Bay Shore High School
155 Third Avenue
Bay Shore, New York 11706

The year 2008 marks the tricentennial of the Bay Shore community. Before we can even begin to wonder where our lives will take us, we must reflect upon the memories of this unique town that have certainly helped shape us. Think back to your youth; when we were young, everything about our town fascinated us. We would stare agape at the Brightwaters Lake captivated by the beauty of nature. Something as simple as a day spent at Wohseepee Park was more rewarding than all the money in the world. Although these times were innocent and pure, we soon realized that there was far more to our community than meets the eye.

Our transition into high school was anything but simple. We were able to grasp every unique opportunity that Bay Shore had to offer. All previous knowledge was deemed commonplace by the depth surrounding our novel realizations. Seemingly indestructible barriers obstructed our paths, yet we managed to overcome each one. Every challenge we faced was succeeded by another more difficult one. Yet, due in large part to our empathetic community, we learned to persevere. We gradually realized that we needed to embrace the changes our lives and community will inevitably face.

From where we now stand, we can only look ahead. Although we may sporadically look to the past to reflect upon previous mistakes, we must not dwell on them. We must embrace all changes as quickly as they come. No matter how epic these changes may seem, we must learn to adapt. As we slowly absorb each new experience, we will learn to retain all we deem important. Despite the future obstacles that are certain to block our paths, our memories of Bay Shore will guide us. This community's cherished past of 300 years has endured the test of time. Bay Shore will continue its renaissance as each new year is embraced.

With high morale and a benign spirit, the senior class of 2008 took the stage in September as the supreme echelon of this structure we knew as Bay Shore High School. The four year traverse, marked by our inception as freshmen, had inevitably reached its bitter-sweet conclusion. As each year rapidly progressed, bonds of friendship were broken, formed, and fortified. We were put up against numerous challenges, and whether big or small, we managed to persevere. Strengthened by our experiences, we were finally ready to embark upon the real world. But before we could even attempt to embrace our futures, we had to cherish our fleeting past; taking nothing for granted, we captured our goals. We never allowed our memories or experiences to escape us. Contrarily, each reserved a place in our hearts and was imprinted into our minds. No matter what our future endeavors may be, we can and will never forget our humble beginnings. As a solid foundation, Bay Shore High School has enabled us to break all tangible barriers and has ensnared us with the potential to succeed in life after high school.

Just like the graduates who preceded us, we were able to completely comprehend how extraordinary our school and community are. With great tenacity, we were able to overcome challenges inconceivable to some and leave the halls of our alma mater in utter bliss.

An Evening To Remember 2/14/08

Although it seems so far back, it was only four years ago that the class of 2008 entered the doors of the high school, excited yet naive of their future expectations. During the weeks, months, and eventually years spent growing up in "The Heart of the South Shore," those same individuals experienced and accumulated numerous memories that collectively united each person as proud members of the class of 2008. This year, anticipation was a common sentiment as Bay Shore's Tricentennial led the way into one of the senior's most awaited events: the Senior Banquet. As Valentines Day approached it was transformed into something more than just a holiday filled with Russell Stover's chocolates and singing telegrams; Captain Bill's was flooded with the Class of 2008, dancing and laughing the precious night away.

"If only for that one night, differences were set aside and everyone just focused on enjoying the time together", reflected LaToya Thomas. It was the opportunity for the seniors to escape their hectic schedules and gave the class of 2008 the chance to reconnect with fellow classmates. For many, that night encompassed the true "Marauder Spirit." "From the food to the music, and especially the smiles plastered on all our faces, Senior Banquet was truly one of the highlights of the year," proclaimed Christelle Prophete. A special day for anyone, Valentines Day was a memory that will forever be cherished, especially by the Class of 2008.

Bay Shore High School is known for its phenomenal athletic sector. Our sports teams have exceeded all expectations and excelled tremendously this year. "This season alone, many teams have really united to become one voice, one sound. We got our acts together and are ecstatic about the results," declared senior, Alicia Fuchs.

Progressing beyond tradition, the teams have stocked numerous trophy cases with a number of prestigious awards. These same students demonstrated unbelievable display of Bay Shore pride with each and every victory. These teams elevated their performance through numerous competitive events, and included members who maintained academic merit. These athletes were also seen devoting countless hours for their other extracurricular activities. With determination, they have upheld the maroon and white standard.

Although it was the last season for some, nothing stopped their steadfast spirit. "Being involved with Bay Shore athletics for most of my high school career, I can honestly say that I have learned the true values of teamwork, dedication, and success. Bay Shore has always been, and will continue to be a powerhouse program in New York. I am sad to be leaving this great tradition," stated senior, Justin Britton. Students and supporters of Bay Shore's athletic community will continue to cherish our school's legacy and will most certainly embrace all that is to come.

Bigger, FASTER, Stronger

Despite a recent history of chronic losses and less than prestigious season records, the 2007-2008 varsity football team started off its season with a bang. The varsity team kicked off the season with a 2-0 record for the first time since 1989. These early wins enabled the class of 2008 and the high school at large to unite.

Although these early wins were spectacular feats, they did not come without merit. Preseason started in July, allowing the players to improve their physical capabilities and build team unity, which enabled them to play more like a team during the fall.

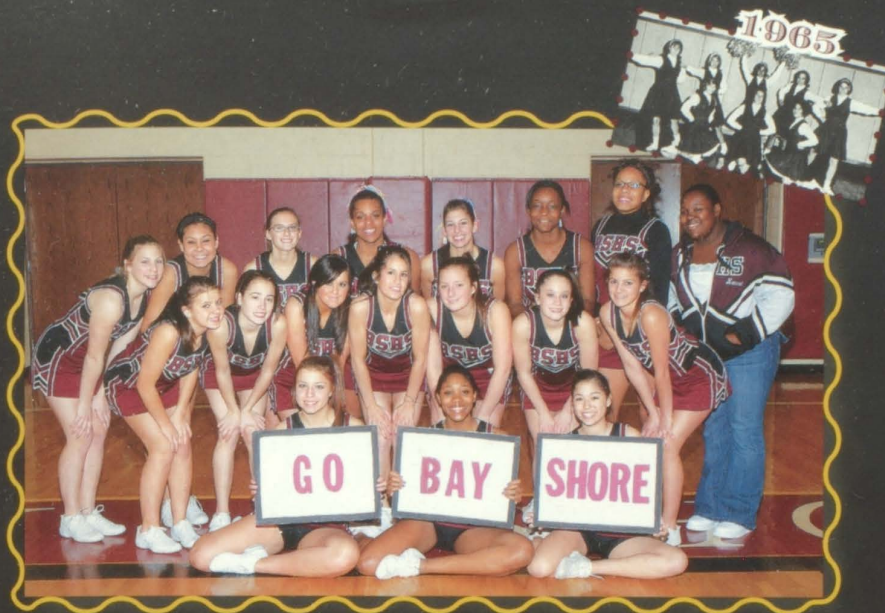

Another change occurred in Bay Shore High School Football this year: the creation of an exclusively freshman team. Due to an increased overall interest in the sport and higher expectations for seasonal records, many more students decided to take the time in their schedules for football.

Probably the greatest factor of the success of this year's varsity football team was the camaraderie among team members. "We are more than a team: we are a brotherhood," declared senior wide-receiver Darrell Mills. "Our teams show they are not just playing for themselves, but for each other," added head coach J. Giattino. Due to their drive, commitment and close team bonds, these football teams delivered the best season in over a decade for Bay Shore.

- Alysia Arnold

As the football game began, the chant "Bay Shore fans clap your hands," could be heard from all ends of the football field. Yet the source of this chant was not the crowd, but the faithful, Bay Shore High School Varsity Cheerleaders. Whether between high kicks and jumps, or while flying through the air, the cheerleaders never digressed from their carefully planned routines. The 2007-2008 season was a complete success and the girls displayed a remarkable dedication to their craft. "They all share a passion for the sport and a desire to be recognized as the true athletes they are," explained Coach Brothers and varsity member Nicole Russo. This year's squad was unique in that only two seniors were on the team. "Although the team is young," said the coaches, "the girls bring spirit, support and enthusiasm to their peers, school, and community." The cheerleaders spent countless hours together, scrutinizing their moves and growing as a family. They impressed their coaches, school, community but most importantly, themselves.

The 2007-2008 boys varsity cross country team was composed of hard-working and dedicated boys. Under the guidance of a new coach, the boys improved themselves in hope of winning the league title. "We compete in the highly competitive league III. On an individual level we hope to get as many runners as possible to the state championships," stated Coach K. Langer.

The boys practiced for six days a week and had two meets each week. With the loss of the runners of past years, they took more of a total team approach. "We constantly have to improve ourselves by running all summer, individually, and as a team once the season starts," said Langer. "We train in all kinds of weather, never taking time off."

Composed of eight freshmen, fourteen sophomores, three juniors and six seniors, the team was very self motivated. "The performances from many of the underclassmen instilled confidence that the team would stay strong in the upcoming years," declared senior captain, Marco Fiore. "The memories from Cross Country will stay with me my whole life."

These "Ambassadors of Bay Shore" definitely gave a performance that did not disappoint. "The cross country team has contributed a sense of pride to the community," added Langer. "Our success is synonymous with Bay Shore." The boys took a huge leap forward in the hope of continuing the legacy of greatness Bay Shore Cross Country has maintained.

HARDER.

BETTER.

STRONGER.

Starting off the season with 40 talented runners, the 2007 Girl's CrossCountry Team had a bright future in store. By practicing vigorously six days a week, with dual meets every Tuesday, it comes as no surprise that the team rarely gave up it's number one spot. Coach, Mr. S. Borbet, has been involved with the Cross Country team for 35 years and has been an avid runner himself since quite possibly the Stone Age.

With the support of Coach Borbet and assistant coach, junior Tate Gordon, the team ran the competition into the ground. At the Brown Invitational in Rhode Island, the team placed third overall, and second in the junior Varsity race. The girls encompassed one of the top teams in New York State under the guidance of captains Sarah McCurdy, Stephanie Barnes, and Kim Moran.

All three girls were phenomenal runners and among the top on Long Island. Aside from the athletics, the girls found this season to be their most close knit ever. Spending countless hours together and taking numerous overnight trips, the girls became a family. The girls made everyone extremely proud this season continuing to challenge the top teams on Long Island.

The 2007-2008 Bay Shore Field Hockey team was an extraordinary group. With 20 returning players, the girls were truly focused on bringing their program to the next level. They started the season over the summer which displayed both their commitment and drive to eliminate the competition. The team was unique, because it had no phenomenal player carrying the team on her shoulders. With a record of 13-5, the girls made it to the second round of playoffs.

The team held on to its tradition of choreographing a dance for the pep rally. It was an example of the team's endless energy, humor, and passion for the sport. Coach Drago incorporated "Lessons from Geese" into the girls' season.

