Sykes, were spirited, fresh, and innovative, and they helped to make this year's art club productive and successful.

Stacy Pinkham and Ann Najdek couldn't believe their eyes when they removed their rubber bands from their shirts.

ENTREPRENEURS!

Patricia Micallef, Jen Stange, and Anne Cassara collected and sorted food for the annual Thanksgiving Food Drive.

As soon as the two o'clock bell rang, students scrambled for a seat as the Future Business Leaders of America meeting began. President Jennifer Stange called the meeting to order. Then she reminded the group of its purpose: To raise money to help the community and to send the FBLA members to competitions. The intensity built as she described their success in the Thanksgiving Food Drive where they helped a needy family.

During the course of the year, their Santa Letters were a huge hit with all the kids in the elementary schools, and they were extremely successful at competitions where they used their business sense to compete in keyboarding, marketing, and accounting activities.

Jen Stange really appreciated this year's group of F.B.L.A. members and felt confident they all would put their skills to good use when they enter the job market.

President Jennifer Stange conferred with her officers before the start of one of their weekly meetings.

(right)Gathering around the flagpole, members of the Bible study group prayed silently for a successful and safe school year.

"When God began creating the heavens and the earth, the earth was a shapeless chaotic mass". (Genesis 1:1). This was part of the curriculum for a unique course and afterschool activity. Realizing the importance of the Bible as both a literary and historical work the Bible Study club met each week to analyze and interpret passages from various books of the Bible. This group was started when secretary Melissa Mountain's church youth group decided to form an afterschool study group to give kids at local area schools a chance to learn about the Bible in a more comfortable atmosphere. Melissa was interested in this particular church event because she wanted to study the Bible in an environment where she could ask questions and learn more about her fellow students' viewpoints. What Melissa enjoyed most was an event called "See You At The Pole" which was a nationwide meeting that gave her and the members a chance to pray for the school year and the school's members around the flagpole. Melissa, with the help of Mr. F. Fontinell and the elected officials Tonya Mancini, president, Jeanette Lania, treasurer, Tim Hurt, student council representative, Jill Gwinn, student advisor, has helped Bible Study grow in size and in enthusiasm during its second year at Bay Shore.

Familiar Faces

Wherever our roaming photographer went, he encountered the faces of students enjoying the camaraderie of good friends. These high school years go by so quickly and will never be like this again. (Starting at the top) Everyone tried to get into the picture in the cafeteria, coming out of the auditorium, or showing their art work to Mrs. Schwartz.

Senior Class "Top Ten"

Jessica Loudon

The most memorable part of being a student here has been her involvement in the Honor Society, Student Council, Peer Support, and A.I.D.S. Educators. In the future Jessica hopes to pursue her interest in art, photography, and biology.

Ming-Li Wang

Ming-Li is involved in Mock Trial, Interact club, and the National Honor Society. She especially enjoys playing her violin in Orchestra.

Elizabeth Heering

Known for her involvement in Mock Trial and her dedication to Peer Support and A.I.D.S. Awareness Teaching, Liz is proud of her accomplishments in high school. She is anxious to start college and wishes the senior class luck in the future.

Oscar Montano

Oscar is proud of the recognition and awards he has received from Hofstra University, the Hispanic Youth Conference, and a scholarship from Dowling. Majoring in structural engineering, he hopes to open his own engineering firm.

Michelle Graham

Aiming to become a corporate lawyer, Michelle has worked as part of the Mock Trial Team. She also was a member of the field hockey and lacrosse teams and the co-president of the Interact Club.

Christie Driscoll

Besides her accomplishments as class Vice-President, Christie is proud of her involvement in the soccer, basketball, Student-Athlete Leadership, and SADD programs.

*Vipul
Sawhney*

Vipul is a diverse student who participates in equally diverse activities. He is the president of the chess team, has played two years of volleyball, and is also involved with the Maroon Echo, computer club, and the mathematics team.

*Jennifer
Stange*

For Jennifer, who plans on becoming an accountant, her fondest memories of her high school years centered around her experiences with the Marching Band, F.B.L.A., Honor Society, and Interact.

Dana Rappaport

Despite adversities, Dana managed to excel academically, keep busy in after school activities, and grow as a person. She feels that her years at Bay Shore were blessed ones, for they prepared her for the "real world".

*John E.
Ehlers*

Tom managed to maintain a straight A average while playing basketball, soccer, and baseball. Tom was also President of the National Honor Society, and a member of the Student Athlete Leadership Program, SADD, and Peer Support.

Things will never be the same for these folks (starting at the top) at the Junior Dinner Dance, hanging out at a locker, working on a mask in art class, hanging out by the cafeteria, all dressed up for an evening out, and improving legal skills.

Learning not to judge people by their FACES

"We met the Faces group at the 'Somos el Futuro' conference in March," Mildred Rivera explained. From that moment she and Thalia Lopez saw that the real life situations portrayed by the group were happening right in Bay Shore High School. "We thought it would be a good idea to bring this group to Bay Shore. We wanted to show other Spanish students that they could make a difference in their school and community," stated Millie. After the conference in March, the girls, with help from Mrs. M. Petralia, arranged for a presentation by Faces. When the day finally came, the auditorium was filled with screams and laughter as the crowd watched the group perform a series of skits and scenes addressing the social and emotional issues which all teenagers face everyday.

After the presentation the Little Theater was opened to all for a question and answer period. "The input we got from the students was great," said Thalia. Mildred added, "I was surprised to see how many people came. We were very pleased that this event went over so well. Hopefully, more Spanish students will now get involved in the school's activities."

(above)One purpose of Faces was to show those typical emotions high school students experience. Here the crew demonstrated anger, frustration, and friendship.

Do you hear what I HEAR?

All of the orchestra members shared a common bond- a love of good music.

"Music is my salvation. It is the only thing that fulfills my life. I do it to make my life happy not because anyone is expecting it from me," said junior Lena Mercado who played the viola and was in the All- State choir and a cast member in the annual musical.

Mike Vannoni, a junior who played first chair in the Long Island Youth Orchestra with Frances Sorrentino, has continued his music for different reasons. Mike said, "Music for me is the only way to express myself. I love entertaining people." The members of the orchestra work hard to fulfill their own love of music, but most importantly they bring it to people through concerts and plays. The stars of the orchestra stand out and are recognized for their talents by being picked to attend the All State Orchestra in Albany. This year Mike Vannoni, Frances Sorrentino, Julie Kim, and Laura Jemison all attended the All State Orchestra.

