The graduating class of 2006 began their last year at Bay Shore High School with high hopes of, not getting lost. It had always been the job of previous senior classes to help underclassmen find their way around. The school was in for a culture shock when freshmen were approached by baffled seniors asking where to find from 187 with map in hand. They wandered the new hallways and shortcuts trying to decide whether it was better to lose their pride by asking for directions or fail to graduate because of missed classes. "My first day of school wasn't much fun. I kept walking in the same loop screaming. Where the freck is room 284? After about two and a half hours of this, I became delitious and started walking into walls. It was a tough, tough day," stated senior Travis.

Fuchs.

As things calltned down, seniors got over the hardships of readjusting to the new building and redirected their attention to their futures. They realized that change can sometimes be good and that they would have to learn how to adjust to things in college. Plus, the numbers on the second floor never made sense.

anyway.

So as the class of 2006 learned their place, they also learned more about themselves and each other. They realized their hopes and dreams were achievable and that were closer than even before, now that they held a Bay Shore diploma. They were eager for the future and what lay beyond, but could never leave the friendships they made or the memories they created behind. For it was those friendships and those memories that helped mold them into the people they are and the people they will become (insert sob here). By excelling even more than just in their classes; the seniors were prepared to move

F2006

Fall and Winter Sports

Over the years, Bay Shore High School athletes have accomplished many things. This year, moving beyond the traditions of a true Marauder athlete, the sports leams discovered new ways to win both on and off the field. Although the seniors were ready to move forward, the chanting of, "Let's go Bay Shore, let's go," brought back to the memories of the spirit of Bay Shore fans of the past.

With trophy cases filled, the Marauder teams simply worked harder to continue their winning tradition. Using one goal, one word, and one way, all the teams wanted to win. The sound of screaming crowds and good sportsmanship only made moving beyond the Shore a more reachable feat.

As the years passed, the Marauder sports teams became stronger, more successful, and most importantly, wiser. Although there were ups and downs, their confidence never wavered. In 2006, The teams determination and hard work was unforgettable.

"Bay Shore fans, clap your hands!" was just one of the exciting cheers that the Bay Shore High School 2005-2006 Varsity Cheerleaders used to pump up the everenthusiastic Marauder fans. With only twelve girls, the determined team was able to rise beyond expectations. Despite the lack of a designated place to practice, the girls maintained positive attitudes and worked extremely hard each and everyday. Coach Joanne Dineen noticed drastic growth in her team, stating, "They all work hard, strive to do better, and are determined to shine." This year, the girls were able to function as a team to achieve their goal of competing in an extremely challenging Long Island based competition.

Their determination and Bay Shore pride not only helped the girls succeed, but it also helped them create friendships. The special bonds formed this year truly exemplified the cheerleaders' spirit and team motto, "If we go down, we go down together." Their unity throughout the year was unmatched.

Throughout a tough season, the Bay Shore Varsity Football team remained dedicated to both each other and the team. "It started off a tough season but we all stuck through it and played our hearts out," exclaimed senior Patrick Abdul. The team worked hard and tried to improve their game everyday.

The team practiced at Brook Avenue School Monday through Friday from 2:45 to 5:30, rain or shine. Coaches Sagl, Musso and Rizzo encouraged the boys to perform to their utmost ability. "Everytime they stepped off the football field, they were better players than when they stepped on," coach J. Rizzo stated proudly, while reflecting upon the 2005 season.

Bay Shore's Varsity Football team achieved what they worked long and hard for this past season, shattering their 0 in 16 record for the past two years and pulled out two victories. Junior Justin Jensen exclaimed, "We finished strong and we will carry that momentum into next season."

Boys Cross Country

► Henry Gonzalez and William Madrey push themselves to finish the race strong.

"Congratulations Boys Cross Country on a very successful year! Winning the League Three title was a huge step for our program," said Kirk Carter, head coach for the Boys Varsity Cross Country Team. After so many years of attempting to top the league, reaching this pinnacle was overwhelming.

In 2005-2006, the team more than doubled with the addition of numerous underclassmen. These younger runners contributed a great deal to the overall success of the team. With immense heart and determination, the boys were able to achieve greatness by defeating teams all over the northeast. The routine of practicing six days a week paid off. This dedication certainly contributed to the achievements of this team.

As well as imrpoving times and skills, the team grew closer with each and every practice. "We have such a tight group of guys, it's like we're a big family. We've been together so long, I feel like every one of the guys is my brother," said long time team member Jesse Thompson. In ending with such a strong season, a very proud Coach Carter stated, "mission accomplished!"

The Girls Varsity Cross Country team started out their season with a BANG. From the first practice to the last race, they kept their competitive drive, great attitudes and huge appetites alive and well. Each intense practice and workout prepared the girls to outrun the competition. No matter how prepared the girls were, it did not help get them ready for Cardiac Hill. But what can prepare someone for this infamous hill other than rolling over and dying?

Captains Callie Hogan, Lauren Schmidt, Caitlin Knapp and Kayla Kenda led their dedicated teammates to yet another season of outstanding victories, entertaining bus rides and crazy pasta parties (all of which held equal importance in the team's eyes). The seniors never lost a league or division title in their varsity running careers. They were able to continue that tradition and they hope this will carry on long after they are

"Bay Shore Cross Country knows how to win," said Head Coach Steve Borbet. With 36 runners all working for a coveted varsity position or simply a personal best, a competitive yet friendly atmosphere was created. "The team chemistry was great this year," said a grinning Callie Hogan, as she recalled both her race and the dance contests on the bus rides home from meets. She reflected, "It never matters whether you ran well or not, everyone was so supportive." The team stuck together like crusted mud on the back of a skimpy singlet through every practice, race, hill, and football player's joke.

"Field Hockey players are a sick breed of people." --Mary Persson

FIELD HOCKEY

The 2005 Varsity Field Hockey team began its season knowing that there was a lot to live up to. The shoes of departed seniors were going to be hard to fill. However, with the constant guidance of second year coach, Mary Persson, the team rose to the challenge. The team was young an inexperienced when fall practice began. The girls improved with each game as they learned each others' strengths and weaknesses. Each player learned how to help the team as a whole; there was no "superstar player."

Although the girls were intense and hardworking, they always left time for fun. They continued the tradition of creating a dance for the Pep Rally and incorporated laughs into every practice and every game. "The dance at Pep Rally is all that is needed to sum up this season; it says it all" said senior captain Maggie Horton. The girls invested everything that had into each game and finished the season with great memories and great friends. For the second year in a row the girls made it to the second round of playoffs. "We value the importance of giving our best effort on the field. At the end of the game you have to be able to look your teammate in the eye and say that you did everything you could to win" said Coach Persson. That is exactly what these girls did.

The Junior Varsity team also worked diligently at every practice to improve their skills and to become closer as a team. The girls enjoyed spending time together on and off of the field, which was demonstrated by the organization of a car wash in order to raise money for the team. With an enthusiastic coach leading them, they were bound to be successful. "We may never have an opportunity to be this close," Coach Lee Ann Abbriano explained, "so let's try to have fun, enjoy, and try to win!"

The Boys Varsity Golf Team entered the 2005 season with hard work and commitment. Coach Andrew Sullivan and his 8 team members had set a goal for this year to qualify for the Suffolk County Championship Tournament. Their practice takes place at Windwatch in Hauppauge, where they learn to become winners. Through all of their achievements they transformed into a great team of supportive players. The team placed 2nd with a 7 and 3 record, which easily qualified for Counties. "We play every hole through the green and never waste a shot," said Coach Sullivan. With all of their devotion they went beyond what was expected of them and made their season the best it could be.

The very dedicated Boys JV Golf team had a phenomenal 2005 fall season. Coach Jared Morrison stated "we have a young team, but were scoring well. This year's team is a very loyal group." With patience and whole heartedness the 10 athletes practiced every week at the Gull Haven golf course. The main goal for this years JV team was to have fun, improve their game, and prepare to move about and beyond to the varsity level. The fun filled 2005 season was a kick off for the young notable team.