Geese taught the girls how to stand information, to never leave a teammate behind, and to share leadership roles. The season taught the girls how dedication can truly pay off and how to make friends along the way.

The tradition of excellence also drove the junior varsity team. With a team predominately composed of freshmen, the girls came up strong and astonished their opponents. Under the direction of first-year coach, B. Rabin, each girl improved immensely. The girls grew closer as a team, but more importantly, as friends. The spirit of the team was fully captured as Captain Olivia George exclaimed, "I love field hockey so much, I don't even mind if we have to start practice in the summer!"

This year, the varsity boys soccer team truly showed its spirit and drive to succeed. With a record of 10-1-1, a personal best, the team displayed the traditional Bay Shore pride.

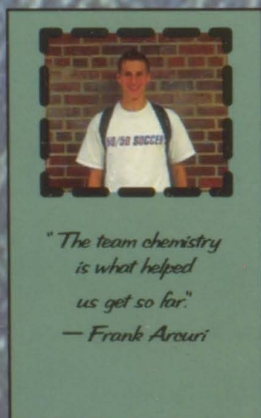

Led by Head Coach Jon Nelson and Assistant Coach Niedzwiecki, the boys practiced vigorously in order to become mentally and physically fit and prepared. They were even able to obtain a league title and go on into the League Championships.

"This year's team was the best to play in Bay Shore since the 1994 and 1995 teams that went to the Suffolk County Finals," said Nelson.

This was the first team in ten years to start a season with a record of 6-0 and make it to the playoffs just halfway through the season.

These talented athletes were not only concerned for themselves, but for the Bay Shore High School community as well. The entire team participated in the Wellness Alliance Fun Run in order to raise money for the Bay Shore High School Wellness Center. The dedication and cooperation displayed by this group was certainly representative of the true Marauder spirit we have come to know over the past 300 years and we know we always will.

The 2007 girls varsity soccer team had some great team chemistry this year. Despite not meeting their own high expectations, they still had a great season. Coach Otto stated, "The team knows the value of hard work and how it will pay off during game time." Though the Lady Marauders did not reach the high goals they set for themselves, they were able to stick together and build a lasting bond. With the majority of players comprised of juniors and seniors, they were able to compete intensely in League II.

The 2007 girls junior Varsity soccer team had a young but talented squad. This team competed against some of the top junior varsity teams on Long Island. Coach Dan Atkins said, "Despite not winning every game, all the games were close which was our goal." The girls were able to build a bond which helped them succeed.

Great varsity teams are compiled of great junior varsity players from previous years which is why there is a positive future for the Bay Shore Girls Varsity Soccer Program for years to come.

H<sub>2</sub>O: Two Parts Heart...One Part Obsession.

The 2007 girls swimming and diving team had an excellent season. The team of 27 girls, led by sixth-year coach, M. Borkowski, consisted of nine seniors, nine juniors, nine sophomores, and two freshmen. This season, unlike last year, the girls practiced at Farmingdale University. Rounding out the team were two terrific divers: Claire O'Connell and

Diana Donohue. This year's team was led by Dana Ulloa, Gabby Espinal, and Stephanie Angel. Finishing the season, the team ended the season with an impressive overall record of 7-3. In the League II division, the team placed third. And, nine of the girls also competed at and won their County Championships. Along with these athletic accomplishments, the team's overall GPA was an amazing 3.507.

The feats that these girls have reached will definitely inspire future teams to attempt to live up to this team's vast accomplishments. It is abundantly clear that the Bay Shore High School Swimming and Diving team legacy will continue for years to come.

The 2008 girl's varsity tennis team, led by coach Jackie Fitzharris, had an amazing season to say the least. Due to intense daily practices and great team coordination, they were able to advance all the way to the second round of county playoffs. Britlyn Woletsky and Brittney Sanders fulfilled their ultimate goal of making all-county for their double's team. Elaine Ettinger, Sarah Baker, Johanna Trupp, and Grace Wood also surpassed team expectations as they were named all-league athletes.

Even off the court, the tennis girls exemplified scholar athletes. The girls budgeted their time among various community service events, after school commitments, and consistently made the honor roll. The girls even had team exclusive theme parties further displaying their pride for the sport. Ali Hoffman agreed, "Our team's camaraderie helped us win games."

Similarly, under the guidance of coach John Carney, the girl's junior varsity team enjoyed a terrific season. The team, which included students from grades nine through eleven, gained experience that would surely prove valuable for their future athletic endeavours.

In just the third year as a varsity team since its rebirth, the varsity boys volleyball team redefined dedication. With cooperation and endurance, these eleven athletes made it all the way to the semifinals, exceeding their already high expectations. Under the leadership of sixth-year coach, Jill Pickus, the team practiced six days a week in the gym and harnessed a record of 13-3. "This is the first time in ten years that boys volleyball has been to the playoffs," Coach Pickus proudly said. Pickus has coached five of the six seniors since they were in the middle school, who, over time, have formed a close-knit friendship among their teammates and with their coach.

This team did not just play volleyball at the school; five played travel volleyball and competed at the highest level in the junior olympics the previous year. As they moved from 22nd place to fifth, Sam Wood, Mike Dauernheim and Paul Posillico were named all-county for the 2007 season. Other winning titles included Tristan Harper and Brett Voges gaining all-county honorable mentions and Chris Cruz and Jeff Stubbings receiving all division recognition.

Finishing the season with a record nearly as extraordinary as the varsity, the junior varsity boys volleyball team came together to bring back old traditions. Both boys volleyball teams laid the foundation for all future teams to come.

"In the continuation of hard work and determination, this year's volleyball teams, both varsity and junior varsity, made tremendous strides."
 - Courtney Falconer

They could be seen pacing our halls, and after school everywhere from Peer Support to the Mock Trial meetings. They were also involved in almost every social outing Bay Shore had to offer. Varsity coach, Sasha DeBonis, described them as "possessing a mental toughness never before seen," and as "such skilled players that coaching them for this season was amazing." They were the members of the 2007-2008 Bay Shore Girl's Varsity Volleyball Team.

"We rely on each other, we defer each other, and we sacrifice for each other, because our team is the ultimate champion," stated junior Nicole Weissert. The girls had one goal in mind this season: to make it to the Long Island Championship. With the incredible hitting skills of the sophomores, the vicious serves of the juniors, and the inspiration heart provided by the seniors, the girls strived to be more than just a team;

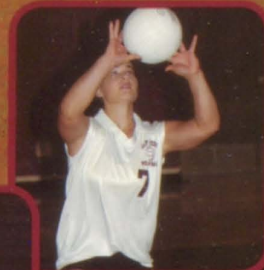

they grew to become a family. "We're only as strong as our weakest player, and with everyone out on the court possessing tremendous skills in every area, we win because we can," exclaimed senior Jill Onderdonk. The team ended its season with an 11-1 record, and were seeded fourth in their superb run in the play-offs.

By learning from the talented varsity squad and following in Bay Shore's tradition of athletic excellence, the junior varsity squad also enjoyed a season to remember. "Each girl has great strength in one skill and is very consistent in other skills," stated Coach Jennifer Mackin. They showed a colossal amount of Marauder pride every time they stepped onto the court, which led to an impressive season record for the girls. They effortlessly rebounded from their errors and perfected their skills, making these future varsity members forces to be reckoned with.

With drive and agility, the team established itself through acrobatic precision.

The girls were ecstatic to finally bring gymnastics to the varsity level. Strictly adhering to the motto, "gymnastics is not just a sport, it is a way of life," led them to many victories this year. The 2008 Bay Shore High School Wrestling Team possessed talent, strength, endurance, and most of all, dedication, all of which were essential to the success of the team. This year's wrestling team displayed much passion and fervor for their sport. Under the leadership of Coach Rosener, they started off the season with many intense, demanding practices which proved to be an integral part of their success. The upperclassmen set the bar high by training rigorously to place in the league and sectional tournaments. They also led the team by keeping the younger wrestlers motivated and helping them acquire the skills necessary to be successful. This year's group was much younger than previous years, with half of the team being freshmen, but this was a definite advantage in Rosener's eyes. "We have a lot of talented freshmen and sophomores, so the future looks bright," positively recalled Rosener. This year's team, regardless of the abundance of underclassmen, met all competition with confidence in each member's physical abilities and was able to tackle all obstacles presented to them.

The Bay Shore Boy's Varsity Basketball team was top notch this year. With dedication and hard work the varsity team advanced to the Suffolk Class AA County Semifinals. The team had one of the best seasons this year with a record of 17- 4. The team ranked third in the county and after scoring mostly wins, they never let their self-confidence undermine their success. The boys won all their home games with the support of the crowd, the biggest turnout for any sport at Bay Shore High School.

They practiced and ran drills everyday after school and before games. The spirit displayed by the team and the spectators who cheered them enabled the team to go far. The team displayed immense talent and, after a rewarding year, became a family both on and off the court.

Both junior varsity teams delivered excellent seasons as well. Coached by newcomer Dave Mayo for the first year, the ninth grade team showed their drive to play on the higher levels in the future. "Every game was competitive this year, but we had the confidence to win. We never miss," said freshman player John Horowitz. The players learned the Bay Shore offense and developed their skills so they could uphold the Bay Shore tradition of winning. They showed their heart and kept their mind on the game. They contributed greatly to the reputation of Bay Shore High School athletics. This year's varsity and junior varsity teams were slam-dunk successes.

"The team is only as strong as its weakest player," could be heard from the high school gym, two hours a day, six days a week. Because of this, the team did not have any weak players. The girls' basketball teams made significant contributions, not only to the reputation of the Bay Shore athletics, but also to our community. With ten girls on each team, physical limits were pushed and collaborative goals were exceeded. They played as a cohesive unit and developed a better understanding for the game, as well as an increase in their successful free throws. It is because of these characteristics that the junior varsity team won the League Sportsmanship Award. In addition to numerous car washes and participating in the Judi Shesh Run, the junior varsity team also started their own fundraiser in order to raise money for Ms. Kelly's sister. The girls showed that it is not the quantity of victories, but the quality of the players' hearts that make a team successful.

Led by Coach Leslie Danowski, the varsity team enjoyed many successes. Key players Najia Bangs, Brittany Torres and Taylor Lombardo were named to the Suffolk County All-League II Team further encompassing the team's success. The teams' bonds with their coaches played a major role in their achievements. "I absolutely love this group of girls," said Coach Janine Mazzie, "they are dedicated and hardworking and so much fun to be around." Their relationship with the people who led them was almost as strong as their cooperation with each other. The 2007-2008 season marked the inception of a new era: the era of a Bay Shore Girl's Varsity Bowling Team. Despite the novelty, 14 girls stepped up to the challenge becoming the founding members of the team. Led by coaches Leighanne Abbriano and Dawn Vallone, the girls were inspired to strive for personal bests rather than wins. "Bowling was different than any sports team I have been involved with. What I think made the difference was the lack of emphasis on winning, but rather the focus on sportsmanship and having fun," reflected senior, Kate Cangelosi. Captain Gabriella Gomez led the team with a phenomenal average, and an enthusiastic spirit which helped the team members set realistic goals for themselves. At the end of the season, the connections between the girls bonded them into a sisterhood. Although the girl's bowling team had a humble beginning, they set the momentum for all bowling seasons to follow.