New talent is discovered through the orchestra each year and undoubtedly this tradition will live on.

New Faces, New Talents, New Ideas all coming together for an unbelievable year. As unique as a snowflake an orchestra may have the same songs and instruments but never the same personality.

Members of the violin section rehearsed by themselves.

(top)Ming-Li Wang was one of many violinists who have remained an important part of the orchestral program throughout her years in Bay Shore.

For the advanced orchestra students who wanted to go beyond the level of instruction in the regular orchestra class, the String Ensemble was a viable alternate. Expanding their repertoire beyond the traditional orchestral music, the string ensemble students were given the opportunity to play rock and jazz as well as classical pieces.

The String Ensemble's schedule required students to meet once a week for two hours after school. "It was definitely for the more dedicated and serious students. I got a chance to learn more than I could have in orchestra. For instance, I learned to play the viola," Katie Hurt commented.

Although it was opened to every member of orchestra, only about twelve members volunteered. Mike Vannoni stated, "I wanted to join because I've decided to major in music in college and felt the experience it gave me was beneficial."

The String Ensemble program allowed many students to receive recognition for their musical accomplishments by participating in SCMEA and NYSSMA.

There's nothing like the blend of brass and percussion to keep the SPIRIT ALIVE!

The fusillade of sound heard emanating from the auditorium was the percussion section of the Concert Band warming up for another rehearsal. With over two-hundred musicians enrolled in the band program this year, the concert band had to be split into two groups because of limited rehearsal space.

Four year veteran, Jennifer Ewald learned a great deal from her experiences over the years. She discovered that the freshmen looked up to the senior members of the band as role models. Mutual respect and cooperation were the prerequisites that Jennifer believed were necessary of every successful band member. She was disappointed that she would probably never again belong to such a closely-knit group as the band.

Whichever section was performing on stage, the concert band's music was always loud and strong enough to keep the spirit alive.

(above)Percussionists, Peter Oosterom, and Tricia Moore, concentrated on their counting of each measure to ensure their entrances were correct.

As the conductor raised his baton, audience members at the Pops Concert found themselves transported back into the time of jazz greats such as Duke Ellington, Dizzy Gillespie, and other great jazz musicians in an effort to keep the spirit of jazz alive.

Mr. T. Scalzo's Jazz Ensemble, made up of exceptional musicians who auditioned for a spot in the group, diligently practiced every Thursday evening to achieve the maximum sound possible. Their sister group, the Jazz Lab, conducted by Mr. T. Nigrelli, consisted of generally younger students who wished to someday become a member of the acclaimed Jazz Ensemble.

Through his trombone Anton Fiala felt that the Jazz Ensemble provided "a means of expressing my feelings and at the same time improving my talents." The members agreed with Anton when he said, "Being allowed to have time for free play took the pressure off after working so hard."

Together, both of these jazz groups helped the serious music student achieve an appreciation of jazz and at the same time expand their talents in this area to their fullest potential.

COURT

Mrs. Dipane and Greg Siben couldn't believe the shot that Mr. J. McGowan took.

No, this time the cops weren't out getting a doughnut and a cup of coffee. This time the police were on Bay Shore High School's basketball court helping raise money for our SADD Chapter. Students, teachers, and the police athletic league battled it out on the court to the delight of the spectators. After losing the first game to the police, the students rallied to beat the teachers in the second game with three seconds left. "The game was great, and we all had a lot of fun," said Tom Ehlers. "Beating the teachers was our way to get back at them, to show them who the real boss is," quipped Bryan Hodge. Randi Paige, however, was quite disappointed with the number of fans who showed up to cheer on the teams. She had hoped that a lot more students would attend. Advisor Mr. W. Rattiger stated, "If we kept one person who was drinking from getting behind the wheel of a car, then we did our job."

All in all the students who were in attendance realized that the police just aren't the "bad guys" that everyone stereotypes them to be. They weren't out to get everyone. Instead they played hard and proved who was the fastest on the court.

Douglas Stack and Judy DiMatteo displayed their goals for our oceans.

Clean our oceans! Save the earth! Programs have been created to save the dolphins, recycle rubber tires, and make better use of plastic bottles and containers.

Approximately eight environmentally concerned students, under the leadership of their advisor, Mr. F. Pitelli, made up the Environmental Club. Sophomore, Judy DiMatteo stressed the urgency of the present environmental status when she said, "It is up to our generation to control the destiny of our environment. For this reason, I decided to get involved with this organization to try and help."

On the agenda for the club were trips to Jones Beach State Park to plant beach grass in an effort to combat the ongoing cycle of beach erosion. The group focused its attention on environmental issues on Long Island and specifically in the Bay Shore area. This year for the first time, the members in cooperation with the Adopt-A-Highway program, signed a contract which stated that they were responsible for the upkeep of the Bay Shore Railroad Station and the surrounding area. This project required the group's commitment to cleaning up that area eight times over the next two years. The club also dedicated itself to teaching children about how to recycle paper and planned to adopt a portion of threatened Rain Forest.

Through their efforts the environment was in good hands.

LIKE THIS AGAIN!

What words could sum up the way that the members of the yearbook courses felt when they were searching for an appropriate theme for the '94 Marauder? After many discussions "It will never be like this again" was selected, and the seniors in the classes felt that was how they felt about their last year in the High School. Plans for the yearbook started before the end of last school year as arrangements were made for senior portraits. When they returned in September, advisors, Mrs. C. Jones and Mr. J. D'Antoni, along with the newly formed yearbook courses, got to work immediately selecting a theme, designing a cover and planning an opening layout. The next thing to do was select an editor-in-chief, someone who had experience working on all levels of the publication and could handle the pressures and responsibilities of meeting deadlines and coordinating a large staff. Alison Roth accepted the challenge and took the reins eager to make a difference and anxious to introduce her own personal ideas.

For Alison, "It was a great honor to become the editor-in-chief and take over after Anne Simons and Jeff Bunge who graduated in June. I also enjoyed the experience of working closely with Mr. D. and Mrs. J. who amazed me with their versatile talents and ability to juggle such hectic schedules." The staff pitched right in with Alison, met its deadlines, and worked to achieve the impossible- a brand new yearbook that would be like no other.

Perseverance paid off. Friendships were made in the yearbook office, and memories were created and preserved. For this hardworking staff, it was a year that indeed would never be like this again.

Alison Roth carefully proofread each name in the underclassmen section so that the deadline could be met in time.

Tara Turpel watched closely as Megan Tortora decided how to lay out the pictures in the opening section.