With great attitudes and a desire to win, the 2005 Boy's Varsity Soccer team scored above the rest. "The players are determined and spirited. They have a great passion for the game of soccer, said Coach J. Nelson. The talent and determination that the team portrayed enabled them to go above and beyond expectations. The boys held pasta parties and jogathons to raise money for the team and local charities. "I am so proud of the effort and enthusiasm that the team displayed in practice and during games," stated Coach J. Nelson.

The desire to succeed and the drive to win is what helped the 2005 Junior Varsity soccer team acheive excellence. Half way through their season, the team was proud to say that they were undefeated. The team made up of ninth and tenth graders practiced every school day until it was clear that they were ready to win. Their excelent chemistry and good attitudes helped make the team very strong. "We have had three players promoted to the Varsity team," Coach Love proudly stated. All the members of this hardworking team played soccer since elementary school so their team was even closer than most others. As the teams season came to an end, each team member came away knowing they broke barriers and exceeded the expectations of many.

Surpassing last year's goals, the Junior Varsity and Varsity Girls Soccer Teams moved up a step, becoming extremely competitive with other teams in their league. On the green fields that they called home, both of the teams practiced five days a week; giving every ounce of commitment to the season, nothing could bring down the girl's spirits.

The Girls Varsity Soccer Team had an amazing season. They displayed devotion and tremendous passion for the game. When all odds seemed to be against them, the girls played hard and managed to come out on top. "We had a great season this year, and I'm looking forward to next year when we will strive to make the playoffs" said sophomore, Jasmyne Spencer. Throughout the season, the lady Marauders kept their spirits up with the thought of, "I think I can, I know I can, I can!"

"Play hard and never give up," was the motto of the Girls Junior Varsity Coach, Dan Atkins. After coaching the girls for two seasons, Coach Atkins hopes to continue to teach the girls new tricks and prepare them to play on the Varsity level. No one ever said winning was easy, but the Girls Junior Varsity Soccer Team made it appear to be by their swift moves. GIRLS TCHIS

This year's Girls Varsity Tennis team had all the necessary talent to do well during the season. However, it was the girls' togetherness, dedication, sportsmanship, and heart that helped them move beyond the success of past years. Despite getting off to a slow start, the girls' morale was lifted when they managed to tackle the top two teams in Suffolk County. "I've always known these girls had the ability to be contenders in the playoffs," said Coach Jackie Fitzharris, "and by defeating Sayville and West Islip, they are definitely living up to my expectations." The girls finished off their season with a 7-5 record and impressed everyone by making playoffs for the first time in three years.

Under the guidance of Coach J. Carney, the Junior Varsity girls had another terrific season, with an amazing 13-1 record to show for it. Coach J. Carney encouraged the team from the start, saying, "Have fun, practice hard, and everything else will pay off." He continued to push the girls toward success by encouraging them to "continue last year's dominance." Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams' records show just how much Bay Shore Girls Tennis has grown over the past few years.

Girls Volleyball 2005 League 3 Champions

"Stand up straight, stick your chests out, uncross your arms and elax!" These were the famous words of Stasia DeBonis, coach of the ay Shore Girls Varsity Volleyball team for the past nine years. The eam consisted of 12 girls who practiced and played five to six mes a week. They dedicated their hearts and souls while playing in the court. They kept it light at times too, allowing a few jokes on he side such as learning Greek and Spanish vocabulary. "All of the irls have unbelievable chemistry; they care for one another and tre constantly cracking each other up," stated coach De Bonis.

Not only were they able to make a name for themselves as a oild team after losing five of their six starting players, this team continued its winning tradition earning the title of League Champions or the second year in a row. "This group was different from last rear's, We honestly had a strong bench and I had no problem naking subs or changing line-ups. I expect to make play-offs secause we have such talent and athleticism which is a killer combo." The Girls 2005-2006 Varsity Volleyball team truly met, and vent beyond what anyone expected, showing the true beauty of heir team.

Hard work and determination produces results. The Junior /arsity Girls Volleyball team held this motto close to heart this past eason. The team was 13 members strong and worked hard all hroughout the season. They went above and beyond and were named Co-League Champs. Coach Jen Mackin had one major goal in mind, "I wanted to prepare the girls to play on the Varsity evel." The team reached and showed everyone their full potential. Every year, the bar of expectations is raised and with the impressive ecord of 10-2 including the shut out of two teams, it is obvious this ream surpassed them. The team was led by co-capitains Caitlyn lynn and Shae Felician whe were confident that they would help ead a strong Varsity team next year and help Bay Shore excel to even greater helds.

Bret Voges sets the ball to give his team a chance to make an amazing play.

The Boys Varsity Volleyball team had a lot of obstacles to overcome this season. Coaching her fourth year of Boys Volleyball, Jill Pickus's main goal was to assist her team to the playoffs. The team consisted of ten players, one freshman, six sophomores, two juniors and one senior. Coach Pickus had prior experience coaching many of the boys as she led their middle school team. After working together for years, the boys had a lot of experience with both each other and the team.

"The team was very different from past years," Coach Pickus said. "In the past years I had people who just played sports and they were not true athletes. Now I coach true athletes that play with their heart and determination. For this I am very fortunate." Throughout a tough season the volleyball team remained determined to play their hardest, have fun and become victorious.

The 2005-2006 Boys Varsity Basketball team started the season out very strong. Losing nine seniors, this team had to play beyond their own expectations to continue their winning tradition."We are not as physically tough or intimidating as past teams, but we are hard-working and extremely competitive and that's what will lead us to victory," said Coach Parham. With an unselfish team, everyone played well under the leadership of co-captains Patrick Abdul and Chris Obi who led the way. "We continued to implement our 3-D approach of Defense, Discipline, and Dedication. This enabled us to be successful on the court, in the classrooms and in the community," commented Coach Parham proudly. Having hearts of lions as they stepped on the court allowed this team to become number one.

The Boys Junior Varsity Basketball Team played well this season. Having a whole new team with few returning players, they had to learn how to play together and to keep their heads high when they lost. Everyone played hard and improved their skills ensuring their play on the varsity level. "Your private practice determines your public performance," said Coach Carter. Throughout the season, the teamwork was cohesive and the visible improvement in skill will only lead to greatness in years to come.

commit to becoming a better team with a stronger work ethic. They wanted to be proud to represent their school and community as the Bay Shore Lady Marauders. These players were hard working and dedicated to becoming better players and a more cohesive unit. "Good teams become great ones when the members trust each other enough to surrender the 'me' for the 'we'," commented Brittany Torres, a sophomore varsity player. As a first year coach, Danowski was extremely proud to be representing Bay Shore. "The team worked extremely hard everyday. They came to practice each day accepting the challenge to improve as individuals and as a team," reflected Danowski proudly.

The Junior Varsity Girls Basketball team had an amazing season. They went beyond expectation and had a season to remember. Coach Mazzie, a returning coach for Bay Shore and also an alumnus, was very pleased with the season and said, "I am very happy with my team. They are all good athletes and I know that at any given point I can count on someone to step things up." The team members all possessed a dedicated work ethic. The girls were motivated and worked well together. By the end of the season they were not only a team, they were a family.

2005-2006 Bay The Shore High School Boys Winter Track Team proved to be a "group of hard working young men," claimed Coach K. Carter. This team's excellence was demonstrated throughout every competitive meet. Unlike previous years, this team consisted of players with a range of different skill levels. They excelled in jumps, throws, sprints, and distance events all season long. The boys competed on Long sland as well as in New York City and even traveled out of state, challenging some of the best athletes in the Northeast. "It has been a pleasure coaching every single member of the team this year. It takes a special type of athlete to practice everyday in such harsh weather," said Coach K. The goals of the team remained relatively the same- put it all on the line every day, compete well and bring a County Championship home to Bay Shore. It was another year filled with medals, plaques and the top times in the nation as this team improved each and every day. Only a superb group with high tolerance would be able to handle what these airls accomplished with such style and dedication.