Fifty-two pairs of muscular legs filled the track this winter with a team of boys better known as the Bay Shore High School Boys Varsity Winter Track Team. With Coach Kurt Langer leading the way for his first season, the team was confident that his 30 years of coaching experience would benefit their team. Despite numerous goals set out before them, the boys did not disappoint their team or themselves. "We performed well as a team, placing third in the section XI team championships, and we were ranked eighth on Long Island by Newsday," stated Langer. "We also had two individuals qualify for the New York State Championships held at Cornell University."

This particular group proved to be very dedicated, as they practiced six days a week in all types of weather. "The boys really connected this year, strived to succeed, and always worked hard whether it be at practice or meets," proudly stated senior captain Frank Arcuri. The success of this team is a reflection of the community as a whole, because the boys ran their hardest to make their community proud. Langer summed up the season with, "Without the support of the entire community, our achievements would not have been possible."

"I really enjoyed trading T-shirts with other teams and I'll miss everyone I've run with, guys and girls."

"This was the most memorable season. I am going to miss the team and the fun meets."

— Senior Kate Keagins

"On your mark, get set, WIN!" This was the mentality that the girls varsity winter track team held on to all season long. This year's team continued the tradition of excellence and ended the season successfully.

"This season was great. It was my last season of winter track and I'll remember it forever. I'll miss always being in shape!" reflected senior Kate Keagins.

Great competitors and athletes, many of the girls obtained their personal best times this season.

Running in the rain, snow and freezing cold, the girls persevered and had an outstanding season. This would not have been possible without the guidance and support of 108th consecutive season coach, Steve Borbet. The girls along with Coach Borbet worked hard all winter long to win yet another county championship title along with several other titles.

"I worked extremely hard all season in hopes of becoming all-county. After all of the strenuous practices and meets, all my hard work paid off in the end!" exclaimed Senior Jasmyne Spencer. The team worked together and pulled through this season making Bay Shore the team to beat.

◀ Sophomores, Danielle Glynn, Samantha Griswold, Shelby Vaccaro, and Marissa O'Meally pose as Fanta girls.

There is no place like Bay Shore High School on Halloween. This year, the students and faculty once again flooded the halls with creative and innovative costumes. Some of the costumes were purchased while others, created at home, seemed far more original. Some students decided to make group costumes, and some groups of friends showed up at school as characters from a movie or television show. Teachers usually dress individually, which does not hinder on the creativity of their costumes at all. Teachers have come in on Halo's eve as human statues, our mascot (the maruader), and even as other students. All the hard work that the students and faculty put into their costumes is judged at the annual Halloween costume contest at the end of the day.

Entering junior year, the pressure was on. He knew it was the most important year of high school, yet no one knew what to expect. With Michael Barreda heading our class as president, it was sure to be a prosperous year. Junior year brought a lot of new freedoms which correlated to the most important issue of our lives. We were preoccupied with Drivers Education and the ability to go out for lunch but knew when to snap back into reality and study hard. The SAT's and Act's were quite burdensome but once they were finished, brought a feeling of big relief. After that point our focus quickly shifted towards Junior Prom, what we had been waiting for since freshman year. But it disappeared as quickly as it came. Next on our agenda was the search for college. However in the end it was all so rewarding. When asked about his experiences as president of the junior class Michael Barreda stated "I'm truly honored to be president of such a diverse, talented and unified class."

Although this year seemed to be the best yet, the class of 2009 is sure to leave their mark come September in the final year of High School career.

SOPHOMORES

▶ Ashley Goldin and Rajan Silberman stop in the hallway to catch up on what happened last weekend.

▼ Shanique Archer and Brittani Williams relax after a difficult exam.

2010

No longer timid freshmen, the sophomores were determined to make a name for themselves. Now accustomed to the workings of the high school, they managed to seize opportunities usually limited to upperclassmen, such as varsity status on sports teams. As sophomore year progressed, the importance of education became real with the reality of they battled the PSAT's and new school policies while still attempting to relax and have fun. They displayed what they could contribute to the school, as many attended Homecoming, Stuff-A-Bus and several other school functions. Although there was no pending pressure of applying to college and dealing with the stress of standardized tests, the future seemed unclear. Lead by class president Destiny LaLane, the sophomore class had a very strong foundation for growing stronger as a whole. "The sophomores are a unique mix of people; that is what helps us get along so well", exclaimed Lalane.

Sophomore year may not have been the most important year, but it set the path for future in the high school. This year was a stepping stone towards our future as the class of 2010.

FRESHMEN

► Natalie Espinel, Danielle Photenas and Sordaly Hernandez enjoy a lunch time filled with laughter and most importantly friends.

2011

▼ George Jones sets an example for his peers by working diligently to complete an assignment.

▼ Chris Carrero, Robbie Ryder, and Aybike Aydin take a break from their studies to socialize in the library.

In the minds of a select few, September 6th 2007 can essentially be defined as "a day that will forever live in infamy." On that fateful Thursday unsurpassed excitement mingled in the air with reverent anguish. An overwhelming sense of anticipation reverberated throughout the halls and across the classrooms as Bay Shore High School opened its doors once again to welcome the next generation. "When I think of my first day of school, the only thought that comes to mind is that pang of mass hysteria each of us experienced" explained Alex Jackson. For the class of 2011, the march up the front circle cemented the time spent at the middle school into nothing but a distant memory.

"The middle school gave our class the foundation we needed to prosper, but this year, marking the anticipation of high school allowed every individual the opportunity to transcend all expectations" reflected Alfred Arnold. In a year typically characterized by finding a balance between demanding academic and social schedules, the class of 2011 strove to demolish all hurdles thrown their way. Armed with not only the guidance of former students who once faced the same predicament, but also with their own past experiences, the class of "20-11" readily united to fully embrace Bay Shore High School's marauder spirit.

Fartoo often we underestimate the power of a touch, a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, a candid compliment, or even the smallest act of kindness, all of which have the potential to turn the worst of days around. In addition to parents, teachers serve as our caretakers who may shape us more than any other individuals we will come across. We often tend to overlook this superior group of individuals who have a passion for education, as well as a love for the youth. Bay Shore High School educators encompass dedication and organization. They create comprehensive lesson plans on the daily basis, all of which ensure a top-notch education for the students. Teachers attend staff meetings, serve on committees, and attend workshops to further develop their teaching skills. Nevertheless, they devote countless hours to provide extra help for students and to facilitate various extracurricular activities of their interests.

There is no doubt that the faculty at Bay Shore High School will change numerous lives this year. Who could possibly forget the comical techniques used by faculty members such as Mr. Marco and Ms.

Acunzo? Who will forget the ethics of Mr. Selzer and Mrs. Rossen? Will anyone honestly forget the spectrum of educational games created by Dr. Herbst? A generation from now, former students will continue to quote the words of their educators around a dinner table, and to children of their own. One afternoon, former students will teach those inspiring lessons and they will inevitably turn into someone's lifetime work. They will surely say a kind word that seems insignificant, yet holds potential to heal a hurting child, making a difference in their life forever.

With a highly dedicated group of students, Bay Shore High School had several different activities for them to participate in. Even while juggling busy schedules, students took time during school and after school to create the base for their futures. Because of the wide selection of activities, students were able to choose ones that suited themselves best and were also fun and helpful. From Art Club to Bible Club to Dance Team, there was something for everyone to take part in.

After all the hard work, sweat, tears, and good times, the students' efforts paid off and they were able to enjoy and reflect on their job well done. Each year the different groups continue to grow and become more organized. Most groups have a president, vice president, secretary to lead the clubs' success. With this hierarchy in place, the groups were able to accomplish things more effectively. In addition, many clubs held fundraisers to help raise money to benefit their pride: the Bay Shore High School and the town they love.

► A few educators walk through the middle school hallways before they teach the 8th graders about HIV and A.I.D.S.

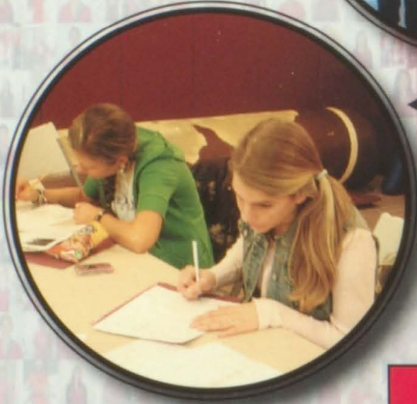

In the eighth year of the A.I.D.S Education program, the members showed more passion and exuberance than members of any previous years. The members dedicated more than two hours each week to take part in the program. After months of learning, the students got much closer and more knowledgeable of the morbid facts about AIDS. The group met weekly throughout the winter in order to prepare a lesson plan to teach middle school students about HIV/AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. Director of Athletics, Claude Kasman has been advisor of this club since its inception. "I enjoy interacting with the students and observing their passion and commitment to this cause." said Kasman. "It's a great learning experience for not only the middle school children but for the high school students that are in the club."

The goal of this club was for the students to acquire an in-depth understanding of all sexually transmitted diseases. The students developed a strong knowledge and passed their awareness to the 8th grade students. Its was an opportunity to give back to the community. After spending many hours learning and preparing, the high school students were able to share all their knowledge with younger students and help prevent them from making unsafe decisions.

A Vivid Experience

The students of this year's art club surpassed all previous expectations. "This year, art club had a huge turnout. Many kids came by every Thursday to do their work. It makes me happy to see students enjoying art," said advisor Mr. Scinto. Art club students broadened their artistic horizons and experience by experimenting with various mediums such as graphic design, pastels, and even paint. The students found enjoyment expressing themselves through their art work.

As always, Mr. Scinto was more than happy to assist his students with the projects that they completed throughout the year. In his eighth year of advising the club, Mr. Scinto had never seen students with such raw talent. With his help, the students developed the skills that they will need to further their careers as budding artists.

Hope, faith, and love are just a few words that the members of Bible Club live by. The club met every Thursday from 2:00-2:30 pm and even until 3:30 when necessary. The club was run by sophomore leader Amanda Dambra, under the supervision of Mrs. Allison Pfeffer. During each meeting, the members circled up, read excerpts from the Old and New Testaments of the Christian Bible, and discussed the meanings.

"Bible Club is a really good program. It motivates people to get closer to God and to understand God in a deeper way," explained Cindy Tremino. "See you at the pole," was a saying the members lived by. Occasionally, the members circled around the flag pole to pray for the country, friends, family and our school. For these students, Bible Club enabled them to get closer to God and thank him for all our blessings.