When the Judge took his place on the bench, the lawyers and witnesses felt a rush of adrenaline as the court was called to order.

The mock trial team did just as its name suggested, they acted out cases to be judged in a class courtroom competition. Countless hours of preparation were required, and our young attorneys jumped right into the work. Meeting at least three times a week, the team worked hard gathering testimonies and preparing briefs for their trial.

"When the time came for the first decision the courtroom was so quiet you could have heard a pin drop, but when the judge gave his decision that changed pretty fast," said Vicki Perez after Bay Shore's first win.

Ninth and tenth grade students who enjoyed practicing law were able to participate in Moot Court. Divided into teams which competed against each other, the students developed legal expertise and poise.

Under the proficient eye of Mr. R. Richardson, both teams improved and progressed while having fun. These two teams remained popular extra-curricula clubs.

POPULAR DEMAND

Filled with new ideas and people, the Student Government has returned from a brief hiatus. For years our school has had self-governing classes and finally they are all together as one, to improve school policies and the overall environment.

Freshman member of the Student Government, Jay Nagy, was thrilled that he got a chance to assume an active leadership role in the Thanksgiving Food Drive, which was designed to feed the needy families in Bay Shore. He was also a part of the Adopt-a-Family program enacted during the Christmas season. Jay got a sense of great satisfaction from the realization that he played a big part in helping the needy of our community. Another benefit of belonging to the Student Government Organization, especially as a freshman, was that it allowed Jay to interact and get to know students from each grade level.

The main purpose of the organization was to enable students to have a stronger voice in what goes on in the school. Mr. Consigli, a proponent of the program, presided over many of the meetings throughout the course of the year. In this forum students were able to express their feelings about certain rules and policies that the students wanted to see altered or instated.

This reborn organization was a welcome addition to the school because it provided a central arena in which students could make a difference in the school.

(middle) Claudia Cassidy rapidly recorded the ideas that were being thrust at her by Jessica Veith, Vanessa Varella, Luci Montalvo, and Melissa Cepeda so that they could be brought up at the next meeting.

Aprendiendo sobre nuestra cultura y lengua por medio del CLUB LATINO

When he heard the lively music with the familiar Latin beat coming from the new wing, Ed Acevedo searched the rooms and offices to find the source. Finally, in one room he found the Latino Club in full swing. He saw students laughing, dancing, and having a good time. "I decided to go in and see if I could get involved. I was welcomed warmly, and I'm glad that I decided to go."

The Latino Club was designed to get Latin American students together to have a good time by listening to music, dancing, and taking trips. It was a great place to hang out and learn more about their Latin American culture. It was educational and fun at the same time. Ed said, "It was a great way to meet new friends, who have the same background as you and learn more from them." He added, "It's great to be able to speak in Spanish the whole time that I am there." Involvement in the club has opened up new doors for him and many other students who were anxious to learn more about their heritage and language.

(top) Ramon Gomez, Edwin Acevedo, Rocia Naranjo, and Eddie Morales discussed their favorite Latino music groups. (above) "Put your arm on my waist and watch my feet," instructed Daniza Rodriguez who taught Alex Taveras how to dance Latino style.

The entire Latino Club gathered with advisor, Mrs. A. Rivera, for a group picture.

(below) Tom Ehlers lit Haslyn Howard's candle to signify his official induction into the society.

Earning a 3.7 grade point average, while participating in school activities, maintaining involvement in the community, and getting sufficient sleep, is not an easy task, but those were the requirements of the students in the National Honor Society.

As in past years, 1994 saw the society help its school and community. "During the Open House, we helped parents of the high school students find their rooms. We also sold food and drinks to raise money for the Make-a-Wish Foundation," member Roberto Suarez said. "And this year we expanded a tutoring program for the high school students."

The members of the society did what they could to help the community. "This year we visited the Hospice Center, where we cleaned and raked for people who needed someone to help them," Roberto said.

It wasn't easy for the members of the Honor Society to juggle their hectic schedules, but the satisfaction they received was reward enough.

Making a difference by getting INVOLVED!

When it came to thinking of the welfare of others and getting involved in the community, no other club did it like Interact. This club had a great year, spreading good cheer and happiness at a senior citizens' Christmas dance, visiting children and the elderly at local hospitals, and raising money to support its activities.

"This fifth year of the organization was its most dynamic year because of a group of wonderful students, that was truly committed to community service," said Mrs. M. Petralia, advisor of the club. During the past year co-presidents Ming-Li Wang and Michelle Graham, with assistance from the other members of the club, worked to publish the first edition of the Beacon, a newsletter for Bay Shore senior citizens.

The group also joined Suffolk County's Habitat for Humanity program. Throughout April the members collaborated with other organizations to build a house for needy families in North Bay Shore. This was the first time that a Habitat For Humanity House was built by high school students.

Interact has continued making a big difference in the community.

Advisor, Mrs. M. Petralia and Interact members Alido Negron, Matt Walters, Angelica Vega, Marci Rothman, and Carlos Torres huddled together as they braved the cold to raise money for their Habitat for Humanity project.

The members of Interact: Jason Ouffre, Jason Jacyszyn, Priti Karla, Ming-Li Wang, Alido Negron, Carlos Torres, Mrs. M. Petralia, advisor, Michelle Melendez, Jennifer Stange, Julia Kim, Michelle Graham, Melissa Cepeda, Kathy Kuit, Annisha Nazir, Anne Marie Cassara, and Chenoa Brathwaite.

Julia Kim and Michelle Graham discussed the plans for the annual April in Paris Ball with Ming-Li Wang, Anne Marie Cassara, Jennifer Stange, and Michelle Melendez.

CULTURAL AWARENESS!

Working to resolve issues that pertain to Black and Latino students, the Brothers and Sisters Organization for Student Scholarships under the leadership of co-advisors, Mr. N. Certain and Mr. C. Jones, met twice a week to hear guest speakers and plan fund raisers.

Many students opted to become members of BSOSS in order to develop leadership qualities, build self-esteem, and learn about the history of African-Americans that textbooks neglect to mention.

"BSOSS sponsored a wide variety of activities for the promotion of the multi-cultural awareness and to encourage students in setting goals during and after high school," stated Mr. Certain. The advisors of BSOSS also believed the educational achievement of the children must be understood in terms of the situation which created different levels of motivation. They further believed that if we are to be successful in rearing of young children we cannot allow them to be measured by the standards set by racism in our society.