The 2006 Winter Track season was a turning point in the history of Bay Shore Track. Not only was it the largest team in school history, but it was also the most diverse. With so many faces representing every grade level, they beat out their competition. Runners learned about their limits, their strengths, and most of all, their teammates. "I was nervous about how the team might get along with so many different people," gasped an elated Kate Cangelosi after a particularly hard 800 repeat. "Everyone was awesome though. There wasn't even a hint of a conflict!" Freshman competed with seniors to see who could count the loudest during stretches, while experienced sophomores advised eager juniors how to run a race. All grade levels were represented during the Winter Track Christmas Caroling Extravaganza in which the track team walked around Brightwaters singing to anyone who cared to listen (and even some who did not). Winter Track turned dull weekdays into bonding sessions among people who may not otherwise have had the chance to meet. Friendships were made and strengthened and it was clear once again that Bay Shore was the team to beat.

The Varsity bowling team enjoyed an excellent 2006 season. With nine great bowlers, six of whom have made All-League and All-County status, this team was sure to succeed. Each member in the starting line-up boasted 200 averages. "Our bowling team was very strong this year. We still have a really good record and we are trying to hold on to our league title," said senior and captain Dan Rodriguez.

Coach Anthony Cantore had very high expectations for his team. The main goal of the season was to remain League Champions, and capture the Division title. They strove to come out on top at the county tournament, and go on to states for the first time in Bay Shore history. "Seniors really had to step up their games because we want these championships the most. Each senior athlete wants to leave his legacy in high school, ending with an excellent season," said Steve O'Connor, senior.

With a record of 9-3, the bowling team struck through the competition to end up on top. "The energy at our matches was amazing! People were cheering us on as we threw strike after strike. It's a great experience," reflected sophomore Jonathan Trzcinski. 2006 brought another successful season for Bay Shore Bowling. Although the seniors may move onto bigger and better opportunities, their bowling memories will remain etched in their minds forever.

The 2005-2006 Bay Shore
Boys Wrestling team continued its tradition of excellence and came out with another successful season this year.
Although the team consisted of many underclassmen, they had previous varsity experience, and knew what to expect.
"Wrestlers work hard and understand what it takes to be successful. They believe in themselves," said coach Rob Thompson, with pride. It was a lot of hard work but the team was determined to reach the op of their league.

With this motivation, the team was able to surpass its goals and compete for the League II title. "It has been difficult making the transition from the Fifth Avenue wrestling room to the high school wrestling room, but it's also a great opportunity to create a new legacy," said coach Rob. Thompson. This did not discourage the team. Practicing six days a week, their sheer determination led the team through a promising season.

Class of 2007

The class of 2007 has come a long way in preparation for their soon to be senior days. With the stressful new SAT's approaching fast, Nick Baglio was heard saving "Proper Preperation Prevents Poor Preformance." While trying to juggle picking out class rings and preparing to leave the Shore, the Juniors continued to show their strength all year long. With Class President Morgan Boulton as their strong and dedicated leader, the class displayed their school pride during Spirit Week and Homecoming. The amazing Spiderman themed float proved how much work and thought was put into their year.

"Junior year was one of the best years yet! All of the fun events have made me look forward to Senior year even more," stated Morgan Boulton. Throughout the year, the Junior class matured with their newly found freedoms. They were finally able to leave campus and go out to lunch with their peers. Also, the long awaited Junior Prom finally drew near "High School has been so much fun and although I can't wait to be a Senior, I will be sad to see it end," reflected Heather Otte.

This year the reality of growing up ultimatley sank in when the Junior class determined what colleges they would like to apply to in order to reach their goals. When asked what fueled her motivation to succeed this year, Stephanie Jones replied, "Don't be pushed by your problems, be led by your dreams."

The Class of 2008 came to the new building filled with excitement and a little apprehension. This was the start of the "real deal," the years when college is close enough to become a reality and friends either come out of the woodwork or start to fade away. They had big shoes to fill from the previous sophomores (the class of '07 did introduce a new spelling of "sophomore" after all) and expectations to accomplish to. As they walked through the columns and into the new and improved classrooms, they were eager to begin this journey as they soared above the sophomoric stereotype.

The new and improved Sophomores accomplished a lot this year, under the leadership of class president Antzy Polycarpe. They flew above expectations in everything they participated in including A.I.D.S. Education, Peer Support, Stuff-A-Bus and of course, spirit week. The Sophomores emerged from their freshman adjustment period and showed the school that they had a lot to offer. "It felt really good not to be the youngest in the school anymore; I have adjusted really well," commented Sophomore Amanda Tuccumbs. As they prepared to become leaders during the next two years they were able to figure out themselves and their peers and how to effectively lead the younger classmen to their own successes and their own great memories. This class will definitely continue to grow, accomplish and become able to give back many great things by the time they are ready to move

We've all experienced it: the overwhelming fear, the anxiety, and the confusion that is high school. Starting a new school is always challenging, and high school is even more difficult. Becoming a freshman is the next plateau that we all have had to overcome. Handling the pressures included in this higher level of academics is hard, but the class of 2009 had another fireball thrown into the mix: maneuvering their way around the confusion that is Bay Shore High School's new building.

Upon the addition of the new wing, new concerns arose. Could students make it to class on time? This was one of the biggest worries. Upper classmen got caught up in the crowded winding halls, and they have been in Bay Shore for years. "It is hard enough being the new one in the school, getting around can be so confusing! It's even worse coming from another town. You do not know what to expect at all," commented freshman Nicki Surkes.

High school is a tough transition, one that can make or break a person based on how well he or she can deal with the pressures of a new setting. The freshman class of 2009 handled their obstacles beautifully, never letting the stress of change completely wear them down. And when the class of 2009 has moved beyond the shore of our little community, they can smile and proudly say, "I survived Bay Shore High School!"

"Good teachers' lessons prove true to the end, when they are no longer your teacher, but your life long friend." When reminisching about high school, many memories will come to mind. The parties, the school events, and the summer beach trips will often consume day dreams. Frantic girls shopping for prom dresses and seniors racing to make up gym classes will be the focus of many. However, a large portion of the memories will be attributed to those who helped make high school a success: our fearless leaders, the teachers. Every year the teachers of Bay Shore High School have done much to inspire their students. They have taught topics that will be important in both college and life after school. The lessons that they have impressed onto their students are some that will remain with them forever, and continue to change their lives. "No matter what happens in my future, I will always attribute my success to my past. The teachers of

Bay Shore High School have shaped me in more ways than are imaginable, and for that I will forever be grateful, " quoted senior and 2006 graduate Toni Mione.

Activities

With so many activities to choose from, Bay Shore High School students never auestioned what activities made them happy. There were different activities going on after school that made an impact on our community and school each day. "Our school offers a lot more activities than others," said junior, Elizabeth Perez. Throughout the year, after school was not the only time activities were held. Many took place during the day as well. The Maroon Echo handed out their award-winning publication during our daily rush in the hallways. B.S.O.S.S. put on an informative and entertaining Black history production as well as an outstanding annual fashion show that topped all others.

Since there is such a wide selection, almost all of the Bay Shore High School students were involved in at least one. "I like the fact that there is a lot of variety," commented senior, Ginet Jimenez. It was not only about being involved, it was about finding something you like to do and being proud of it. Having these activities creates a fun and more comfortable environment for the students- a lasting effect that "A.I.D.S. Education is really rewarding for me. It is a lot of fun and I really feel like I am making a difference. it is surprising how much 8th grade students don't know about this disease." said junior Carolyn Hunter.