-- Stacey Atherly

2007-2008 marked one of the most successful years for B.S.O.S.S. The club itself was enriched with more dedicated members and carried this enthusiasm to events such as Stuff-A-Bus & Adopt-a-Family. Their goals were to reach out to community members and become positive role models for the student body. B.S.O.S.S. Club met every Friday to discuss upcoming events and shows.

The step team had one of their best years as well. This year's team epitomized leadership, focus, devotion, and confidence. These traits helped them to reach the "Battle in the Apple" step competition finals, sponsored by HOT97 and KISS FM 98.7.

Under the instruction of senior officers Earnestina Leftenant and Amythyst Wilson, the team practiced annually at least two times each week and five days a week during competition season. "You either step up or get stepped on!" was a quote that Mrs. Lors, the advisor, gave to the team whenever they practiced. The team is very proud of all its accomplishments this year and is hoping that the trend will keep up in the years to come.

The 2007-2008 Computer Club consisted of nearly 20 students who were very interested in the field of computer science and basic proficiency in programs such as java. With students ranging from freshmen to seniors, the club allowed a wide range of interaction among students. A few years ago, it was started as a way for students to unwind after school, but over the years it has become an obsession for some. It met every Thursday and Friday under the supervision of

"I have been running this club for six years and I never grow tired of seeing the excitement on the students' faces as they learn and play together," said advisor Eggert. Having such a large class afforded students the opportunity to meet new people and make new friends. In computer club, the possibilities were endless. New doors were opened and the true spirit of the community was celebrated each and every week.

WRITING

In 1839, Edward Bulwer-Lytton coined the adage "the pen is mightier than the sword." These were the very words that the 2007-2008 Creative Writing Club lived by. Since 1999, advisor Mr. Pasca has provided a place for interested thinkers and writers to take the risk to express themselves through their writing. This organization has grown tremendously each year. This year the Creative Writing club had close to thirty regular members and another seventy-five sporadic attendees.

The members of the Creative Writing Club were extremely devoted to their writing. Since its inception, the club has hosted fifteen "Poetry Jams" and has published ten collections of student writing in its Writers' Block. This year the Creative Writing Club took their writing a step farther and composed an entire work celebrating Bay Shore's tricentennial. The Writers' Block has received a 1st place award by the American Scholastic Press Association, and a rating of "superior" by the National Council of Teachers of English.

"The Creative Writing Club is truly a phenomenon" exclaimed Pasca. The Creative Writing Club is a testament to how powerful art is, and the role art plays in the lives of young people. Without the continued interest and success of the creative writing club, curious writers would not have a place to express their true thoughts and emotions. Through this club, students learned about themselves, others, and the world at large by using the power of written word.

"Dance is non verbal!" This phrase was often used by the Dance Team's choreographer, LaTonya Tolbert. Tolbert has worked with the team for the past five years. Ms. Michelle Denino who has coached the Dance Team for eight years recently formed another dancing group for Bay Shore, the lyrical ensemble. The Lyrical Ensemble, which has been in existence for three years, combines Jazz, Ballet, and Modern into their dances. Both groups practice two times a week in the Jean Geyer Dance Studio. All the hard work and practice that the Dance Team and Lyrical Ensemble members put in at the studio makes each one of their various performances exceptional.

The Dance Team has performed at Bay Shore High School's Dance Recital, the Bay Shore Community Summit, Boys Basketball games, the Bay Shore Arts Festival, the B.S.O.S.S. Fashion Show, the Homecoming Parade, the Arts Festival, and the Black History Presentation held at Bay Shore Middle School. Also, the Lyrical Ensemble performs alongside the Dance Team at the Bay Shore Dance Recital and Bay Shore Arts Festival.

In addition to the regular practices after school, many of the Dance Team and Lyrical Ensemble members dance with Ms. Denino during the school day in her Performance Dance classes and her Physical Education Dance classes. "The team's ability to take constructive criticism and learn from their mistakes makes each successive performance even stronger," states Denino. "This year, as always, I am excited to work with incoming freshmen on their dancing, who I hope to continue working with for the next three years."

Incorporating the art of dance as well as a love for expression has certainly showed just how fortunate we are to be students here in Bay Shore.

Half time was game time for Bay Shore High School, but the marching band's show was incomplete without the Dance Line. The girls danced in perfect synchronization with the band music in a lively and cheerful fashion. However, although the girls always had fun, it was not always easy.

The dancers worked studiously during third period and on Tuesday nights with Ms. Suzanne, Ms. Warshaw and Mr. Rotello. This year, there were twice as many girls as in previous years. Although the number seemed overwhelming, each girl's experience and background in music facilitated the remarkable results.

Not only did they march with tenacity in the Homecoming Parade, but the rhythmic team was also given the chance to perform in the Columbus Day parade alongside the marching band. The girls combined an art with their natural talent, and used it to bring pride to Bay Shore fans. The girls had the agility and coordination to hype up the crowds with spirit, truly encompassing Bay Shore pride.

The Bay Shore High School Environmental Club took the initiative to make changes this year. The twenty members met their goal of spreading awareness and inspiring people by taking action on environmental problems. They started an extremely successful fundraiser; the selling of Smencils. With students from all different grades involved, the group was much bigger and more productive than in past years. "It's a great way to meet new people and to help a cause that we all strongly believe in," said President Megan Smith.

They got involved, the group was different aspects of the environment ranging from recycling to raising awareness about global warming and other environmental problems. Led by Ms. Ward, the students met every Tuesday after school to discuss and devise solutions to these issues. "We're trying to move Bay Shore in the right direction in the hopes of becoming an eco-friendly town," stated the adviser proudly. The entire group enjoyed doing their part and was dedicated to helping a good cause.

In its ninth existing year, Film Club accumulated a total of 25 students who live for each other's candid interest in film depiction and creation. Throughout the year, the members involved themselves in every aspect of film making. They wrote, produced, directed, and edited their very own documentaries and music videos. Junior Matt Goldberg said, "Making documentaries is my passion and this club enables me to do so." Their passion for cinema brings these students together and establishes a fabulous environment. "With computer editing so available, more students come to the club with editing skills which is helpful in the production process," Ms. Kalter expressed.

The club does not just stop at their own desire for film making. They also give back. These dedicated filmmakers have created the Bay Shore Music Video Film Festival in addition to films of their personal interests. There, the writers, directors and editors of room 324 get to give everyone a little insight into the world of cinematography. Along with that, the Film Club also produced many shorter documentaries during an Ethnic Pen workshop right here at the high school. The members' interest in film has brought them together to express their passion as a form of art. This tradition will surely continue for years to come.

This year, F.B.L.A. has grown tremendously. With Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Fagan leading the largest F.B.L.A. group in Bay Shore history, these thirty-one business-minded students gather every Thursday to discuss all aspects of business, from regional competitions to Thanksgiving food drives and Christmas Magic. Though taking business classes are not a prerequisite for joining the club, many of the members have taken several business classes through their high school careers which gives them the edge in fulfilling their dreams of competing in as many categories of the regional competition possible. "I'm very amazed how F.B.L.A. has come a long way compared to previous years. Although only in existence for two years, the Lincoln-Douglas Debate team has quickly become an integral part of the Bay Shore High School community. Each Wednesday, its team members, all of varying grade levels and social groups, gathered to hone their debate and communication skills. In the words of senior member and founder Alex Sedler, "Debate team started as just a small idea and has allowed for Bay Shore to become active in the community." Strong researching abilities, a proficiency in public speaking, and a passion for arguing are only some of the qualities that this year's team possessed. "This is a club for everyone," reflected member Matthew Hutchinson, "Where else is a student afforded the opportunity to speak free of restraint?" With such a tremendous amount of gifted students, the 2007-2008 Lincoln-Douglas Debate team entered several prestigious tournaments and squared off against some of the top ranked schools on Long Island. "This year the debate team will go far because of the strong competence and instinct of its outstanding members," stated Coach John Selzer.

This year, the Gay Straight Alliance, better known as G.S.A., met many of their the Bay Shore community. It was not just a club fostering acceptance for the gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender populations; The G.S.A. encouraged all students to come and join in their activities and show their acceptance and tolerance.

Led by Mr. Fishon and Mr. Tomaszewski, the group took part in numerous events. They met every Tuesday after school in room 321, planning weekly events. During the winter, the group held National No- Name Calling Week and put posters up all around the school to strive for acceptance.

Over the course of the year, the members read books that helped raise awareness and encourage equality. They also watched a movie dealing with this topic to better understand these differences. Thanks to this club, Bay Shore High School became a much more nurturing and accepting place.

The International Club gave students the chance to gain knowledge about a variety of cultural backgrounds. It promoted cultural sensitivity and empathy, while connecting the students on an international level.

This year, the club was under the supervision of Ms. Moro and Ms. Solis. Members participated in community service activities such as becoming pen pals with ESL students from Brook Avenue Elementary School. This club related to its members in every way possible. Ms. Moro cheerfully stated, "We try to promote the idea of a global community so that we come to appreciate each other's differences and similarities." Learning about countries and their cultures not only satisfied students' curiosity, but also educated them.

The 2008 Marauder Yearbook Staff went above and beyond to deliver the finest yearbook that Bay Shore High School has ever seen. The staff dedicated eight grueling months in class, countless hours after school and innumerable hours at home to this publication. "I think what separated this edition from the rest was the amount of effort that was put into it. When looking back at the production as a whole, it is apparent that every page was scrutinized to the point of perfection," reflected co-editors-in-chief Lourdes Bermeo and Beverly Taracena.

Although the final product was a masterpiece, the staff faced numerous challenges. For the first time ever, there were two yearbook classes, which both facilitated and complicated production. With a limited amount of computers available, multiple class periods enabled the staff to make better use of their time. Then again, without the entire staff in a single period, lapses in communication led to blank pages, duplicated pages and often arguments between staff members and a glaring lack of unity.

Sixth-year advisor, Kelly Cuozzo reflected, "This staff was so hard working and so much fun! Crazy productivity and a lot of laughing...what more could a teacher ask for?"

The Bay Shore High School Maroon Echo received a tremendous amount of awards this year due to the great dedication of its staff. The 35 students worked arduously each day on their award-winning stories that led them to winning the Adelphi Quill Award. Their greatest feat was winning first place for "Outstanding Newspaper" among 35 other schools across Long Island.

"I like journalism, because Mr. Fishon is a great teacher. He created a very laid back environment, yet one in which we could thrive as writers," reflected junior, Rose McCallister. This year's staff was extremely eclectic. There were twelve sophomores, eight juniors and fifteen seniors. The writers were divided into two class periods, which at times complicated the publication process. In class, the students learned the stress, anxiety, and pride involved in journalism. They were taught how to lay out a newspaper, the proper format for an interview, and how to cope with the undeniable stress of meeting deadlines.

Bay Shore High School students enjoyed the Maroon Echo's monthly publication, because it gave them an insight to current events of local significance. "I like the Maroon Echo, because it keeps me updated and informed with what is going on in school and throughout our community," exclaimed senior Joey Eliopoulos.