A YEAR FOR DECISION MAKING

Juniors faced a myriad of questions and issues that needed to be resolved during the year and which would have considerable impact on their futures. Besides worrying about the color of the stone in their class rings, juniors carefully decided which courses to take and which to drop. Since their records would be scrutinized by college admissions boards, these choices had to be weighed carefully and precisely. A wrong selection may have eliminated someone from a prospective college.

It quickly became apparent to juniors that this grade was perhaps the most important in their high school careers. SAT exams must be taken and must be viewed as a screening tool in the college selection process.

As juniors began to realize that their high school career was rapidly drawing to a close, they made plans to make their remaining time as memorable as possible because they realized that it would never be like this again.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS WORKED TO MAKE THIS A SPECIAL YEAR.

Junior Dinner Dance — A Wonderful Evening

Under the leadership of class president Kristina Nifora, the Junior class planned many events which included trips, outings, dances, and computer dating for Valentine's Day. The largest of these events was the annual Holiday Dinner Dance.

The members of the class, dressed in everything from suits and dresses, to jeans and t-shirts, enjoyed themselves in the elaborately decorated cafeteria, where the DJ spun everything from "The Village People" to "Inner Circle."

"The members of the junior class worked very hard," said Mr. A. Sullivan as he snapped photos of couples in a corner, away from the dance floor. Junior Anthony Sanchez agreed, "It took a lot of work to plan and prepare for the dance, but it was worth it. Everyone had a good time."

Most of the food served at the dance was prepared by parents and the class officers, which helped make the event more profitable.

Overall, the dance was a big success with the junior class making a nice profit to help defray the costs of upcoming events.

Mr. A. Sullivan and Mr. F. Caputo got together to enjoy an evening out with the junior class.

EVERY STUDENT FACED A VARIETY OF PRESSURES.

Learning to cope!

People always say the high school years are the best years of our lives, but as every high school student knows they are also the most stressful. The many pressures we face each day can give anyone a splitting headache.

The pressure starts in ninth grade when freshmen worry about fitting in and how their going to survive through four years of high school. The sophomores' pressures start when they realize that time is going too fast and the time to get serious about school is NOW. The pressures also increase as sophomores vie for slots on junior varsity and varsity teams. Juniors face pressures as the reality of college and standardized tests sets in. The junior year is regarded as the most important year and it is when the grades count the most. And in the last year the pressures get even worse. Selecting a college, checking on credits for graduation, improving S.A.T. scores, and visiting the place where they will live for the next four years are among the most stressful issues facing seniors. The worst thought and fear for seniors comes with the realization that they have to enter the real world and start to face a whole new set of pressures.

With all of these pressures pounding at them it's a wonder that more students don't suffer a complete nervous breakdown. So how do students deal with the pressures that develop in our lives?

Some remedies for relieving pressure were going for long walks, sitting alone in a room listening to music, or going for a drive to no place special. Kerri Harris said that she dances around the house with the music up loud. While Bobby Hawkins screams into a pillow to get all the frustration out of his mind.

Although the methods may vary, all students have some system or plan to help them deal with the stressful situations posed by being a teenager in today's world.

RELAX AND HAVE A GOOD TIME.

Hey, what's going on this weekend? Are there any parties? What are you doing this Saturday night? How about seeing a movie?

On Fridays students seem to spend more time discussing weekend plans than worrying about tests and homework assignments. For many the weekend is a perfect ending to a tough week of school when students have time to just "hang out" or relax with friends.

Junior Tim Hurt said that he likes spending time with his girlfriend during the weekend. For John Mulqueen, "The weekend is the only time for me to relax and get my mind off school." For most students waking up between six and seven o'clock in the morning for school is a hassle and a routine from which they long to escape. "The weekend gives me a chance to sleep in and get more shut-eye," said junior Bob Hawkins. "During the weekend, I get a chance to stay out longer and do more things", said Tanya Mancini.

Other than sleeping in and relaxing near home, some students enjoy getting away on weekends to go skiing. Whenver life seems to be getting to be too much to handle, there's no need to worry because weekend can't be too far off. By the way, what are you doing this weekend?

The MARAUDERS ACHIEVED THEIR GOALS

Athletic activities have always been a large component of high school for many students although each person usually had different reasons for participating. Some chose to compete in order to make new friends; others elected to play in an effort to experience the thrill of victory; and others just enjoyed the exercise! The Bay Shore Marauders have a long tradition of excellence in both athletic ability and sportsmanship. The 1993-1994 season was no exception. The Marauders put their all into every pitch, kick, serve, sprint, pass, flip, and pin, and for this reason they were able to achieve all of their goals.

SPORTS FILE

Contrary to popular belief, there is a lot more to spring track than running in circles. Field events such as the 100 meter dash, 1 mile run, shotput, and the pole vault were also integral elements.

The girls' team began the season with the honor of five members garnering national status. Melanie Mickle, Chante Daily, Erin Hayes, and Jackie Pasquerella were all a part of the Distance Medley Relay winning squad, and along with Emily Germano, captured second place in the 4 X 800 event. These acknowledgements provided the entire team with a greater sense of pride and determination.

The boys' team, led by captains Orden Roberts and Randolph Howard, were driven to success with the goal of maintaining the outstanding winning tradition of Marauder track teams of the past. At the start of the season, the team's captains realized their long term goals, "Our objective is to build on last season's improvements and become league champions."

With the talent and determination that was possessed by both teams, it was no surprise that for the Marauders of the track team, the sky was the limit.

Boys' Tennis RAPID RETURNS

In the minds of many people, tennis is more of a leisure sport than a competitive one. In fact, the sport is so competitive that for the first time in Bay Shore's history a ninth grade female, Tracy Forsythe, played on the team in order to maintain her ability level. It requires its athletes to be quick on their feet, and agile. Newcomer James Wyss stated, "Without speed and agility, you'd be an easy target when you set foot on the courts."

The team had a hard time getting the season started due to bad weather. On the first day of tryouts, there was snow on the courts, and only a few got the chance to play. Many times practice was held in coach Mr. J. Morrison's classroom because of the weather. Finally, when the weather decided to cooperate, it was another great season for the entire team.

Brad Callahan demonstrated his powerful forehand.

FLYING HIGH

Senior Catherine Napolitano intimidated Bay Shore's oppositon with her powerful hit.

"All we need is a setter, and we will be on our way," were the comments of captains, Jaime Pasquerella and Rafaela Nikas at the beginning of their season. With the loss of three setters from the previous year, this position was essential to refill.

The varsity team carried a very young squad with little experience, however, this one little factor didn't stop the team. Their determination for success carried on throughout the season to the playoffs. "Once we found our setter everything else fell into place," commented coach Ms. E. Eckman.