> The group, led by Mr. Kasman and Dr. Hyshiver, was one of the largest that the program has ever had. It consisted of a variety of people, of different races, religions and sexes. This mixture of students helped stress the point that A.I.D.S. does not discriminate.

In his sixth year of instructing the club, Mr. Scinto was ecstatic for the addition of high tech computers, which opened art club to a whole new flow of students; graphic designers.

Club members worked with a variety of mediums; from pastels and clays, to paints and computers. "We were trying to become more graphically oriented and it seemed to pay off" said Scinto. The kids were free to work on anything their hearts desired, whether it was an assigned art club project or building their portfolios for college, which Mr. Scinto was always willing and eager to help out with.

"I had five incredibly gifted seniors all on their way to brighter futures this year, and I just wanted to make sure that the art schools they were applying to, saw the talent that I saw in them everyday for the past four years" said Mr. Scinto when asked about portfolio building.

Charles Horton Cooley once said "an artist cannot fail; it is a success to be one"; and that is exactly what is to be said about the 2005-2006 Art Club: simply successful.

The 2006 Bay Shore High School Bible Club enjoyed a tremendous year. With a plethora of new members joining the direction of three-year leader Allison Bouton, the club had high hopes for a very great year. They met every Thursday from 2:00 to 2:30p.m. as a student-run activity. Not only did they discuss the Christian doctrine, they also worked hard to reach out to the Bay Shore community.

The club consisted of nearly 20 members, all of the Christian faith. Bible Club provided a safe haven for students to openly discuss common beliefs and issues in religion facing our world today. "It is so much fun to have fellowship with other Christian students in school," reflected senior Allison Bouton. New members were "Being successful and doing our best made it easier to manage the club" says President Whitney Powell. The diversity of the club was inspirational this year and made it easier to put the club right on point. The girls' choreographer, Suzanne Brenner, always reminded them that they were "The frosting on the cake," when it came to making the band look good. With the addition of their new advisor, Sabrina Warshaw, the Color-Guard was able to practice twice as much. "I loved having two advisors because we could meet more often," said Kaity Courtien.

The Colorguard, along with the marching band, annually participate in events such as the Newsday Marching Band Festival, Columbus Day Parade, Homecoming, St.Patricks Day, and Memorial Day parades. However due to unfavorable weather conditions, they had to miss out this past school year. After a long week of tedious school work, it was always a comfort for this group of Bay Shore students to be able to sit down, relax, and do what they loved to do best: write. Every Friday afternoon, the Creative Writing Club, headed by adviser Mr. Pasca, communed to room 310 in order to break free from the stresses of life. Member Mike Hosking expressed his feelings about the club by saying, "I try not to miss a meeting because it helps me unwind from my hectic week." You could hear always hear laughs coming from this room, and many creative individuals expressing themselves through words. The club continued to grow to include over eighty members of both current Bay Shore students as well as a few devoted alumni. Senior Melissa Sgambati stated, "I love this club because not only do I get to spend time with new friends, but old ones who have graduated and often come back to visit."

Aside from normal Friday meetings, the club also held numerous Poetry Jams throughout the 2005-2006 school year. They invited the entire school to the Little Theatre to share their own pieces of literature. These events were always a great success. The members of the club also compiled many student writings that were featured in their own publication. The Creative Writing Club not only had weekly meetings that attracted a diverse population of Bay Shore students, but they found imaginative ways to get the whole school involved. This made the 2005-2006 school year one of the strongest ever for this group.

Dance Club

Every year, the Bay Shore High School Dance Club puts a tremendous amount of work into their performance in dance and leadership. This year was no exception. Ms. Denino has coached the Dance Club for six years now, and chorographer La Tonya D. Tolbert helped teach the girls as well. The club was female dominated and they were 40 members strong. The girls met every Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday from 2:30 to 4:30p.m. in the high school's new dance room. This year, the club saw the addition of many new members. "I hope that the girls will stay in the club throughout high school so they can get stronger and stronger each year," commented Ms. Denino.

The most important goal the club had was for the girls to develop the ability and confidence to live out their wildest dreams through dance. Both coaches expected the girls to display teamwork and cooperation. "I would like the members of the club to feel totally comfortable when performing. I would also like to increase their technical skills," said Denino. Among the positive characteristics showed this year was the sense of unity and dedication. In order to understand the chorography better, the girls helped guide one another. Succeeding in having a fantastic year, all of the girls worked hard and put their all into mastering each and every step.

2006 was officially the first for The Environmental Club. Late last school year, this environmentally concerned group of students came together to form a now up and coming Bay Shore High School club. Prior to this year, the club was simply a small group of upper classmen who shared a common passion for environmental issues. The Environmental Club showed tremendous diversity and had members ranging from 9th through 12th grade.

As everyone knows, it is extremely hard to make good movies and look sharp while doing it, but as you can see that's exactly what the film club was able to do this year. They came to work armed only with cameras and their passion for film, and came out as the center of conversation after their music video film festival in the Little Theater. "It was a total hit, everyone loved our videos, and it kind of sparked a lot of interest in film," stated an excited Randi Smith-Zaletel. The class spent all year composing and editing music videos and proved it during their film festival in the Little Theater.

Film Club gave its members an outlet for their creativity and expression through film. After taping, editing, retaping, and some discussion, the film was finally ready to be shown publically. And shown publically it was; the films were displayed for the entire community in the Boulton Center for the Preforming Arts in June in the Annual Film Festival. Even in her seventh year as a club advisor, Ms. Kalter is still elated about the enthusiasm her club members show for film. "I am continually impressed by the level of dedication the young filmmakers of Bay Shore High School exibit."

Tuture Business Leaders Of America

Gaining a better understanding of the business world was the main goal of the Future Buisiness Leaders of America this year. Every Wednesday at 2:00pm, the members of F.B.L.A. met to gain knowledge that would help them in the business field as well as to meet and develop new friendships. "This year's members were very dedicated to the club and it was great to be involved in a club like F.B.L.A.," stated member Elise Amanor.

The members of F.B.L.A. showed their dedication to this nationally recognized club by constantly coming up with innovative ideas to attract new members and arouse awareness of the club. For instance, they hosted a 3 vs. 3 basketball tournament and sold candy grams to raise money. "Being the adviser to F.B.L.A. has been very rewarding," reflected Adviser Mr. B. Ehlers. F.B.L.A. had a very successful turn out in 2006 and was a wonderful asset to Bay Shore High School.

G.S.A., one of Bay Shore High School's newest clubs, was formed in January of last year by a group of students and faculty who were determined to break the boundary between the homosexual and heterosexual populations. There are so many people in our community with different sexual preferences, and it is important that we attempt to relate to everyone," stated Rogan.

◀Toni Mione, Susana Rodriguez, and Katie Rogan make corrections to the newly arrived proofs.

The Marauder Yearbook is one of those things you never realize how much work goes into until you experience it firsthand. Just like the members of any other school club, the Marauder Yearbook Staff made plenty of lasting memories, learned to work with new people, developed different skills, and shared unforgettable laughs. However, that is only the surface. Beyond the door of room 321, the chaotic world of school publications was constant. Lunch periods, afterschool hours, even late-night dinner sessions turned the class known as "Creative Writing for Publication" into a full-time commitment.

However, even through battles with journalism students for limited computers, numerous and fast-approaching deadlines, and the contagious effect of Ms. Cuozzo's stress level, the 2006 Yearbook Staff still found time for fun and laughter. For these writers, designers, and photographers, the yearbook was not only a publication containing some pictures of friends, it was also a keepsake that they had created themselves, witnessing a chaotic yet incredibly exciting process known to few. They will forever be able to look back to the pages their fellow students were able to cherish even after moving beyond Bay Shore. Said Ms. Cuozzo, "This year's staff was remarkable. These students have shown such dedication and passion. They inspired me each and every day.