Every year, the Maroon Echo has significantly improved, and this year was no exception. The award-winning staff members will surely excel in their writing for many years to come.

"A LIFETIME OF RUIN!"

Dedication? An innate instinct. Aptitude? A sixth sense. County champions? Try eleven times. Last year, the determined and brilliant Mock Trial Team had one aspiration: to make it to the final round of the Suffolk County Championship Playoffs. That May, the team accomplished a task three hundred and fifty other schools would attempt, but fail dismally. For the first time in almost a decade, the Bay Shore Mock Trial Team dominated over thirty-two other teams to become the Suffolk County Champions.

The team also defeated the best in Nassau County, gaining the title of Regional Champions and eventually were named State Finalists. "We always entered every competition expecting a challenge and we always left with our head held high," stated Elizabeth Brunton. Those feelings of pride, diligence, and compassion coursed throughout the courtroom and motivated the 2007-2008 team to reach new jurisdictions. "Joining a team with an outstanding reputation and high standards is a lot to handle," reflected newcomer Joshua Skou, "but in any case, it is truly an enlightening experience." Extremely excited about last year's success, the team could not wait to begin perfecting their trial methods and procedures. In the words of Coach J. Selzer, "Just one glance at the Suffolk County trophy displayed in the courtroom, and the team willed themselves to achieve even more than previous years."

The spirit of the 2007-2008 Mock Trial team could be best summed up in the words of Senior Member, Alexander Sedler, who confidently exclaimed, "Returning from a wildly successful season last year puts a lot of pressure on us, but we will rise to the occasion. We are Suffolk County and Regional Champions for a reason. We are going to do as we have done before in previous years, we are going to win...again!" This team truly highlights the character and pride displayed in a Bay Shore Marauder.

Helping the World...

The bright minds of these 50 students have strenuously researched and written about numerous important topics of the U.N. in hopes of winning Model United Nations Competitions. The 2008 Model U.N., led by Mrs. Litrel and Ms. Thompson, was an extremely important part of the school year. The students developed and enhanced their public speaking skills and created innovative solutions to global issues.

"Our juniors are especially strong this year," stated Litrel, "and we also have many ninth grade members because of the International Relations Class." Model U.N. cut across class and gender lines leaving membership open to anyone. "It's fun to meet new people, especially ones from other countries," said junior, David Rodriguez.

This club put Bay Shore High School on the "Model U.N." map. Although typically an elitist academic activity, Bay Shore was the only school from New York last year to win top awards at nationals. "It forces you to listen to people and work with them," added junior, Sunny Velez. "You learn to analyze what's going on and become more world conscious." This team was a great representation of Bay Shore's competitive nature.

Junior Kathryn Katzer agreed, "It is important that you move in a forward direction. It'll keep you more interconnected."

This year, there were over one hundred members in the club who offered their time to helping others. They met every Wednesday from 2:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and had additional training sessions every few weeks in order to ameliorate its students leadership skills. "I love being in peer support. It gives me the opportunity to help others as well as myself. It really makes a difference in the school" explained junior Megan Corcoran.

The members became more educated in mediation skills and were able to get more involved with the school and their peers. They learned to get along with different people and get involved. This year, Peer support members were successful in the time out room, at the fall and spring awareness weekends, and at numerous cultural exchange programs at schools across Long Island. Everyone was committed, nonjudgmental, and respectful in dealing with other peoples' situations.

After three successful seasons, the Bay Shore High School sailors have finally been recognized as a club. The young and dedicated team practiced and trained hard for each regatta. This year 18 members participated, practicing three days each week at Walker Beach in Brightwaters. They then competed in numerous regattas at venues such as Sagtikos Harbor and Maritime every Saturday. Having different grade levels involved gave a chance for any avid sailors. Coach Erin Blank has been coaching sailing for 11 years. She hoped for "A strong record to hold and improve upon." Club advisor, Mr. Hochman said, "I am always so pleased with the enthusiasm of these students. They give up their free time to pursue a topic rarely considered cool, and they have a good time doing it." This year the club was composed mainly of juniors who were infatuated with William Shakespeare's work. Their candid interest in studying Shakespeare has brought them all together. Whether they were deeply discussing a Shakespearean play or one of the many famous quotes of William Shakespeare, they had fun doing it. Junior Olivia Civardi jokingly said, "Everyone is very open, there is no modesty." The members of Shakespeare Club were also very involved with the Knight Horse Acting Troupe and helped plan its numerous visits to our school. Helping the school to better understand and appreciate William Shakespeare was definitely a goal of this club. They even had many future plans such as hosting a Shakespeare movie night. This club allowed for the students to go above and beyond the basic study of Shakespeare within school. The members of Shakespeare Club have realized that their love for Shakespeare was much more than a passion; it was a lifestyle. Together they spread their knowledge throughout the entire school.

"We're not here to tell you what to think or what to do. We'll just give you the facts about tobacco. The data, the gross pictures, and the people, are all real. We don't need to exaggerate what tobacco does to people, because the loss, the damage and the pain are all real too." This exact message is what the members of Teens Against Tobacco Use spread throughout the Bay Shore schools. "Our goal is to increase awareness regarding the dangers of tobacco use to younger students" Said adviser Mrs. J. Kent.

This year's group consists of 38 students, dominated by juniors. The club size of the club has increased significantly year by year with a higher proportion of male students participating. The T.A.T.U members met bimonthly to discuss different ways that they could depict the dire effects of tobacco. This year's members were energetic, smart, and supportive. The presentations exhibited were original, fun, and engaging. "We get a lot of feed back, presenting an anti-smoking message to students in other schools" Said adviser Mrs. J. Kent. This club will continue to teach people about the unhealthy outcome regarding tobacco use and second hand smoke, taking another step closer to ending tobacco use.

Life's a Stage

You could hear singing lively melodies and the sounds of harmonious singing in the hallway. You almost forget who the actors really are, because they have dramatic abilities comparative to Oscar winners. This year, the Bay Shore Thespian Troupe and Drama Club maintained the tradition of high rate performance skills.

Their hit musicals Once on This Island and Gypsy roped in a full house at each performance. But their success was not unearned. The members rehearsed challenging choreography with Ms. Brenner including African dance, tap and ballet. The actors strained their voices singing lively melodies and also played serious dramatic roles. The thespians exceeded the expectations of everyone, including their director Mr. Bilella.

The officers who were elected last year helped the incoming freshmen improve their performing skills - and assisted Mr. Bilella and Mrs. Brenner in directing and choreography. The actors put emotion in each performance and always managed to relate to the audience. "Thespian Troupe is full of talented performers," stated Joe Oreste. With all the time and effort they put in, these performers definitely stole Bay Shore's spotlight.

When the pressure was on, Bay Shore High School's own Trivia Team came through. The talented team used its vast knowledge to answer all sorts of questions to defeat rival teams. The young, talented, and determined students always wanted to reach the top. With the help and talent of Mr. Sullivan and Mrs. Southworth, the students were prepared for anything.

After winning the News 12 Long Island Challenge last year, they had a very tough act to follow. Although it was a great legacy for the team to follow, they once again stepped up to thrive against their competition.

"Web design is the window of Bay Shore High School to the world" said advisor Mr. Scalzo. Everyday after school in the music technology multimedia lab, five members got together and used their creative minds to redesign and improve the Bay Shore High School website. This year's group was more dedicated to change and more involved than those of any previous years. Not only did the members want to uphold the appearance of the high school, but they also were able to integrate parts of the Bay Shore community into the website. For the past ten years, the web design team has become more creative and willing to learn and try new things. The members were passionate about their work and truly dedicated to it. Meeting everyday after school from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., the members were able to come together and make the most creative website Bay Shore High School has ever seen.

Minds Far Beyond Our Years!

With a new co-club adviser, the 2007-2008 Women of The Future club exceeded all past expectations. Mrs. Angiporti, along with Mrs. Megan, assisted the club in becoming more involved in community service and school functions. The girls, who have been involved with the club since the seventh grade, formed even stronger bonds through leadership building activities and peer mentoring programs.

The Women of the Future club was sponsored by SNAP Long Island. SNAP, which stands for Suffolk Network on Adolescent Pregnancy, was founded in 1979 and has been working with Bay Shore Schools since Women of the Future's inception in 1994. The club was designed to be a safe environment where young women could explore their attitudes and beliefs on growing up in today's society. The girls participated in service learning projects and open group discussions on everyday issues. Some issues that the girls discussed included: Anger Management, Body Image, Gangs, Racism, and Teen Sexuality. Along with activities done at school, the girls went on a variety of trips to special programs. The girls participated in "Unity in the Community," which is a day of service in which the girls volunteered to help a community, either by cleaning up, or by visiting elderly people in a group home. SNAP also held the Leaders of the Future Conference for the girls at the end of the year. The conference allowed the girls to interact with SNAP's Women and Men of the Future club members from other schools.

Have you ever found yourself roaming the streets of New York City, head held up, gazing at the skyline? Everyday of our lives we are surrounded by such magnificent architectural feats, yet we never really stop to think about the people who built these. That is where woodworking club comes in. For the past six years, Mr. Raskin has been the advisor of Bay Shore High School's Woodworking Club, for the inner architect in all of us. This year the club consisted of students from all grade levels with a knack for building anything. Throughout the year, the students created various projects ranging from wooden houses to computer desks and even more simple things such as wooden airplanes. Mr. Raskin also taught the students proper methods of staining, painting, and how to urethane wood for the final appearance.

Most importantly, woodworking club allowed the students to pursue their own interests and gave them practical knowledge for the future. Senior, Jeff Cook reflected, "Woodworking is great. When I grow up and something breaks in my house I know I will be able to fix it now." Mr. Raskin has greatly impacted the students of woodworking club by giving them the tools necessary to make things for themselves and work safely and efficiently with wood.

Sports may be big in the halls of Bay Shore High School, but they only come second to academics. The focus is always on achievement and with the many programs offered to the students anything is possible. With a staff always willing to help and students always willing to learn, is easy to see why many Bay Shore alumni have excelled. However, while there are the simplicities of learning, with it comes a lot of hard work and stress.

"Juggling homework, studying, sports and jobs, is a real balancing act," said Junior Alicia McCormack, "but the programs we have after school are a good way to relax and have fun."

The academic programs offered in Bay Shore High School act as a foundation, especially to those seniors who know what they want in life after college. While preparing for SATs and college application deadlines, academics help express their creativity whether it be through art and music or an awareness weekend or poetry jam. While centering for their future goals and dreams, they know how to prepare for the rest of their lives and have fun doing it.

"This year's National Art Honor Society is an exciting year. We are doing projects that will touch people through the arts both internationally and locally" said Advisor Mrs. Schultz. The 2007-2008 National Art Honor Society encompassed twenty-eight students from grades 10 through 12. This year, they also had two honorary members which were both juniors. Students that joined the club needed to meet certain requirements such as involvement in artistic activities. Unlike the three previous years, it seemed as if the club has grown exponentially. All the members possessed unique characteristics, and were required to maintain at least a "B" average in their art classes to be considered for membership. They were very serious about their artwork and helping out the community through their work. At the end of the year, the society raised money to put towards the senior art award. Through their art, the society members depicted the world around them, celebrating their natural gifts.