With the addition of freshmen to the junior varsity program, this year's team added a lot of depth that will continue to grow in the future.

Captains Rafaela Nikas and Jaime Pasquerella led the team's offense with their power hitting.

Octavia Brown set up in the box to get another base hit.

During the year it was a common occurrence to see the girls of the softball team wearing shirts and jackets which displayed their pride in themselves and the softball program.

Returning players, All-American catcher Karen Dromerhauser, All-State shortstop Allyson Johnson, and All-County pitcher Jennifer Hulse, led the team to yet another winning season. Along with their other defensive and offensive players, they succeeded in bringing victory to their team and school.

At the beginning of the season, the players had high expectations as they opened up their season with their annual invitational against Sachem, Herricks, and Lindenhurst, some of the best teams in the county.

Team captain Jennifer Hulse stated, "This year we accomplished so much more than we expected. During the four years in which I have played on this team, I have grown both as a player and a person. I will certainly miss this tradition of excellence."

Christine Dibble showed the proper technique of how to catch the ball in the middle of your body.

With many returning veterans from last year's squad and a few rookies, this team was strong and confident. The team had not won a league title in over thirteen years and hadn't made the playoffs since 1984. Senior Ray Fifield, however, was positive, "This year we have the talent and potential of being a league contender, making the playoffs, and going beyond".

Leading this year's solid defense were seniors: Brian Dieumegard, Greg Murray, Eric Dieckmann, and John Stafford. Seniors, Codell Castillo, Nick Bradley, Steve Wolfort and sophomore Matt Junior provided speed and strength in the Bay Shore outfield. A dynamic pitching staff, which consisted of starters Paul Ramos, Tom Ehlers, and Ray Fifield and relievers Eric Fesefeldt and Zach Humphrey, stood tall on the mound knocking down competition left and right. On the receiving end of this battery were catchers Ken Milton and Andy Sennes.

With fourteen veterans and six rookies the team sought to rebound from last season's 8-10 record in order to head toward the playoffs. Ken Milton stated, "We've played together for five years now, and we've finally started to play as a team."

The J. V. team, coached by Mr. V. Agoglia, looked forward to yet another outstanding season with players who were to become the backbone of future varsity teams.

ROBBING THE CRADLE

As the snow fell, the members of the lacrosse team were running through the flurries to continue their practice. Neither rain nor snow could keep the players from getting into shape for another grueling season of what many consider to be the fastest sport on two feet. Anyone who has seen a Bay Shore game knows this to be true! The 1994 season got off to a promising start despite the loss of about eleven starters from last year. Due to their extensive need to re-build, their practices were exhausting with long distance runs and intense stick technique drills. After capturing the fifth place position out of the twenty contending teams in Suffolk County last season, the Marauder Lacrosse team never wanted the first place ranking more.

Junior Tim Hurt was anxious to get the season started following his involvement in the theater program and marching band. "Lacrosse is a very important part of my life," said Tim who enjoys scrambling it up with his teammates on the field.

Coach Mr. J. Cody was very optimistic about the JV squad which he felt was "young and talented." He hoped that the team would have at least a .500 season. Varsity coach Mr. T. Cox shared Mr. Cody's enthusiasm for his team which he also felt was very talented. With the right attitude this turned out to be another winning season.

The good lacrosse player had to always be alert so that he could aid in the defensive movement.

Senior Class "Top Ten"

Michael Rodriguez

Michael was a four year varsity starter on the boys' soccer team. He was named to the all-league team three times and the all-conference/ county teams for two years. He played for the U.S. national team and holds the Bay Shore shutout record.

Jed Stocks

Jed's success in wrestling and lacrosse enabled him to grow as a person during his high school years. In his weight class he received all-league honors for two years. As an all-conference goalie he led the lacrosse team's defense to the big six in 1993.

Rafaela Nikas

As a four year starter for varsity soccer, Rafaela was named to the all-league/ county teams, as well as the team's captain and M.V.P. In volleyball she was all-county and also competed in the New York State Empire Games and U.S.V.B.A., a Long Island elite team.

Jennifer Hulse

As a three sport varsity athlete, Jenn accomplished many honors. After being named to the all-county honorable mention team she went on to be all-county in track. As a four year starter on the varsity softball team, she became an all-county pitcher.

Cathy Longo

After competing at the varsity level for six years, Cathy achieved every award possible in field hockey. She was the team captain since her sophomore year and led the team to many victories. The highlight of her career was being named to the all-state team in her senior year.

Tom Ehlers

Balancing his time as a three-sport varsity athlete was something Tom did very well. He achieved such honors as all-conference in soccer and all-county in basketball. As basketball team captain in his senior year, Tom contributed to many league championships.

Michelle Graham

After dedicating a lot of her time to field hockey and lacrosse, Michelle was honored with the Suffolk Zone scholar athlete award. She was named to field hockey's all-division/classification teams and was lacrosse's unsung hero.

Orden Roberts

Competing in three varsity sports was the most rewarding part of high school for Orden. He was named to the all-league soccer team for two years and basketball for one. In track he was named to the all-county team for two years and was the team's M.V.P.

April Carhart

After dedicating most of her time to field hockey and softball, April achieved many honors to be proud of. She led the field hockey team's defense acting as an iron curtain in the net and was named to the all-state team.

Brian Dieumegard

As captain of the football and baseball teams, Brian provided a model for success. His determination for a winning season earned him the utmost respect of his fellow athletes and his leadership ability will be greatly missed.

RAGING MARAUDERS

Jillian Murray grimaced as the ball landed in her stick.

The female Marauders took the field with tenacity and strength to again play on the varsity and JV levels. With their returning offensive stars, Amanda Mazzarella, Pamela Seebald, Gayle Gregory, Melissa Mayer, and Olga Megas, the girls were ready to take on any opponents on the field. The team's returning defense players, award winners Michelle Graham and Laurie Jao, kept the opposing team away from its net throughout another action-packed season.

Their stick skills and cardiovascular conditioning were responsible for the team's success, but the most important asset was their teamwork. "Lacrosse has been an excellent learning experience, and this year has been one that has taught us the true meaning of teamwork and camaraderie," quoted Michelle Graham. This unity helped the girls' lacrosse team face tough competitors such as: Ward Melville, Huntington, Smithtown, and Harbor Fields. Gayle Gregory stated, "The whole is greater than the sum of its parts, and by looking at the quality and skill of our teammates and the dedication we possessed, we continued to maintain our winning tradition."