The success of this yearbook provided an overwhelming sense of selfsatisfaction for all who put effort into it. Even the Yearbook Signing Party was not only a celebration for students receiving yearbooks, but also a sigh of relief for all of the staff members who survived to produce a masterpiece, making it through the year with as few anxiety attacks as possible. The time, dedication, and headaches were worth it, for the 2006 Marauder Yearbook entitled "Beyond the Shore" is a masterpiece that will withstand the test of time.

Tap... tap... tap... on the keyboard, "I need a headline, the story doesn't fit and the deadline is tomorrow!" If you spent one moment with the students in room 321 this is all you would have heard. The Maroon Echo, our school newspaper, achieved one thing more that it hadn't in previous years, the paper was able to reach out to students and earn their respect. Not only did the newspaper win numerous awards and was distinguished among adults, but also by the students right here in the school. "The most important aspect of writing is to have your targeted audience appreciate your work" said Josh Rhein, Editor in chief.

The Journalism class/club had a phenomenal year, with a staff at 56 strong the paper and was filled with more interesting stories. One of the goals this year was to expand the class to make it more ethnically diverse for different perspectives on issues. "It was great to have different kinds of kids in the class," said John Burton, a Sports editor, "The paper was more appealing to all types of groups in the school"

With a number of seniors leaving it was important for the staff to teach the first years everything there is to know to continue the legacy of the Maroon Echo. "The veterans in the class really pitched in to help the newer students and it really showed" said Walter Fishon, the club advisor. Many of the students who joined the class in 2005 had doubts in themselves but quickly caught on and learned the ropes.

Winning awards and gaining recognition were magnificent achievements, but to win the respect from their peers was the greatest accomplishment of all for the staff of the Maroon Echo.

Every Wednesday after school, the Little Theatre was packed with those Bay Shore High School students known as Peer Support Helpers. This group included 10th, 11th, and 12th graders, about 75 students from each grade. This year's Peer Support Helpers were assigned a variety of tasks and excelled in every way possible. They worked in the Time Out Room on a weekly basis. Their responsibilities included mediating between their peers and coordinating the now famous Awareness Weekends. This year's group was also able to do something that had never been accomplished before. They trained schools across Long Island to run their own Awareness Weekends and ran a successful cultural exchange program with West Islip. In addition, they participated in a remarkable program called Christmas Magic where they bought, wrapped, and delivered Christmas presents to over 300 children living in shelters. As a group, this year's Peer Support Helpers developed into unselfish, kind, admirable individuals. Their advisers, Ms. S. Handley, who has been with Peer Support for five years and Mr. J. McGowan, who has been with them for 20 years, agreed and said, "We are thrilled with this year's group's high level of education and enthusiasm to help their peers and others in our community and beyond."

"The club is a fun way to explore Shakespeare's writings," senior Kelsey Arnold enthusiastically stated. The club, consisting of 25 students evenly mixed from grades 9-12, provided an atmosphere where students were able to admire the works of Shakespeare that were not included in the high school curriculum.

The idea for the Shakespeare Club originated over seven years ago, however, the club was not approved until recently, and all of the originial founding students had graduated. Luckily, students of Bay Shore High School still had a longing to explore Shakespeare. "I was so excited to see that there was still a desire to participate, so much that students are returning every week, and coming back with their friends," commented Mr. M. Hochman, Club Adviser.

Although Shakespeare Club is relatively new, its members have already gone on two field trips, including the Broadway preformance of Julius Caesar starring Denzel Washington. For next year, the club hopes to expand by hosting Shakespeare movie nights, organizing a Shakespeare Festival to coinicide with the Bard's birthday, and to of course, experience more performances of Shakespeare's works.

SHOWSTOPPE

"Showstoppers is the premiere show choir for the Bay Shore High School," said Dr. Craig Morrow, Showstoppers adviser. Each year, the Showstoppers prove to be a great performing group. They continue to rise above all expectations and exceed their goals. With aspirations of expanding, Showstoppers now includes 16 members. They are forever changing and bettering the cohesiveness of the group. In addition, new soloists were added to this year's group. Brittany Thompkins, Camila Allary, and Rebekah Baez took the spotlight with ease.

The Showstoppers have certainly hit the mark, consistently putting on excellent concerts. A great accomplishment for the choir was being able to sing for the first time at Concert Survivor Day. The Showstoppers of Bay Shore High School love to sing and perform all styles of music. Their vast talent was clearly seen all year long.

The club consisted of about 15 students from all grade levels. They met once a week on Wednesdays. The members' skill levels vared as native speakers, heritage speakers, and non-native speakers of Spanish. The club continues to grow, as new members join every year. This year, the students became motivated to meet and improve their language skills. They used various games and activities in order to meet this goal. Kisha Bustillo and Carla Mendoza commented," We set up a comfortable, fun enivornment where the interest of Hispanic Culture and language could blossom within us." Every vear, there are thousand deaths and seven hundred thousand injuries in the United States caused by drunk drivers. These statistics are the reasons why Mr. G. Broadhurst and the Bay Shore High School S.A.D.D. members have encouraged the students of Bay Shore High School to remain alcohol free. "The students of this club are helpful, positive, outgoing and friendly, which are the qualities that help S.AD.D. move forward," stated Mr. Broadhurst proudly. The members feel strongly that there is a problem in this country with the rate of drunk driving fatalities and they tried their hardest to encourage students throughout the 2005-2006 school year.

Mr. Broadhurst has been fearlessly advising this club for over ten years. Although student leadership for S.A.D.D. has been strong in past years, this year was exceptional. It was a year to remember. The members met every Friday after school and werre always enthusiastic and ready to fight the drunk driving problem. "I couldn't be associated with a more optimistic group of students. They are absolutely wonderful," stated Mr. Broadhurst.

Teens Against Tobacco Use is a club that teaches the negative effects of smoking to students of all ages. "We are excited about being in this club for the first time and can't wait to teach the younger children the dangers of tobacco," said Jessica Panos and Lauren Fischer. The members of T.A.T.U. go to South Country and Gardiner Manor schools in order to communicate an important message about tobacco use to the younger generation. "It is great to know we get an opportunity to make an influence on the choices kids make, agreed Kaylee Graswald and Heather Otte. Coming up with innovative ideas to spread their message, T.A.T.U. members created posters, activities, skits, projects, and games to reach kids all across Bay Shore. With an ambitious attitude, the Bay Shore High School drama members worked together throughout the 2005-2006 school year to create shows that surpassed the high standards set in previous years. The Thespian Troupe used all aspects of their talent by singing, dancing and acting. This enabled them to perform for their peers as well as members of their community. When asked how this year's members did overall, Mr. Bilella stated, "They broadened their horizons and challenged their talents as well as the traditional ideas of theater." This year's productions were Godspell and Cabaret. Along with the actors, the crew built scenes and props for the play while the pit orchestra performed the shows music, to put together two amazing productions. Both productions showcased the hard work this group put in to create masterpieces that will certainly stand the test of time.

Academics

The Bay Shore School District offers a lot to their students academically through music, community service, law, science, and self expression. Throughout high school, many will begin to think about their future, what dreams they want to pursue and how to prepare for their careers. Bay Shore High School has a lot to offer these students, helping to prepare them for the future, while at the same time tapping into their passion. Many Seniors are fortunate enough to walk at graduation in June knowing what they want in life. Bay Shore High School has helped lay the foundation for that realization.

Given the stress of school work, part-time jobs and extracurricular activities, students kept their heads held high, even when work seemed to be too much to handle. Terianne Dunne agreed saying, "Music is my relaxation during chaotic times in school." With hopes of getting accepted to their top choice of college, students studied long hours and prepared for their S.A.T. and Regents Exams. Art Honor Society 2006 was the first year for the National Art Honor Society of Bay Shore High School and it brought forward many of the students who were extremely passionate about the arts. The sixteen members of this newly-developed club met every Tuesday in one of the art rooms in order to raise awareness of the arts and to serve the community.