The members were expected to be role models both on the field and in the class, and they did just that. The group of students that made up Athletes Helping Athletes was a mixed group of varsity athletes who were chosen to be leaders. Mrs. Drago said "this group is younger than ever with 14 new members, however more energetic and eager to learn than any other group before." This was not a group you could just sign up for; the criteria for members to be chosen was based upon athletic achievements, leadership and academic prowess. The student athletes were able to speak publicly with confidence and make the right choices regarding alcohol and drugs.

The members of Athletes Helping Athletes went through a selection process. First they were nominated and then they were interviewed. The club offered its help to all athletes in need. Awareness Weekend is an event almost offered exclusively at Bay Shore. It is a life changing event in which students are able to open up and feel confident doing it. It brings together all cliques of students from Bay Shore High School. Senior Booker Hucks said "Awareness Weekend was a great eye-opening experience. It helped me make life long bonds and long lasting memories."

There is no doubt that this is a popular event, because every year there is a waiting list. 135 students attended this years Awareness Weekend along with 15 adult facilitators. Awareness Weekend allowed students to grow, deal with traumatic issues and to bring closure and healing.

It enabled students to be able to trust one another with their problems and personal issues.

Though Awareness Weekend students were informed about the problems fellow peers go through everyday. This years Awareness Weekend had the same concept as every one before yet it was unique. Mr. McGowen reflected "No two awareness weekends are ever alike." Students who attended were supportive, attentive and empathetic.

"It is always a powerful experience. It was an amazing weekend that enabled me to make new friendships, and become more open-minded to my peer's situations and struggles. The skills I learned from it will stay with me forever and have helped me to become a better person. I wish everyone could have the chance to experience an awareness weekend" said Senior, Jasmyne Spencer.

Concert Band

Here at Bay Shore High School, the music program is taken seriously. With three award winning band sections, these musicians truly captured the tradition of a phenomenal musical education. With Concert, Wind Ensemble and Symphonic bands, each and every student strived for excellence and determination conveyed with every note.

The concert band consisted of strictly freshmen, while sophomores, juniors and seniors comprised both the symphonic band and wind ensemble. "The mix of the older and younger students seemed to gel very soundly this year," stated band director Mr. Rotello, "Everyone was focused on the task at hand."

The Bay Shore Marching Band combined both the Wind Ensemble and Symphonic Bands as the largest organization in Bay Shore High School. ## 2nd Period

6th Period

The Bay Shore high school choir has met goals that surpass those of other choirs. Led by Dr. Craig Morrow in his 20th as conductor, the students were taught how to sight read, match pitch, and blend. Separated into two periods the choir only had two chances to practice with each other before each concert.

The students practiced every day during their choir period and also got an extra period each week as a way to enhance each members individual singing. With a diverse spectrum of music ranging from "Jubilate Deo" to a Jersey Boys Medley, every aspect of singing as a group was utilized.

The graduation ceremony was the choir's final chance to say goodbye to both exiting seniors, and to their inspiring teacher. Dr. Morrow finished his final year on a high note. It was the end to a great dynasty, one that will be difficult to follow.

On a typical Tuesday or Thursday Night of 2008, one would find Bay Shore's finest musicians playing their hearts out to both contemporary jazz and the classics we all know and love. The two dedicated groups, the Thursday Night Jazz Project and the Tuesday Night Hip Katz, practiced every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. The two ensembles consisted of students from all grade levels. The groups held concerts throughout the year at the high school, the Bolton

Center, and the band shell on Main Street.

Under the instruction of Mr. Ted Scalzo, and Mr. Michael Rotello, the two talented ensembles practiced fervently to achieve musical excellence. The National Honor Society was all about enthusiasm, rendering service, promoting leadership, and developing character in all scholastically extraordinary students. After Mr. Dugger's fond farewell, Dr. Herbst stepped in as advisor and did not hesitate to initiate great changes. The members participated in many charitable events in order to benefit the surrounding community. They helped raise over six hundred dollars for the United Cerebral Palsy through a trivia challenge. In addition, committees were formed to focus on specific objectives. For example, a committee was in charge of organizing a spelling bee between students and teachers to raise money for the Long Island Diabetes Organization. Of all the fundraisers, the most bizarre yet most successful of National Honor Society this year was the pie throwing fundraiser, initiated by Senior Colin Madigan. "Getting homework every night in my classes is like getting a pie in my face, so I thought it would be nice for the teachers to physically experience my pain," explained Madigan. # Our Time To Shine

The bi-annual Poetry Jam, organized by Mr. Pasca's Creative Writing Club, continued to create an entertaining way for writers to express their true emotions without judgement. This event allowed students to come to a stress-free environment to show off their work. In this environment, it was easy for the students to feel free to express their ideas. This experience was not only open for students, but for teachers as well. Poetry Jam has remained the place where you could speak freely and your fellow peers can listen and get a sense of how you feel. Many of those who came and participated in this workshop entertained the students with not only poems but with stories and music. Students of Bay Shore High School told their stories through music, something that is heard every day. Having talented students display such creativity without words, showed that one can portray emotion without words. This celebration continues to take place in the little theater and is open to all students, teachers, staff, and administrators who want to be involved and support their fellow classmates. The teachers of the Bay Shore High School came and see their own students in a new, creative light. Their students came to show another side, and to relay messages to those who might be dealing with the same issues. Students who have been participating continued to perform and inform their peers about their wonderful experience at the Poetry Jam. This event gave students and teachers the chance to grow from one another's experiences and emotions. Poetry Jam continues to keep the bond between the staff and students strong.

To know the history of science is to recognize the morality of any claim to the universal truth.

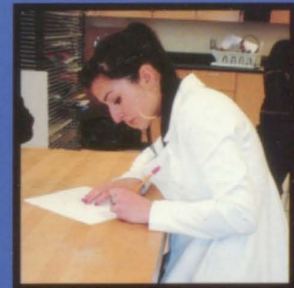

How fast does a human's hair grow in meters per sec? How many drops of water can you find in the Great Lakes? The 2007-2008 Science Olympiads answered questions like these effortlessly after thoroughly studying several different topics among various fields of science. Each member strived to excel in their particular area of science including biology, chemistry, earth science, environmental science, and physics. Their dedication and non-stop effort benefited them tremendously, and helped Seniors Sean Coomey, Colin Madigan, Kim Bogler, Marissa Espina, and Sarah Lukeman win an event and place third overall in this year's LIPTA Challenge.

This year members of the Science Olympiads achieved their goal of finishing in the top 10 of teams across Long Island. Seniors Marissa Espina and Jen Chu placed 2nd out of more than 40 teams in the astronomy sector of the events. "The team worked really hard and deserved its success; I will definitely miss the students and teachers that I have have worked with in Science Olympiads," reflected Senior Colin Madigan. Hearts raced as the time grew near to perform. Each musician played their piece with poise and elegance. The dedication these kids have for playing their instruments is unbelievable. The Bay Shore High School String Ensemble, led by Ms. M. Senatore, had another amazing year. As said by Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche, "Without music life would be a mistake." With the String Ensemble, this rule truly applies.

Being a part of this group is an honor because it is a very special part of Bay Shore High School. Playing pieces from composers such as Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, and Mozart. The members of the String Ensemble have been devoted to playing the violin, viola, chello, and bass for many years to get to where they are today. All it takes to become the best you can be is a little time and dedication.

This year's student council consisted of students who valued generosity, kindness, and compassion. They were always willing to do whatever they could to give back to their community. Even if it meant to hold fund raisers, food drives, they did whatever it took to show their community that they cared. "We hope to get our students to continue to be involved in school and community events. They do so much. They are great!" said Jacqueline Side, co-advisor along with Concetta Acunzo. Both have been the advisors for eight years. They enjoyed working with the students all year round because they loved to see how these kids are able to devote their time to give back to others.

There were four officers for each grade level but new members were always welcome to come and participate. The council met the final Monday of every month and whenever else was necessary. "As student council co-advisor, my kids make me look good because they do so many things for the community," said J. Side.

Whether sprinting across the finish line, sliding into home plate, or getting a hole in one, there is no doubt that the spring sport athletes of Bay Shore High School have a drive beyond any other sect of athletes. Commitment to the team and the game itself was no problem for team members such as varsity golfer Emily Lawson. "Golf became my life during the spring, but I enjoyed putting on the green with great friends," reflected Lawson. Practice everyday and countless hours on the weekends led numerous teams to victory.

Spending the transition from winter to spring on the track, court, field and water helped the athletes build tolerance to endure many different conditions of weather. It also gave them the ability to focus despite beautiful spring weather. The athletes pushed their physical capabilities to the limit in order to surpass their previous season records in hopes of advancing to the Suffolk County Finals.

These teams did not however end their practices when they left school. On their off days, many team members came out to support other sports teams, displaying their pride for Bay Shore's spring athletes. Furthermore, teams consistently got themselves involved in community service and fundraisers for the benefit of our community as a whole.

As the season ended, team records and personal bests were shattered. Team bonds were created that will last even as seniors go off to college. Expectations for seasons to come were raised higher than ever before. Bay Shore's Marauders brought home consecutive wins, expanding the trophy cases of the high school and enhancing the maroon and white pride.

The Bay Shore Boys Varsity Baseball Team had yet another successful season, as they made county playoffs for the second year in a row. Such a feat has not been accomplished for ten years. Despite losing many key seniors from the 2007 season, returning players were able to step up and fill some pretty big shoes. Senior captain and starting catcher Joe Eliopoulos said "Coming into the season, I didn't know how good we would do in such a competitive league, but after sweeping Walt Whitman I knew we would be returning to playoffs." That was exactly what the baseball team did. They ended the season with a record of 10-8 in the league.

The team did however have its doubts before the season started, with the fear of losing to power-house teams such as Connetquot. Because of this fear, the team pushed itself that much harder and defeated Connetquot twice out of three games. Despite such nice weather, and the temptation of going to the beach with our friends we practiced hard every day which helped us be so successful" said Senior David Galindez. Unlike the other teams in the county the Marauders practiced even on the weekends to prepare themselves for the toughest competition across the island.

The boy's junior varsity baseball team had a good season as well. Last year the team finished with 3 wins, however this year the team doubled that. With a new coach they had higher expectations and new standards to meet. Despite losing some players due to injuries and the varsity team, the team was able to stick together and come closer. They finished their season on a positive note. In the end of the season, it was virtually their passion and dedication for the sport that lead the 2007-2008 baseball teams to victory.