Girls' Basketball

A SPUNKY TEAM

Despite the loss of five dedicated seniors, the girls' varsity basketball team's 1993-1994 season was victorious! It may not have been evident in its win/loss percentage, but it certainly was victorious in the talent, energy, and character displayed on the court.

Led by captains Lisa Lowe and Ellie Gerdes, the team started its season with a 4-2 record. Other key players such as Allyson Johnson and "up-and-coming" Octavia Brown played major roles in the offense as well as the defense.

"Even though the team will again lose five players this year, our team has such a talented depth that they will definitely overcome and surpass its past record," commented captain Lisa Lowe.

Under the tutelage of Mr. F. Pitteli, the J.V. team also captured a successful season. While developing their dribbling, passing, and shooting skills the team displayed a lot of talent that they will continue to enhance at the varsity level in the years to come.

Lameka Brown's warmup before the game set fear in the hearts of the opposing team.

Many players and fans started the season off wondering just how successful the basketball teams would be minus some of their outstanding players who had graduated last June. Well, believe it or not, the basketball program did just as well if not better. The season boasted undefeated scores for both the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams. These have not been little victories or narrow margins. They were complete blow-outs and as one radio broadcaster announced to his listening public, "It's understandable why they are called the Marauders." Yes, the Marauder basketball teams continued their winning tradition with scores such as 105-66 against North Babylon and 75-54 against Center Moriches. Coach Mr. H. Powell led the J.V. team through their outstanding season, in which they became undefeated champs. Players on both teams can rest assured that they have been true to Bay Shore's winning tradition!

Orden Roberts appeared to have springs on his feet as he jumped to an eye-level position with the basket.

The audience was in awe of Bobby Hulse's outstanding layup.

Tommy Ehlers raced down the court with his opponent closely behind.

Oslin Gardner soared to the basket and completed a perfect layup.

Bowling A MENTAL GAME

Bowling is 85% mental, 10% physical, and 5% luck. With that to go on, the bowling team started its season with its first match eight to four against Bayport. It also went on to beat East Islip eleven to zero. Team captain Joey Camacho stated, "We have a great team and we are out to get all county." Team member Jason Berrios said, "With a team like this we can't lose."

Its true to say that Bay Shore had an outstanding year. All five starters averaged over 175, and their substitutes were right behind them. The pride of Bay Shore was within each and every player. They stuck together through thick and thin and picked each other up during a bad game. Thanks to coach Mr. J. Morrison, the team was good at what they did best. Striking and picking up spares for Bay Shore is what they loved doing.

SPRINTING ON!

The reigning county champions went into this year's season looking to add another championship to their already lengthy list of accomplishments. The turnout at the tryouts was exceptional with many new runners joining the teams. The girls' team was thrilled when it qualified to be invited to invitational meets hosted at Brown, Dartmouth, and Yale Universities. In each of the meets they placed among the top three in every event. Harriette Gardner broke the school record in the triple jump, and Sherisse Birch tied the school record in the hurdles. Captain Emily Germano said, "I'm going to miss this year's squad; I made special friendships with everyone. It's going to be a time to remember."

The boys' team was just as successful under the leadership of Coach Mr. G. Royce. Led by Kenny Milton, Peter Sheehan, and Phillip Vigliotta, the team was very competitive in its league. The team was respected throughout the county and earned that respect through its constant effort on and off the track.

Track has remained a strong sport for Bay Shore's athletes to excel. Their reputation has brought them recognition as fierce competitors.

Wrestling

FIERCE COMPETITORS!

Hulk Hogan, the Ultimate Warrior, and the Undertaker may be familiar names, but the REAL wrestlers were right here in Bay Shore. Grunting, rolling, and struggling to pin their opponents to the mat, these dedicated athletes proved themselves time and time again to be the real champions and heroes. They worked strenuously at each practice by running, hanging from the rafters for two minutes, and doing over 100 push-ups. Since wrestling is a one-on-one sport, the intensity felt by each player was greater than for other athletes. "Winning" was all that was on senior Jed Stocks's mind. John Stafford felt that wrestling placed more emphasis on the individual because there was no one else on the mat to help out.

In the Sachem tournament, these boys came out on top individually. Shawn Leggio and Chris Pfeffer placed first, Jeremy Davis second, Jed Stocks and John Stafford third, and John Ippolito fourth. Not only did the wrestlers strive to win individually, but they worked to contribute to a total team victory.

Girls' Soccer

ROUGH AND TOUGH

Amanda Mazzarella sacrificed her body to make yet another save for Bay Shore.

Bullying through Bellport's defense, Rafaela Nikas strives for another goal.

Twisting her body like a pretzel, Patti Owen fake out another defender.

Sweat, bruises, and a rough game, were three things the girls' varsity soccer team was accustomed to. "Watching the fans get into the game, it was funny to see them cringe everytime a girl got a bony elbow in the gut, or pushed to the ground," quoted captain Rafaela Nikas.

The players limped pass each other in the hallway proudly wearing their jersey's knowing in their minds that every ounce of pain would instantaneously go away once the whistle blew to start the next game. This was something to really admire that these teammates played with reckless abandonment, the score of the game always came first.

As the season came to a close so did an era of dedication from coach Mr. F. Pitteli. "Although my time has come to move on, I'm really going to miss these girls because I love these rough ones."

The JV team approached the field with the same ambition and determination on the first day of tryouts. With the hope of making the team, these fresh new faces tried their hardest to make an everlasting impression. According to coach Mr. V. Agoglia, "This team played with a lot of heart and they are expected to accomplish great things in the future."

There is one thing the Volleyball teams knew without a doubt. Volleyball was not for wimps! The games were tough and grueling, and the practices were even harder. Coach Ms. E. Eckman worked these boys until it hurt. "I knew the team was going to make it far this year. We played really well," stated Mike Smith. With a 12-4 record, the successful season made it especially rewarding for the seniors who have played on the volleyball team for the past four years. Tom DeLeon stated, "We've played together year after year and wanted to go out as champions!" The team has enjoyed playing together and winning each year. "I played the sport because I got to meet new people and played a game I really enjoyed," said member Pete Kramer.

When asked why he has played volleyball, Craig DeMott stated, "I liked the adrenalin rush that I got when I made a great play or when I blocked another player's spike." Whether it was the thrill of competition or the camaraderie among the players that brought this volleyball team together, they played with an intensity that was magnified throughout the season.

(middle)The players anxiously awaited as Craig DeMott leapt into the air and went for the kill.
(bottom)An intense Pete Kramer hit the ball over the net with amazing power.