"Since this is our first year, we are simply trying to raise awareness and to succeed at a community related projects as well as host some art shows of our own members," stated Mrs. Schultz, the adviser of the Art Honor Society. National Art Honor Society sanctioned students in grades 10-12 who showed exceptional art skills to join. "It is our mission to bring attention to the number of extremely talented young artists we have here at Bay Shore High School and to help support the growing interest in the arts program," said Mrs. Schultz. Bringing the National Art Honor Society to Bay Shore High school brought Bay Shore to a new light as we all took an astronomic step forward.

Symphonic Band

Bay Shore High School has always been known for their outstanding music programs. From winning Grammy's, to consistently putting on phenomenal performances, the raw talent on the stage was apparent to all that audiences. The three bands, Symphonic Band, Concert Band, and Wind Ensemble, have surpassed many expectations and continued to do so throughout the year.

The Marching Band, that consisted of students from the Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble, has also done well this year. Impressively, they were invited to perform at West Point Military Academy. This was a prestigious honor. "Performing in front of that many people with other well-respected bands was one of the highlights of the year," said senior Christal Turner with pride.

All three bands preformed exceptionally well and surpassed their directors' goals for this year. "In 27 years of teaching, I have never enjoyed a group more! This year's group is energetic, fun, and willing to take risks and meet challenges," said Symphonic Band director Ted Scalzo.

Seniors Kirstyn Berry and Brittany Flynn practice their songs for an upcoming performance.

"The main goal of Choir is to find your own unique voice," Dr. Morrow explained. In the 2005-2006 school year, 85 students in grades 9 through 12 were given the opportunity to search for their inner voices in the Bay Shore High School Concert Choir. The choir began the year with hopes of reaching out to people with their music both in and outside of the Bay Shore community. They performed winter and spring concerts as well as special performances at the Pilgrim State Rehabilitation Center, Southside Hospital, Brightwaters Grand Concourse and Dorney Park in Pennsylvania. The full choir meets five days a week to refine singing and performance skills. Each member also attends small group lessons once a week to improve sight reading and to go over the music.

The choir attempted many new challenging pieces this past year. "In our new room, we were able to concentrate more on our singing skills," said the Choir's Vice President, Rachel Cassidy. She added, "I was excited for the choir to be able to experience so many different genres of music."

The members of the choir grew closer to one another throughout the school year. Because many freshmen joined, the returning members found themselves sharing their knowledge and experiece with these first year members. Dr. Morrow was quite impressed with the success of the Concert Choir. He commented, "Overall, musicianship has improved, which for me is very thrilling."

Bay Shore High School has always been known for having an amazing music program, a local aspect of our community known in areas way beyond our hometown. One of its most impressive features is the fact that several specialized, yet smaller music groups exist, including String Ensemble, Showstoppers, and two phenomenol Jazz Bands. This year, the Thursday Night Jazz Project and the Tuesday Night Hip Katz came together to perform thrilling concerts. Audience members were always found humming catchy jazz melodies as they left the school.

Under the direction of Mr. Ted Scalzo, the Tuesday Night Hip Katz were a smaller group, consisting of only about 14 members. Through a mix of solos, improvisation, and an overall sense of passion and excitement, Mr. Scalzo's group left the audience in awe, impressing them with the result of their many hours of practice. "These students are magnificent musicians who truly understand the commitment required to perform in a group like this," commented Mr. Scalzo.

Similarly, Mr. Rotello's larger but equally enthusiastic group, the Thursday Night Jazz Project, provided community members with pieces that left ears happy and feet tapping. As Mr. Rotello explained, "This group impressed me every week with their ability to learn so fast and absorb so much about music." It is no wonder that Bay Shore has such a magnificent reputation for music in our schools.

The National Honor Society underwent a complete makeover this year with the help of new adviser, Mr. L. Dugger. Previously, this group of scholars organized one main event: the "Spring Fling." While this senior citizen dance was always important to the members, this year they wanted to achieve more, to make it really special.

Mr. Dugger proved to be the man for the job, always open to the students' ideas and suggestions. With over sixty members participating, there were quite a few events to be planned. "We added a lot of new activities this year," reflected senior member Jennie McAllister. She added, "My favorite was 'Sync or Swim'." Jennie was referring to the lip sync contest which evolved to become a new and exciting approach to fundraising. Another creative contest held this year was the "Trivia Challenge," where profits went directly to cerebral palsy research. "National Honor Society isn't just about getting good grades, it is about working for a cause and having fun while doing it," stated senior member Travis Fuchs.

Not only did these members create enthusiasm for scholarship through peer tutoring, but the promoted strong leadership and walked away with a new sense of character. It has been an absolute pleasure working with the students of the National Honor Society, said a proud Mr. Dugger. The 2005-2006 school year really exemplified what the students of Bay Shore High School are truly capable of.

« Science Olympiads »

When asked what they thought of the 2005-2006 Science Olympiads, club advisers Mr. Loewen and Mr. Tomaswewski said, "Science is not the belief, but the will to find out, and our group this year was eager to learn." With a combination of eight years of experience (this was Mr. Loewen's seventh year and Mr. T's first) the team approached competitions with high hopes, great expectations, and a wide range of knowledge.

Meetings were not weekly or daily like some other clubs, but held on a more personal level. Individual members met with team members participating in the upcoming events to get more of an insight on their weaknesses and strengths before the big day.

The making of the Tre Buchet, a long distance launching catapult, was one high point for the team this past year. Another unique fact about the 2005-2006 Science Olympiads team was not only was this club an after school activity, but a half year elective offered to those team members truly dedicated to scientific achievement.

Service Honor Society

Did you get involved in 2006? Once a month, Bay Shore High School's Service Honor Society met in the Little Theater with first year adviser, Mrs. J. Elhers. How did they get involved in Service Honor Society? In order to be involved, members contributed a minimum of 15 hours of community service. Was it okay to do more than 15 hours? Sure it was!

One of Service Honor Society's major events was the Spring Fling, which was a dance for senior citizens. The club hired a band to play oldies music and they served dinner and dessert. Some other activities that they were involved in were Stuff-A-Bus, the Breast Cancer Brunch, Stream Team, Habitat for Humanity, Southside Hospital Easter Visit, Locks of Love to name only a few. This year's members of Service Honor Society also designed a t-shirt to help raise funds for the club. Since this year was her first, Mrs. Elhers reflected with pride that, "Service Honor Society members represent many different backgrounds, but came together for the good of the community."

During the 2005-2006 school year, Bay Shore High School's String Ensemble immersed itself in the sweet sounds of symphony. Violins and violas filled the room with soft, calm, melodies while the cello and bass added their deep masculine sound. "It's a little community that enables you to become closer with your peers while sharing good music," said Kiera McNeil. This is what String Ensemble was all about, the sound, the intonation and hitting the notes.

String Ensemble, a selective group of students who met twice a week with Ms. Senatore, were exposed to a variety of jazz, contemporary music, and other challenging genres. However, these students were very experienced and up for th challenge. "They need to be responsible, practice hard and possess maturity," said four-year instructor Ms. Senatore. Each and every day, they reached greater heights, and even played level five and six N.Y.S.S.M.A. solos.

These students also donated their time to the community, participating in Breast Cancer benefits and the Hall of Fame Alumni Benefit. "Performing at charities and benefits makes it feel like an enjoyable community service activity rather than a regular school club," remembered senior Marcus Dupuy fondly. String Ensemble was about more than just playing instruments, and even more than a club; it was an opportunity to learn and succeed in music.

Adviser Ms. C. Acunzo proudly.