Pride and Tradition

The 2008 varsity softball team set a theme in the beginning of the season to "protect the tradition." Along with this theme and other goals such as to be prepared mentally and physically for each contest and to win counties for the 4th straight year, the group of 11 girls established their tone throughout the season and was named #1 in New York State. When asked about his group of talented young ladies, coach for 26 years, Jim McGowan, said "They are extremely competitive, highly skilled and have a great work ethic." The girls grew together and formed a strong bond among themselves. Kelsey Fischer and Cat Franzone explained, "We work hard and we do well. Not only are we a team, we are a family." The most successful softball program in New York with the most wins, Long Island championships, county championships, and league championships, Bay Shore has left a mark under coach McGowan throughout the years and more successful years are to come.

The junior varsity team, led by coach Dawn Mattfeld, continued in its older peers' ways by having an excellent season. The girls practice 6 days a week and worked hard under discipline and teamwork. "These girls really impress me with their efforts throughout the season," explained Mattfeld. "This was definitely a season to remember," stated Nicole Locascio. "We have respect for each other on and off the field." The group of girls strengthened their skills and finished the season with a great sense of cooperation and amazing grasp of the sport.

The 2008 Bay Shore High School Boy's Varsity Crew Team displayed its commitment and unity with every powerful stroke. When asked about the team's goals for the season, coach B. Blackman simply stated, "Row hard, pull strong, and win states." With intense practices on the river behind Dowling College, the boys strived to meet these expectations. Three-year rower Alex

Quinn said, "We tried to get as many practices in as we could so we could compete well against private schools that practice all year round." This was the first season that the team rowed two varsity eight boats, which reflected the prowess of the rowing program. # Live, Love, Row.

The Bay Shore Girl's Varsity Crew Team gave a whole new meaning to the phrase, "row, row, row your boat," because they were anything but gentle. These 27 girls worked hard all season to make their way to Saratoga Springs for the state championships, and they did not disappoint. "Crew is unlike any other team sport offered in school. It takes complete agility and strength to compete and even more teamwork," stated coach Bruce Meirowitz. Practicing six days a week and spending the majority of their weekends at regattas proved just how dedicated this group of girls was.

"Crew is definitely a team sport," said junior Jill Ferraro. "It takes the cooperation of the whole boat to get it moving. If one person isn't in sync, then the whole boat can't row properly." Not only did the girls excel to states, but they dominated the competition in Newburg Eastern States as well. Every boat came home with metals and the girls did an excellent job in competing against teams who row year round. "We go up against some steep competition, including Row New York and Newburg. These girls have been training all year long and are surprised at how well a single season rowing public school can do," exclaimed Alexa Keshtgar. As the season ended, captain Kristina Boccio reflected, "This year's team was very successful, because of the members' communication skills. Because of great communication, the younger rowers have set a standard for all rowing seasons to come."

TIME AND ROOM

The 2007-2008 Bay Shore High School Boy's Lacrosse Team definitely stepped their game up from the previous years. From summer tournaments to open gym in the winter, the team showed great commitment in doing all that they could to prepare for the season. In season, the team practiced 6 days a week from 2:45 - 5:30 on the new turf. The team consisted of nine seniors, 13 juniors, two sophomores, and three freshmen, led by team captains Michael Oross, Frank Marzillo, Jesse Roden, and Sal DiLegge.

Head coaches, Tim Cox and Michael Tierney lead the team this year to a successful season record 10-4. The record gave them the title league champs and put them into playoffs. "The reason why we made it so far was because we came together as more than a team: a family," stated junior, Gary Guinta about this year's success.

The junior varsity team also had a remarkable season. Under the novel coaching duo of coach Leary and assistant coach Montalvo, the team reached an amazing record 13-1. "Every day we worked hard but we still had fun. We all had the same goal of becoming better lacrosse players," exclaimed sophomore Kyle Gordon. The junior varsity team consisted of eight sophomores, 11 freshmen, and two eighth graders.

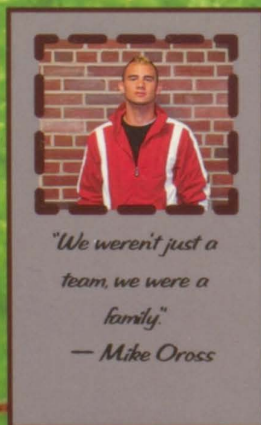

Overall both teams had outstanding seasons due to their endless effort and passion for lacrosse.

On March 3, 2008, the girls lacrosse team took the field with the determination to succeed on both the varsity and junior varsity levels. The girls had an outstanding season yet again, overcoming the competition in Division I. Comprised of three sophomores, seven juniors, and nine seniors, the team had outstanding senior leadership. Coaches Mr. and Mrs. Pfeffer had the girls on a strict practice schedule, sharpening their skills and precision of passing to carry them into the playoffs. With a little hard work and determination, the girls pulled through and finished the season with a 12-2 record. "The senior leadership is definitely what carried us so far this season," said senior Johanna Trupp when asked about the key to the team's success. Passing the tennis courts in the spring, you could hear the swishing of tennis racquets as the boys varsity and junior varsity teams successfully aced their opponents. As the season unfolded, with every serve, return, and volley by the players, the boys' tennis teams got one step closer to achieving their goal of attending the Suffolk County Championships.

Led by varsity coach John Carney, the boys were pushed hard. The abilities shown by every member greatly passed everyone's expectations for the group.

The 2008 team surpassed the records of teams before them and has certainly made an example for years to follow. After such a monumental season, all the teammates left with memories, just as valuable as the experience they earned this year.

Behind the obvious goals that came with being on a team, members made amazing strides in teamwork, sportsmanship, and over-all skill. Ending their season with pride, the team is sure to be remembered for years to come.

It takes great awareness and skill to play golf. Luckily those are some of the main attributes of all the players on the girls' golf team. This year's group was larger and more involved in the matches than those in the past, and the team included many veterans as well as new players. They represented the school well at matches, whether they were home or away, by showing sportsmanship and good teamwork. "See it, believe it, do it," exclaimed captain Mary Horton. With the way they fulfilled this slogan, it should have been their team motto. The group displayed their capability on the field and in the classrooms, as great golfers and even better students.

With expectations to improve the record of previous years and qualify for the Suffolk County Tournament, the team practiced every day after school with their coach, Andrew Sullivan. After coaching and advising the group for the past six years, Mr. Sullivan said, "I'm so unbelievably proud of what a great group of girls I get to coach." The team even managed to get many underclassmen involved in the sport. The group's technique and expertise has raised the standard for years to come.

Bay Shore has a strong tradition of being a powerhouse in spring track. For years, the team has shown its prowess and skill at this difficult sport. This year's boy's track team upheld this tradition and left the Bay Shore community with a deep sense of pride. The 2008 Bay Shore Boy's Spring Track Team had a new addition this year: coach Kurt Langer. Langer and fellow coach Andres Bormeo trained the boys strenuously and helped them become confident in their abilities.

By the end of the season, Langer and Bormeo trained their athletes harder than ever which proved to be monumental to the team's success. Despite hours dedicated to practice and numerous weekends filled with meets, the boys managed to bond well with each other creating life-long friendships. With the help of their talented coaches, the spring track athletes hurdled all obstacles put before them, and sprinted their way to victory.

EYES OF 2008

Memories From The Class of 2008

Although we are young adults and are starting a new chapter in our lives, we will never forget our childhood memories; they have made us who we are. Today, we wear designer Ugg boots and Coach shoes, but back in the day, we used to rock jelly shoes that squeaked when we walked. Even though at 17 and 18, we think we know everything about relationships and life, we used to depend on M.A.S.H. (Mansion, Apartment, Shack, and House) to tell us what our future held. As we leave high school and venture off into the real world, we will see reminders from our past all around us. Many of these childhood unforgettable moments were spent here in the Bay Shore schools. We will never forget these times; the toys we shared with friends at recess, the movies we watched at sleepovers, the cartoons we stayed in bed to watch on Saturday mornings or the video games we borrowed from friends. These are times we'll hold on to. And one day, far in the future, our childhood treasures are certain to be among our fondest memories.

Retirees 2008

Brian Brachio

After eleven years of remarkable dedication, Dr. Brian Brachio has decided to leave his legacy in Bay Shore High School. Reflecting back upon his first year teaching, Brachio proclaimed, "It was a tough year, but with the support of expert teachers and administration, it was a great year."

Some do not realize how important a teacher really is. Dr. Brachio met students as freshmen, who graduated from Bay Shore, went on to graduate college, and have come back to say, "thank you."

The return of these adults who were once students has always been an amazing feeling and ranks among the most memorable moments of his teaching career.

Brachio did not limit his services to the classroom. He has been involved with soccer, robotics, and science olympiads. But Dr. Brachio's journey does not stop there. He plans to read, travel, write a book, and spend some time teaching at the collegiate level during his retirement.

— Shantora Lester

Craig Morrow

After two decades of teaching at Bay Shore High School, choir teacher Dr. Craig Morrow has made the difficult decision to retire.

At the beginning of his career, Morrow remembers enduring hectic rehearsals and rushing to prepare for concerts. Over the years, Morrow has helped hundreds of students develop their voices in his concert choir and after-school Showstoppers program. "I will definitely miss Dr. Morrow, because he has helped me so much. Without his help, my voice would never have sounded the way it does now," exclaimed Shannon O'Connor, senior.

Throughout his career, Morrow has also been involved in the bi-annual theater productions. For each production, he assisted in directing the pit orchestra and participated in each, playing the piano. He has also been involved in the production of Cabaret Nights over the years. Finding a replacement for this inspiring teacher will surely be easier said than done.

— Colin Madigan

Gayle Bellafiore

Throughout an astonishing 37 year long career as a Special Education teacher, Gayle Bellafiore has inspired many students and colleagues to succeed. During her time at Bay Shore High School, Mrs. Bellafiore actively participated in many activities including senior picnics, SAT prep courses, and mentoring programs.

Although Mrs. Bellafiore was a member of the special education department, her other forte was in English, but she is certified in music as well. During her career as a teacher, Mrs. Bellafiore decreed, "The best part of teaching is when the look of bewilderment becomes the glow of understanding and accomplishment."

As a teacher for many years in the C.W.C program, Mrs. Bellafiore crossed over to be a science, social studies, economics, and math teacher. After reflecting upon her career, Mrs. Bellafiore proclaimed, "As a first-year teacher, you have not a spare minute to call your own."

Mrs. Bellafiore was not just a teacher, but a caring friend to her students and fellow staff members. Through her caring and understanding, she has proven to be a valuable asset to any student that she has worked with. As she approaches her retirement, Mrs. Bellafiore's ultimate goal is to visit every national park in the U.S and Canada. At the moment she is halfway there!

— Anthony Postiglione

Bruce Raskin

Memories are priceless and Mr. Raskin's memories are ones he will cherish forever. Of his fondest memories at Bay Shore High School, Raskin reflected, "There were many. Seeing the students at graduation is just one." Now, after thirty-two years of teaching, Mr. Raskin has chosen to retire, leaving a legacy of dedication. Kicking off his first year of teaching, Raskin was loaded with hard work that included keeping up with the students and their projects. Now Raskin enjoys the respect his students give him as a teacher, a friend, and a colleague.