Cross Country

A WINNING TRADITION

With the shot of the gun they were off to the races. This year's girls' and boys' cross country squads always finished ahead of the pack. Continuing their winning traditions, Coach Mr. L. Pena and captains Chante Daily and Emily Germano guided the girls' team to capture another league championship. They also competed at the state tournament and took third place. Newcomer Erin Hayes stated, "Being a new student, getting involved was a main thing for me and thanks to the team I got to make friends and enjoy running at the same time."

With last year's nucleus returning, the boys' team was ready to have another great season. Captain Phillip Vigliotta said, "Since most of the guys returned from last year I knew that we would have a good season." Both teams are up and coming, and they will keep up the tradition of winning at Bay Shore High.

Golf PERFECT TO A TEE!

(left) Matt LaPenta kept his eye on the ball as he brought his club up to swing.

Matt Ward displayed perfect form as he spotted the ball over his shoulder.

As Bryan Hodge hit the ball, he took time out to wink at a pretty girl passing by.

Sunshine, fresh air, and the great outdoors are the elements that make golf the fine game that it is. It's hard to say why one might play golf. "I play because it's pure unadulterated fun," Bryan Hodge stated. Matt LaPenta said, "I like playing because there is nothing better than dropping a thirty yard chip."

The Bay Shore golf team finished its season with an eight and four record. The start of the season was rough, but Coach Mr. T. Ford succeeded in bringing out the best in the players.

When asked what would never be the same for him again in terms of being a golfer at Bay Shore High School, Matt Ward said, "When we leave, we'll probably never play together again. That will never be the same."

The 1993 season and the friendships that were made on the golf course will never be forgotten by the members of the team.

Gymnasts

YOUNG AND DETERMINED

Endurance, strength, agility, and pride are among the many skills that are essential to every member of the boys' gymnastics team. With only one junior the rest of the team was composed of sophomores and freshmen.

Even though these boys were young, their team still remained among the top competitors in the division. Freshman Sean Mills stated, "Since most of us are underclassmen, we're waiting until we're seniors so we can dominate."

Led by their coach Mr. C. Carrasquillo, the players believed that they should never say they cannot do something because if they stopped believing in themselves they wouldn't accomplish anything. Coach Carrasquillo, an alumnus who graduated in 1987, knows what it takes to be the best.

Sophomore captains, Tommy O'Grady and Rob Knapp, led their team to victory. Michael Ludwigsen firmly believed, "We tried our hardest to be the best possible gymnasts that we could be." The boys on the gymnastics team may have been young, but they were still determined."

(bottom) Showing his innocent smile, Tommy O'Grady made doing a handstand on the parallel bars look easy.

Tennis GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP!

As opponents to the Varsity girls' Tennis team approached the tennis courts, their puzzled glances could be seen from afar, and their muffled giggles could be heard as well.

It was not the team that surprised them; however, it was the team's coach, Mr. J. Morrison. To set himself apart from the average coach, Mr. J. Morrison chose to sport a multi-colored beanie complete with a propeller! It was quite possible that this cap served as the team's good luck charm. The girls finished out the season with the second place title and the best sportsmanship award for their league. Team captain, Marci Rothman, felt that the team really worked hard to attain these recognitions, but the best part about the team was that all the players supported each other whether they won or lost. Coach Morrison said, "The team was characterized by a commitment to excellence and by a desire to perform as well as possible, which was evident in a winning record on the courts as well as the reception of the sportsmanship award given by Suffolk County. I am as proud of this team as I have been of any that I have coached."

The Junior Varsity team also had a very successful season. Coach Mr. C. Jones felt that the girls demonstrated marked improvement as the season wore on and he found that they were either at the same level or better than most other teams in their league. With his strong team and some incoming players, Mr. C. Jones is looking forward to next year's season with high aspirations.

Pouring heart and soul into a play was what the football team did best. Whether they were running back to catch a spiraling kick off or attending grueling practices, the varsity football team placed a strong focus on cooperation and teamwork.

When asked what he enjoyed the most about football, David Bustamonte responded, "Trying hard, playing hard, and doing our best to play as a team." Team spirit is what football is all about. Dave Michels said, "What I enjoyed most about the team was that we all stuck together." Frank Velardo believed that the football experience was so powerful that it filled each and every team member with, "PRIDE."

Soccer A TEAM WITH TALENT

Talent is the first word that comes to mind when one thinks of the boy's varsity soccer team. From the goalie to the forward line, their intensity and concentration have set this team apart from the rest of the league.

In a gumby-like manner, Mike Rodriguez outstretched his body to make yet another save for the team. The smell of victory was in the air again as Mike cleared the ball to an awaiting Tom Ehlers who in turn gave an unselfish and precise pass to Kevin Meehan. Dribbling past three defense men, he embarrassed the Hills East's goalie and kicked the ball into the net, giving Bay Shore the win in overtime.

A proud Coach Cody said, "I think we were so successful because the team followed it's motto. Eleven together as one; and when we are one, the team is unstoppable."

Like the varsity team, the J.V. team had the same spirit and determination. Player Chris Forget exclaimed, "The future has things in store for us. With our talent we should be very successful."

Cheerleaders

Are Athletes Too!

"If you don't think cheerleaders are athletes, then you've really missed the game." This is the logo that the cheerleaders wore on their athletic t-shirts. Cheerleaders work as hard as any other team and are recognized to be true athletes. Practices run five days a week, two of which they must run a mile in under nine minutes. Another aspect of training is rigorous gymnastic workouts that cheerleaders must endure. Sit-ups, push-ups, and all kinds of drills are an essential part of building strength and stamina needed for their stunting ability and energy to cheer on their teams.

Working together for two seasons gives them a lot of time to build strong relationships and develop trusting bonds. Genesis Dawson elaborated, "Cheerleading isn't just a team, we're also a family. We stick together and help each other out to accomplish our goals as a unit, rather than separately."

Cheerleaders do more than shake their booties, they train harshly just like any other athlete. Cheerleaders say that if cheering doesn't come from the heart than it's not worth the effort. So do you still think cheerleaders aren't athletes?

Cheerleaders raised Sherry Stensaker to the top as she brought Bay Shore's spirit with her.