Despite several disappointing cancellations such as the homecoming parade, this eager bunch did their best to remain spirited. They kept their morale high. Ethnic Pen: April 21, 2006

Each year, Bay Shore students have the privilege of attending the student writers' conference, Ethnic Pen, but this year seemed to surpass all others. Focused on its theme, "Ethnic Lights: Messages of Hope in a Diverse World," the conference celebrated a fusion of ethnicities through sharing works of writing. Bay Shore High School welcomed several dynamic keynote speakers, including National Poetry Slam Champion, Marc Bamathi Joseph and Chris Abani, a Nigerian-born poet and author. Perhaps the most well-known speaker, however, was Joe Fab, the writer, producer and co-director of the documentary film Paper Clips. Broadcast on HBO and the winner of multiple film festival awards, it captures a group of Tennessee students who create a memorial for Holocaust victims out of paper clips, each one representing a life that was tragically taken. His thoughts and messages were both moving and inspirational.

With over six-hundred people attending Ethnic Pen, its triumph was not only measured in the eloquence of the speakers, but in the effectiveness of the workshops. One of the head student coordinators, Michael Phelan stated, "I think it was a great experience for high school students to work with award-winning authors in order to establish a greater appreciation for writing."

Ms. Nina Wolff and Ms. Shannon Handley both coordinated the annual event throughout the course of the year along with about twenty very dedicated students. Not only did they organize workshop schedules and introduce guests, but prior to the conference, the Ethnic Pen Committee put together a condensed English curriculum based around Fab's Paper Clips for all Bay Shore students. Ms. Handley, pleased with the conference's tremendous success, stated, "Ethnic Pen was Fab-ulous this year. Every student learned about the power of memorials and the power of the pen."

Joetry Jam

There is a time when digging up that old writer's notebook is the cool thing to do. Stickers consume the front and the binding is so worn that it is falling apart. The book is open and the mystery unlocked. Things never intended to be shared spill out. Those doodle-filled pages of love poems and paragraphs of sweet sorrow are like music to eager ears. Crowds of students poured into the Little Theater, hoping to hear the deepest thoughts and bottled emotions of their classmates.

The Poetry Jam, hosted by the Creative Writing Club, is an experience enjoyed twoce a year by students and staff alike. With over 175 people attending and 40 people reading, the Poetry Jam was able to live up to its name. It was truly a "jam." There were so many different people, but everyone was there for the same purpose: to express themselves.

The Poetry Jam opened a door to understanding and helped connect the students of Bay Shore High School. By listening and truly absorbing each other's work, the attendants of the jam were able to relate their experiences. "We came together, read together, and bathed in mind provoking poetry." That same thought was heard echoing through the halls of Bay Shore High School for days to come.

Awareness Werend

Bay Shore High School's Awareness Weekend is a great experience that unites both students and faculty. Awareness Weekend was introduced in 1989 and continues to "break down walls and build bridges," says Adviser Jim McGowan, The weekend makes students feel better about their lives because they realize that there are other students who have similar problems. Our school is very lucky to have such a unique program available. The weekend allows its participants to share personal stories and life experiences with one another.

One of the greatest appeals Awareness Weekend is that no two weekends are alike. "This year, there were new panelists and guest speakers that I had never heard before," Stephanie Boynton, a senior, explained. She continued, "It made the weekend more enjoyable."

The weekend reaches out to students with troubles ranging from family problems and depression to broken hearts and the stress of school. McGowan commented, "It never ceases to amaze me and continues to inspire me that the Awareness Weekend impacts so many young peoples' lives, changes some lives and even saves lives."

Class of 2006

The 2006 Senior Banquet was a glamorous night of food, ocializing, music, and great dancing. Held at Captain Bill's, xcitement permeated the air as the graduating seniors filled ie room. Despite being greeted by camera flashes, heading raight for the food was everyone's number one priority.

As the music played and the seniors danced, it was clear not this night was going to be one to remember. For one night, ne thrill of graduating was put on hold, and the drama and ghts between friends were forgotten. For one night, the senior lass was united, and differences were finally insignificant. And or one night, the senior class had the time of their lives. "It was a reat way of uniting the senior class outside of the school, and it llowed everyone to spend time with one another in a different nvironment," said Jessica Fraser.

By the end of the night, smiles filled the faces of all of the seniors, and it became obvious how successful the banquet was. "Senior Banquet was a blast. I forgot how much fun our class is," reflected Rachel Cassidy. Although every senior walked away with different memories, it was clear that the 2006 Senior Banquet was most definitely unforgettable.

BAY SHORE

Bay Shore High School's 2006 Spring Sports season started with a bang. All of the players were eager to get back on the field and change history. The Varsity Softball team strived to win another state championship and the Girls Lacrosse team hoped to surpass their standings from last season. "The 2006 spring sport season has been amazing so far. I love playing softball for Coach McGowan. This is my third season playong for him and i've loved every moment of it" said Senior Betsy McNulty. Similarly, the Boys Lacrosse team was ready, with sticks in hand, for another amazing season.

The Boys Tennis team was ready to out match any opponent and both track teams were ready to out run, out jump, and out throw any team that was up for the challenge. "I wait all year long for the season to start. The spring season is the highlight of our year. We have so many good teams and they make it a great end to the school year" Reflected Brian Ball. Everyone was ready to meet all the challenges of a rigorous sports season. With practice schedules and weekend games, all of the teams proved that they had what it takes to set new standards for seasons to come. With a strong end to the 2006 season, the

Since the team was made up of many skilled underclassmen, Bay Shore's baseball team has hope for years to come.

2006 was the first year for Junior Varsity Coach Rob Drago. He reflected, "The more difficult a task appeared to be, the harder the boys tried in order to achieve success." Practicing six days a week at Gardiner Manor made it easier to strengthen the Bay Shore Baseball program. Coach Drago expected the team to have fun but

"One Heart. One Mind."

The Lady Marauders and defending State Champions started off their 2006 season with "one heart and one mind." Under the direction of Coach Jim McGowan, the girls started off the spring season with two weeks of early morning practices. The Lady Marauders stayed devoted with strenuous practices six days each week at Fifth Avenue School. Leading the team were co-captains senior, Kristina DeMeo and Junior, Erika Sullivan. The girls looked forward to Erika Sullivan's return this season after sustaining a season-ending injury last spring. Although the team lost three great seniors last year, five outstanding ladies from the class of 2006 stepped up to lead them to success. Coach Jim McGowan, who has been coaching for 24 years, stated, "The girls had a true desire to excel, had a great work ethic and respected each other tremendously. They have been playing highly competitive ball for years." The team's philosophy has always been to be prepared physically and emotionally for any obstacle to come their way and with hard work and true dedication, they will surely succeed. "In order to be a champion, the team must have a feeling of unity; each player must put the team first, ahead of personal glory. We have one heart. One mind," stated Coach Jim McGowan.

Pride and passion are two great words to describe the 2006 Junior Varsity Girls Softball team. The team consisted of girls ranging from grades seven to ten, but no matter what level the girls reached, they were all dedicated to their team. Coach Jason McGowan had the girls practice everyday after school in hopes of following the foot steps of the Varsity Softball Team. "My team was very dedicated and passionate. We all look forward to reaching the status of the Varsity Team one day," stated eighth-grader Sarah Stein. The Junior Varsity Team was ready to face any obstacle that came their way with their love and wholeheartedness for the sport.

Crew is a sport that requires great determination, teamwork, and passion. The members of this year's team demonstrated outstanding qualities that created a more cohesive unit. "Crew was a tremendous amount of work, but when we learned to work together, we were able to speed to the finish line," exclaimed Robert Swain.