Aside from teaching during the day, Mr. Raskin has also been involved with after school activities. He advised the Woodworking Club, taught at PM school and supervised after school detention.

As his career at Bay Shore High School comes to an end, Mr. Raskin's well-deserved retirement plans will begin. Following a long career, Mr. Raskin plans to travel, golf, do some special woodwork, and most importantly, relax.

What is the Bay Shore School District known for if not for its tradition of excellence? Each year, as a new class graduates from the high school, these individuals carry on this legacy to their colleges, and eventually their careers. As Bay Shore celebrates its tricentennial this year, the town, its residents, and the school have each taken the time, in some way or another, to reflect upon Bay Shore's scintillating history. As the class of 2008 unknowingly prepares to leave behind a legacy of its own, some of the seniors have deeper roots in Bay Shore and its history than others.

"I feel because both of my parents grew up in Bay Shore and graduated from the high school, that I am more part of the community in a way," explained Taylor Rock. "It makes me wonder what the high school was like a generation ago, when my parents were there, and what the high school will be like a generation from now, when my children attend." She, along with a handful of students from the graduating class, can be deemed "legacies," because either their mom, dad or both parents are Bay Shore High School alumni. As 2008 marks Bay Shore's Tricentennial, it also marks the passing of an entire generation through the high school.

The year 2008 was a very historic year for Bay Shore: it was our town's 300th birthday. Bay Shore's Tricentennial was celebrated throughout the year with exhibits, festivals, and dedications. All of these events educated and enlightened the citizens of Bay Shore about the three hundred year history of their beloved town. All of these festivities culminated with the truly spectacular Tricentennial Summit.

The land of the town was bought from the Native Americans in 1701 and coined Bay Shore by the English Royal Parliament in 1708. Before this historic purchase, the land that is now called Bay Shore was divided up and called, by their Native American names, Penataquit, Wohseepee, and Awixa. Paying tribute to its Native American history, these names have become street names in present day Bay Shore. Some structures that were built during the 1700's are still standing in our town today. The Sagtikos Manor, a British Headquarters during the American Revolution, was a colonial residence that has become a historical site on Main Street in Bay Shore.

Various institutions throughout Bay Shore took part in commemorating Bay Shore's three hundredth birthday. The Historical Society printed postcards with pictures of locations in Bay Shore. During "Restaurant Week," many of Main Street's restaurants gave discounts to their customers and highlighted their exquisite dishes in honor of the celebration. Nearly all of the events that usually occur in Bay Shore took on the title, "Tricentennial." Publications also paid homage to the historical year. Throughout its 300 years, our town has grown as a community and the people, as always, remain united as the family known as Bay Shore.

MY DEAR PARIS,

Who knew I would be lucky enough to teach not one, but TWO wonderful, amazing Tyson girls? I will forever thank Shaudé for sending you my way. I admire you in more ways than you know. Your steadfast determination, focus, drive and unbelievable strength are inspirational. You are fierce! You are one of a kind and like me, tell it like it is. Remember, you and me, "we're kindred." I am going to miss seeing you each and every day for our chats. You have no idea how much. But, I also know that we will stay a part of each other's lives. This is merely the beginning.

Who else will baby sit Riley when I go away?

Paris, you mean so much to so many...always remember that.

"Strength does not come from physical capacity.

It comes from indomitable will."

Your will is going to take you far... It already has.

And I can't wait until the day when I come knock on the door of Dr. Paris N. Tyson for a lunch date.

So, it's on to the next phase...

Look out Stony Brook, HERE COMES PARIS!

Deuces.

Love and Luck Always,
Ms. Cuozzo (Lady)

P.S. I want you to know, I have always known you are "grown."

(But I'll be here for you anyway!!)

MAMA BIRD,

We cannot imagine not knowing you and missing out on all the laughs we have shared this year.

We really appreciate all your hard work and contributions. Continue shining with your outgoing personality and see you in Stony Brook.

Love,
Lourdes & Beverly

TO OUR PARIS!!

We just want to thank you for all the help you've contributed to the yearbook! Without you, it wouldn't have been the same. Thanks for also being such a great friend.

Love, Big Erika
& Lili Erika

PARIS,

You are an angel in disguise!
CONGRATULATIONS!!

LOVE, MOM

Congratulations! You did it. Thanks for staying focused on your dreams.

Love you.

--DADDY

Proud of you.

PARRRRR...What can be said about a girl filled with so much ferocity, determination and strength? How can her life be summed up with words that do not even compare? Quite simply, nothing can equate. All I can tell you is about a girl-no, a growing woman, I know as Ms. Paris Tyson, Otherwise known as Pam!!! Parr is an exceptional student whose diligence is to be reckoned with. Ask anyone in the Guidance, Dean, or Main office. They know her by face, voice and sometimes a hint of attitude. Parr is an essential component to any task that requires deadlines. The yearbook staff is forever grateful as should the class of 2008 be. Parr walks the path less traveled and that is okay because it has transformed my neighbor into a caring and intelligent person as Stony Brook will soon find just as successful.

Best Of Wishes,
Tawana

DEAR PARIS,

Congratulations on graduating...always remember that it's not what you've been through, it's where you're going...and the best is yet to come!!

Love, Shaudé

P.S. Stay focused...

I am very proud of all you have accomplished. Now go out and change the world!!!!

:) Love, Brenda

If asked to describe

in one word, it wouldn't be possible.

You are an amazing, loving, and caring person. There were many times, that you have bent over backwards to lend a helping hand.

I do not know what we would have done without you. I wish you the best in all your endeavors. So I just want to say thank you and we love you!

Love you forever, Msz.Tora!

OH PARIS!!

Where the hell would we be without you? I am going to miss dealing with you and your comments in statistics, all the times you should have "shhh" me and called me a bird. Most of all, I will miss seeing your beautiful face everyday.

--<3 Colin

PARIS,

Through all the days in yearbook that we "Fought," you always were there to lend a helping hand and make me laugh; you know I love ya for that! You really are a "Fly" girl!

People are not defined by what they have accomplished in their lives, or how much they have excelled in certain areas, but by the love they share with their families. My family has not only loved me through every step of my life, but has proven to be iconic figures that have shaped who I am today.

By this simple fact, I would like to thank each and every one of my family members for giving me the character, morals, beliefs and everything I hold true to my heart.
I Love You All!!

Sweet Katelynn,

It has been a joy and a blessing raising you as my daughter. I thank God for you, a precious and lovely gift from heaven. We are so proud of you! You've grown into a beautiful young woman whose light shines ever so brightly. You walk side by side with your maker, bold enough not to conform to the world, living a life that is pleasing to your father. You are a shining star that stands out in a crowd because of your love and zest for life. Life is just beginning for you, what an adventure it will be! Enjoy it to the fullest & embrace all new things. Remember to walk side by side with Jesus, he will direct your paths. Commit to the Lord whatever you do and your plans will succeed. Prov 16:3. As the years passed, you have proven to us that we were right. Now as you become an adult, you are going to take the first steps towards pursuing your dreams. We always want you to remember that we will be there to help you make your dreams come true. Don't ever forget that we, as your greatest supporters, will always be there when any obstacle comes your way. We wish you the best on your current and future successes.

Never forget what we always taught you:

My Dear Jonathan,

My son, my first born! I DREAD the idea about not being there to make sure your clothing was pressed or that your suit fit properly. A bit dramatic i know; but then i thought "All will be fine and he will look perfect". Wow! A 2008 GRADUATE. All through your school years i have always had high expectations of your abilities and i want you to know in my heart you have never disappointed me. You have accomplished so much and have perservered over many obstacles. I wish so much to be there with you to let you know how proud i am of you. As you graduate from High School i cannot help reflecting upon how quickly time has passed. I know that at times you thought i was overly protective, as a mother can be, but it was always with your best intrest at heart. I have been blessed with you and know that with all that life has to offer, you will go through it with that wonderful smile and determination that has made you who you are today. You're a kind, loving, giving and hard working son who has always stood your ground for the things you believed in and have already achieved much in your life. It is my hope that you will continue reaching throughout your lifetime. I feel confident that you will be successful in your endeavors. Follow your heart and remember to cherish the moment and the little things. Do not lose sight of the values I hope I have instilled in you, who you are, or where you came from and always value yourself. Whiloe this chapter of your life comes to an end another one begins. Embrace it for what it's worth and take advantage of all the opportunities that come before you.

I Love You y Que Dios te Bendiga,

CONGRATULATIONS, RONNIE!

I look to you with hope & pride; I see your future brightly
Your deep concerns & aspirations I will not take lightly
The future is a mystery that everyone explores
I'll share your possibilities, embrace your distant shores
I'll answer you when questions stir,
Encourage you, implore you,
But life's a challenge shaped by dreams
A gift I can't live for you.
So live it well; respect it fully;
Play your spirit out, seek and then discover
All the best that life's about
Remember that you're not alone, my love is always there
The challenge that defines your life, my heart will gladly share You're on a voyage into time, a trip to somewhere new.
You may not always see me there
But I'll be there with you.

Dear Young One,
From preschool
Through high school,
You've been a true treasure
Beyond every measure.

You have forged your very own trail
Strong with leadership, not to fail.
You've had all worthy, creative ideas
Always embraced by adults and your peers.
Your happiness, smile, and good heart
have been contagious.

To have these virtues is nothing short of outrageous.
Because of them, success will always be yours
That will open the most difficult of doors.

WELCOME TO BAY SHORE

COLOPHON AND CLOSING

The 2008 Marauder Yearbook, entitled "Cherishing the Past, Embracing the Future," continued a new phase in Bay Shore High School Yearbook history. The second all-color copy of The Marauder, commemorated not only the school year, but the tricentennial of the Bay Shore community as well. This fifth volume of The Marauder will be cherished for a lifetime. The passion, time and effort put forth by the staff showed just how talented and dedicated the students of Bay Shore were and always will be.

Under the guidance of advisor, Ms. Kelly Cuozzo, the staff was successful in making the 2008 Marauder a colorful piece of history. The Marauder was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks, under the supervision of Mr. Steven Lerner. The formal photography seen within the book is credited to Quaser-Lifetouch Studios. Any additional photographs were taken by the yearbook staff. This book was produced by Ms. Cuozzo's 2007-2008 Creative Writing for Publication Classes.

Six hundred and seventy-five copies of this book were printed in all-color. The standard type face utilized throughout was Franklin Gothic Book, Demi, and Heavy. The staff utilized Adobe InDesign CS2 and Adobe Photoshop 7.0 for the creation of each and every page within The Marauder.

Oh Bay Shore, we thy students greet thee
And pay a tribute here today.
For you have well earned our devotion
That time can never take away.
And though tomorrow we may leave thee,
Our hearts will lead us evermore
To memories of golden school days
We spent at dear Bay Shore.