When the whistle blew, a pack of girls in plaid skirts charged up the field to hit the ball into the goal. People didn't know what to expect of this year's team after winning the Suffolk County Class "A" championship last year. "The fast, action-packed game had to be played with alertness, and everyone had to unite and work together as one," stated senior Jenn Hulse. "Everyone was striving for team and individual goals," quoted co-captains Cathy Longo and Kerri Dibble. They continued, "Our team goal was to win the division and make it to the playoffs to face off against Baldwin, our arch-rivals." Along with the team's goals, other players were anxious to achieve either All-League, All-Conference, or All-County at the end of the season. Led by the coaching of Ms. K. Kauer, the girls were looking forward to defending their championship at the conclusion of the season.

Captains: Cathy Longo and Kerri Dibble

(below)Michelle Graham raced up the field to take control of the ball.

Locked in battle, Karen Dromerhauser drove the ball into the circle in an attempt to break the tie.

The TIME OF OUR LIVES

THE CLASS OF '94 COMMENCED THEIR JOURNEY THIRTEEN YEARS AGO IN 1980. THOUGHTS OF HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION WERE PROBABLY LOST IN THOSE EARLY DAYS OF FINGERPAINTS AND GLUE WHEN KINDERGARTEN WAS SUCH AN IMPOSING FORCE IN THEIR LIVES. THEIR TRANSITION INTO ADULTHOOD HAS BEEN FILLED WITH MEMORIES OF FIELD TRIPS, FRIENDS, AND FINAL EXAMS.

AS THEY LOOK OVER THESE PAGES, THEY WILL REMEMBER THEIR FINAL YEAR AT BAY SHORE HIGH SCHOOL, AND THEY WILL ACCEPT THE REALITY THAT IT WILL NEVER BE LIKE THIS AGAIN.

SENIOR FILE

CLASS

OF 1994

"I've made a lot of good friends during my four years at Bay Shore High School. I'm going to miss all of them. I am also going to miss playing football. I had some of the best times of my life on that football field."

-John Stafford

Melissa Adkison

Sharif Ali

Heather Alleyne

Melissa Amato

Jean Amodeo

Daryle C. Banks

"There's a time in everybody's life when they have to say goodbye. Unfortunately it's my time. Many people feel that leaving the High School is the end, but I feel it's just the beginning and there's more to come in my life after high school."

“After graduation I won’t see a lot of people that I saw everyday in high school. It’s sad to think that a lot of us will lose touch in the years to come. It’s a reality that after graduation there are some people I won’t see until our ten year reunion. I just hope we make the best of today while we still can. But when it’s over, I’ll miss all my friends, hanging out with everyone, and being involved in the school.”

"During my four years at Bay Shore High School, I have learned a lot. The teaching is very good, the people are very good, and it was a fun time. I am going to miss all the friends and all the fun I've had here at Bay Shore."

-Brian Gish

"Over the years that I attended Bay Shore High, I have made many memories which will never be the same for me. I will miss the girls on the Field Hockey, Track, and Softball teams. I will also miss the rest of my friends."

-Jennifer Hulse

"The people I will miss the most are all the friends I have met throughout my high school years and all of the teachers who really cared about their students and showed support for them. I will also be upset to leave behind all of my involvement in school, especially the extra-curricular activities."

"For me, the thing that won't be the same after I graduate is the closeness between my friends and me. Some of us will lose touch, and I just don't think we'll be as close as we are now. This year has been unique for me because I feel like a more mature individual. I'm ready to begin a new life in the "real world". I think I'll miss the school itself. It's like people say, "You never know what you've got till it's gone."

-Thalia Lopez

Gregory G. Murray

Nicole Musso

Keith Napodano

Catherine Napolitano

Nicholas T. Nappi

Jonathan Navratil

"All through school it seemed as if I were rushing to graduate high school, and now that I'm a senior I can't believe it's over. Being a senior helped me realize that next year I will be in the real world and I have to grow up fast. I'm going to miss meeting new people and my teachers the most."

-Christine Castellano

Rafaela E. Nikas

Kimberly Sue Nornes

Herman Ouffre

"I think that what I'll probably miss the most about my high school years is the freedom to do what I want. Having no major responsibilities outside of school has been something that I will never have again. I am looking forward to going to college next year and being independent."

"Nothing to me will ever be the same. I won't have to rush to first period gym, which was a pain. I think being a senior is a unique experience. I'm just glad I made it out of here, but the one thing I will miss is all of my friends."

-Lynn Michele Pohlmann

"It will never be like this again because I will not have the same friends. I will have bigger responsibilities. I will miss my Hispanic friends the most, and I'll miss my BOCES friends."

-Mariela V. Guarino

"I am going to miss my friends and all of the fun times that we had together. I'm going to miss the Awareness Weekends and all of the new friends that I made at them. The lessons I learned about life have prepared me for the real world and the challenges that I will have to face in college, but I can't wait to graduate!"

-Candy Meltzer

Jason Simone

Kimberly Slater

Michael Smith

Seniors: Shultz- Smith

"After I graduate, my life will never be the same. As soon as I graduate I will have bigger responsibilities. I will have to worry about other people rather than just me. My friends will not be around to hang out with anymore. I will miss my friends the most."

The world would like to change you,
There are pressures all around.
You must decide just who you are
Then firmly hold your ground.
You have an image of yourself
An ideal sense of you;
And to this vision- you must always
Struggle to be true.

You know what you are good at
And you know where talent lies;
But if you're ruled by others,
Your uniqueness could pass by.
Remember there is much to learn;
But all new things aren't good
Wisdom lies in what you've learned
And what you have withstood.

So be yourself and don't allow
The world to take control.
Preserving your identity
Is life's most precious goal.

-Gayle Gregory

We'd like to thank our families, friends, and teachers who have supported us throughout the years. You gave us the shoulder to cry on when things didn't go our way and praised us when we reached our goals. We want you all to know that we couldn't have done it without you, and we thank you with all our hearts!

Love always, The Class of 1994

COLOPHON

The 1994 MARAUDER was printed by Taylor Publishing Company of Texas under the supervision of Mr. Neil Sanders, our Taylor representative. Photographers Doug Brehm, Jerome Amos and Alice Leshaw from Riveria Studios took all of the official photographs and portraits. The cover is in maroon embossed vellum. The white endsheets were imprinted with a four-color emblem. 475 copies of the 200 page book which includes two color signatures and one-four page color tip in on #80 matte stock were printed. A student supplement will be added to the book to cover the closing activities of the 1993-1994 school year. The standard type that was used throughout the book was Malibu, which was submitted on diskette by utilizing Taylor's Type Vision and Directory Vision Software Programs. This is a publication of the Yearbook Design and Layout class and the Creative Writing for Publication class under the direction of Mr. Joseph B. D'Antoni and Mrs. Carol A. Jones.