The team consisted of many different grade levels. By learning each individual's strengths, they pulled together to become a victorious team. When asked about the group's bond, Coach B. year's Boys Varsity Lacrosse Team started the season with one goal: to win. In past years, the teams seemed to always find success. With ten returning seniors and twelve Juniors, the boys were eager to surpass their previous record. "It takes a lot of work to bring a team together," said sophomore Mike Oross, "but we always managed to get things done." Throughout the season, the boys pushed each other to do their best in order to improve the team as a whole. After being named Most Valuable Player in 2005, Captain Jordan Zimolka looked forward to capping off his high school year with the best season yet. The team defeated Lindenhurst in their first scrimmage; it was an intense game filled with energy. Although Junior Colin Flood's hopes of returning were shattered due to a winter sport injury, the team had high expectations for Nick Bagllo, Justin Jensen, Frank Marzillo, Tom Blum, and Jordan Zimolka. These players hoped to pick up the slack on the offensive end of the field. The team had a strong defense with senior Joe Young as well as numerous returning players. With the stellar defense of returning goalie Mike Rock, they looked to keep numbers off the score board. The team was very successful and made sure to meet most of their expectations.

The Boys Junior Varsity Team began their season with a bang. The team's strength showed with both returning and new members. They were excited to play, and sharied a deep desire to be Varsity players next year. All of the boys worked hard to improve their skills and went to practice everyday. "Always try hard and you will do well. That's what I always do," said sophomore Anthony Marino. The team showed a great amount of enthusiasm and passion for this intense sport. The Bay Shore Girls Lacrosse Team entered the 2006 season a tad apprehensively. The team ended their previous season as Long Island Champions and was in the New York State Final Four. After such a glorious season, the beautiful females on this team were not sure how they were going to live up to the precedents set by the former squad. However, with pride pumping through their veins, these girls found strength in their own talents and in each other. After rigorous practices and the constant pressure the girls placed on each other to be the best they could be, these ferocious competitors proved they were up to the challenge. They banded together to create an unstoppable force to be reckoned with.

"There isn't one person on this team that I would not take a speeding side-arm shot straight to the gut for," said freshman Gabi Weigand. This sums up the camaraderie this group of goddesses had. "I just wanted to jump for joy with Lauren and Sam every time they did something spectacular to benefit the team," said sophomore Meghan Smith. The girls loved and counted on each other for everything. This bond they shared helped them to hunt down and eat the Northport Tigers, turn the East Islip Redmen blue, send the Ward Melville Patriots back on a ship to Britain and shoot the Deer Park Falcons right out of the sky.

The Girls Junior Varsity Lacrosse Team got off to a similar start. They were a young team eager to live up to the standards set by the Varsity team. Under the guidance of veteran coach Katy Hahn, this group of talented girls bonded together to become the best they could be. Each girl hoped to advance to the varsity level in the future yet enjoyed every minute of their Junior Varsity fun lacrosse time.

This year's Boys Varsity Tennis team started out the season impressively, vinning their first game against Brentwood 7-0. Losing only one senior nember, the boys were able to continue the success they acheived last eason. The team refined skills and kept in top condition by practicing furing the off season, which greatly aided their game. "I won't accept mything less than what a player is capable of doing, and I know what my eam can do," said senior captain Trevor Romanzi. The boys had indefeatable teamwork and worked especially well together since a najority of them had been on the team and playing under the guidance of Coach Carney since ninth grade.

The knowledge the players had of the game and their experience laid ne foundation for their goal of becoming League Champions. "The team cossessed an insurmountable amount of experience and as long as we tay concentrated we are bound for the league championship," exclaimed enior captain Mike Killeen. The boys stayed determined and took their loal seriously, going to every practice ready to play.

"It's the mentality that you have towards the game that will lead you to uccess," said Coach Villa of his Junior Varsity Boys Tennis team. The 2006 layers not only had the right mind-set but were fueled with excitement and the desire to defy all the odds by winning their first match of the year. Vith such a young team and a new coach, each backhand and serve vere crucial to this great season. "Every game is an opportunity to measure ourself against your own potential," said sports star Bud Wilkinson. This ear's Junior Varsity team worked hard to prove themselves, and show not they could measure up, making this season one to remember.

The girls competed with a loyal and motivated attitude. With only nine members, most of whom had less golf experience than others, the team worked twice as hard and competed fiercely. "They showed willingness and were eager to learn the game and become good players," stated Coach Sullivan with pride.

The players on this year's team proved they had the determination to win. Yet, they also took time out to enjoy each other's company. They celebrated at weekly pasta parties that helped build camaraderie and team spirit. "To those who don't think golf is a great game, we say, 'Get a Grip!" exclaimed Coach Sullivan.

After losing 12 experienced seniors from the previous year, the team was still ranked the best in Suffolk County, Long Island and the entire state of New York. In addition, they were ranked at the National Level. That is a lot to be proud of. "Other teams thought we would be weaker this year, but the girls have really stepped it up in Cross Country and Winter Track. We expect the same this spring," commented Borbet. Sprinting coach, Allison Mauri said, "You could tell the Spring Track season looked pretty promising. We had a lot of potential and talent." This season's expectations were to win the League 3 Championship and their fifth straight Outdoor Championship. BAY SHORE

Beyond the shore,
There is a world that awaits us.
Outside of the town that we call home,
There are many places that yearn for our visit.

THROUGH

YEARI

Reflecting on our school careers, we realize how we've matured to become young adults, ready to bring light everywhere we go.
Together, we've experienced grief and happiness...
Seen good times and bad,
Lifted each other up when we were feeling down,
And caught those who have fallen.

Beyond high school, there is a world of uncertainty...

Years that will bring doubt to our minds,

But we will take the knowledge of life that we have aquired here in Bay Shore, and we will overcome.

We will succeed.

Ten years from now,
When we look back at our high school days,
We will laugh and cry at all the moments we shared.
The friends we lost...
The friends we gained.
We will think about everything that's made us who we are.
THEN,

We will remember where we came from, as we reflect lovingly upon our dearest Bay Shore.

With a wide variety of course offerings, students were given broad choices to benefit their potential. Individuals involved in the program learned the ins and outs of their future careers and prepared themselves for all required aspects.

Bay Shore High School is extremely lucky to have the chance to study with BOCES. The training enabled students to gain techniques that they could apply to their future fields of business. As part of their experience, students were given the opportunity to work in the specific field they were studying. By attending certain classes for two or more years, students have the opportunity to earn college credits. COLOPHON AND CLOSING

The 2006 Marauder Yearbook, entitled "Beyond the Shore," was the finest yearbook Bay Shore High School has ever seen. The 2006 Yearbook Staff went above and beyond to make the eighty-third volume of the Marauder a priceless treasure that Bay Shore graduates can reflect upon for years to come. The staff's dedication and determination to make this the best edition ever published truly reflected the creativity, skill and resourcefulness of Bay Shore students.

Under the guidance of adviser Ms. Kelly Cuozzo, the staff was successful in making the 2006 Marauder a masterpiece that will withstand the test of time. This year's talented staff was fortunate enough to work with some phenomenal individuals, who were graciously willing to lend their skills and expertise. Mr. Jim Wikso, an extremely talented local professional photographer, discovered by staff member Nicole Jewell, allowed us to use the picture adorning the cover of the book, as well as the arial view of Bay Shore seen on the title page. Wikso spent many hours allowing the staff to explore his photographs and choose the winning shots you see within this edition. Additionally, 2006 graduate Mr. Kasra Hoshmand, created many pages throughout the Marauder. Although not a member of the Yearbook Class, Kasra dedicated time both in and out of school assisting the staff with much of the creativity within this book.

The Marauder was printed by Taylor Publishing Company of Texas, under the supervision of Mr. Neil Sanders. The formal photography seen within the book is credited to Quaser Lifetouch Studios. Any additional photographs were taken by staff photographers who, for the first year, mastered the art of digital photography. This book was produced by K. Cuozzo's Creative Writing for Publication Class.

The four-color cover was designed by the staff and showcased Jim Wikso's photograph of the Robert Moses lighthouse. Four hundred and fifty copies of this book were printed with four four-color signatures. The standard type face utilized throughout was Vanguard. For the fourth year, Taylor's computer program Elitevision was used for all the text and graphic elements within the Marauder.
